Yrigoyen, Fine Man.

Mussolini Is Surprised.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

OUR EUROPEAN friends, in their agitation over the President's message on money, remind you of boyhood days when you turned over a board, looking for fish worms, and all sorts of queer creatures darted and scampered annoyed by the sudden light.

Small nations, hanging to the gold standard by their eyelids, realize that they must let go. France, more powerful, because of her gold hoard, almost equal to ours, is described as "raging" and "in wondering amazement."

THE SOLIDLY important news, for America, comes from England. Prime Minister MacDonald told Senator Couzens, American delegate:

"Cancellations are pouring into Northern industrial England from all over the world. These cancellations are coming because of the cheap American dollar."

If those cancellations mean more orders for United States factories and farms and more work for United States workers we shall regret Britain's loss, but NOT regret our abandonment of the gold standard.

BRITAIN'S respectable Manchester Guardian, in an editorial headed "An Appeal to Anarchy," says:

"Roosevelt is playing to the home gallery."

To Americans that is a welcome change. Their government has been playing to foreign galleries long enough.

FOR THE comfort of wobbly Americans, worried about their dollar, it should be made clear that Europe is annoyed because it knows our dollar will be GOOD as well as plentiful.

We are not on "the gold basis," but we have more gold in our government hoard than any other country on earth, even France, and we can get as much more of it as we choose to buy.

Back of our dollars there is more gold than there was before we left the gold basis, and back of it there is the REAL WEALTH of the United States, and its immense buying power and productivity that make it independent of the rest of the world. Others need us, we do NOT NEED THEM, PRAISE BE TO THE LORD.

HIPOLITO YRIGOYEN is dead, one of the world's great and useful men.

He established the secret ballot in the Argentine republic, taking political power from a handful of land owners exploiting the workers, and transferring political power to the masses. The land owners have never recovered it.

He was twice elected president of the republic by overwhelming majorities, without ever making a speech or showing himself in public.

He considered himself the real president of the Argentine to the day of his death, but he was old, past eighty, and glad to escape routine and formality. He died on a plain, white iron bed, in a small apartment, one son and two daughters beside him, with a picture of the Virgin Mary over his head, a silver crucifix within reach of his hand.

The Pope's benediction had been conveyed to him, the day before he died.

Yrigoyen was a man of will and action, and Argentines like such men. When Germany's secret instructions to "sink Argentine vessels without trace" were revealed, both Argentine houses of congress passed resolutions demanding war on Germany.

Yrigoyen calmly pocketed their resolutions, kept Argentina neutral, and later took his country out of the League of Nations. Only Argentina and the Argentines interested Yrigoyen, whom his compatriots call El Viejo, their grand old man.

MUSSOLINI should be a man not easily surprised. He was a common soldier, badly wounded, and is now ruler of Italy's army and navy. He was a radical, as extreme as such a man could be, when turned in that direction. Now in Italy no radical dares to peep.

Rising from misery and prison to a place higher than the throne, which he protects, Mussolini has ruled destiny and might say with Napoleon:

"Circumstances? I make circumstances."

Mussolini was surprised when Col. Easterwood, of the Texas American Legion, told him that Texas had a woman governor. He exclaimed:

"What, can a woman run a state? And do you like her?"

Women have done well, ruling indirectly and as actual rulers, and will do better in future than men have done. Elizabeth was as powerful a ruler as England ever had. Victoria was the most beneficial ruler of her country, Catherine, the German-born princess, made a great ruler of Russia.

MUSSOLINI FORGOT the words of the wise French king, defending the Salic law, which forbids any woman to sit on the throne of France:

"As long as a man is on the throne France is sure to be ruled by some woman. With a woman on the throne a man might rule, and that would be bad for France."

Roosevelt Rushes New Envoy to London Conference

BULLETIN.

LONDON, July 5.—(AP.)—The United States delegation now favors recess of the World Economic Conference, an American spokesman stated this evening.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.) Adamant against immediate stabilization of the dollar, President Roosevelt moved twice today to assure the continuance of the World Economic Conference at London, which he feels is desirable and certain.

First, he conveyed his latest views to Secretary Hull in a direct conversation with the head of the American delegation at the British capital.

Subsequently, he dispatched Lawrence Steinhardt, his minister to Sweden, to London for fresh and personal aloboration of the American position.

SAILS TOMORROW

Mr. Steinhardt will sail tomorrow for the world conference.

He conferred with President, and apparently will carry with him to the deadlocked parley oral instructions from the President to the American delegation.

The diplomat, leaving ahead of his original schedule, expects to remain a week at London before proceeding to Stockholm.

From his post in Sweden, he may later make a personal study of possibilities of American relations with Russia.

After his talk with Secretary Hull, Mr. Roosevelt was said in high quarters still to have every

City Work Pay Raise Pledged

Contractors on city projects today agreed to pay immediately laborers a minimum wage of 30 cents an hour on existing contracts and to specify 45 cents on future work.

The agreement was reached in a conference between Mayor John S. Herron, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner with 12 contractors. Herron told the contractors he was prepared to ask Council this afternoon to enter a clause on future contracts that will stipulate the 45-cent hour rate.

Five contractors, admitting paying 20 cents, promised an immediate increase at a conference today with Mayor Herron. Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner. The parley, growing out of charges some contractors paid 10 cents an hour, brought a denial from the accused employer, Henry Butch. He said 20 and 30 cents was being paid, with waterboys drawing 15 cents.

Benner was instructed to draw up a clause for future contracts stipulating 45 cents. Herron was to present it to Council this afternoon. Herron told the 12 contractors attending the meeting:

"The law permits you to pay what you want, but we won't allow sweatshop tactics in Pittsburgh."

While Benner did not declare the proposed clause was legal, though the contractors agreed to abide by it in future work, he said:

"You might take us into court, but we'll give you a run."

The Mayor said the city could do its own work and did not have to give it out on contract.

Director Lang was to notify all contractors that a 10-hour day was in violation of contracts and the state law. Some admitted operating 10-hour days.

Fair Weather Speeds Voyage of Italy's Air Armada

International News Service.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, July 5.—Making fast time on the flight from Londonderry, Northern Ireland, enroute to Iceland, the Italian seaplane armada passed over the Faroe Islands this afternoon, according to word received here.

The Faroe Islands lie more than midway the distance between Londonderry and Iceland.

Strong helping winds were being encountered, wireless messages said.

All preparation have been completed for reception and refueling of the planes.

Flying conditions in the vicinity of Iceland were satisfactory, despite light showers. The wind velocity was less than five miles an hour.

Visibility along the South and Southwest Coast was from 12 to 30 miles.

Ships in the harbor have been decorated for three days in expectation of the arrival. Excitement ran high as news circulated that the squadron would arrive this evening.

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, July 5.—(INS.)—With a roar that shattered the calm of the Irish countryside, Italy's aerial armada of 24 seaplanes left Londonderry today for Reykjavik, Iceland, third projected stopping place on the expedition's flight to Chicago.

A great cheer from the crowds lining the banks of Lough Foyle was almost drowned out as the seaplanes rose, one by one from the smooth waters of the lake.

Bombings, Fire Mark Battle to Rule Brew Trade

Joseph B. Keenan, newly appointed special assistant to Attorney General Cummings, to direct the federal government's war on organized crime, said today he was "interested" in the situation here.

Pittsburgh's holiday outrages included murder in Mt. Washington, a roadhouse bombing in Moon township, an explosion which destroyed a house on the edge of Sewickley's exclusive residential section, a threatened bombing of a Herron Hill beer distributor, and an explosion in Treveskyn.

POLICE GET ORDERS

Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide ordered patrolmen to take every precaution to prevent beer racketeering. Radio and scout car squads, as well as patrolmen, were instructed to report any talk or threats against beer distributors or dealers underselling their competitors or rival factions.

Keenan, expressing interest in the latest racket outrages, here said he was still uncertain just what course his campaign would take, but declared:

"I am leaving Cleveland Friday for Washington, where I will confer with Attorney General Cummings."

In 1919 Mr. Keenan made a name for himself in the investigation of crime conditions in Cleveland. Fired with the determination to exterminate the gang system, he hopes to turn every resource of the federal government against the racketeers which infest the nation.

Only one motive appeared in the outrages here—the efforts of the racketeers to control the legal beer trade.

SHOT TO DEATH

In Mt. Washington, Louis Impellicceiri put down his guitar, walked to the door of his beer garden and was shot dead. Two men and a woman were arrested.

In Sewickley socialities hurried from holiday parties to watch flames destroy a 12-room house which had been shattered by an explosion which shook the borough.

In Moon Township Mrs. Emma Lackovich and two girl employes were tossed from their beds when a bomb rocked her beer-selling roadhouse.

In his wholesale beer house in Brereton avenue, Leonard Krzywicki found a note attached to a brick which had been hurled through a window. The note warned him his place would be bombed if he cut prices.

CAB FIRE PERILS FIRST LADY

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS.)—A burning taxicab exploded and hurled its driver 15 feet at pier 61, North River, today, just as Mrs. Franklin L. Roosevelt arrived at the pier to say good-bye to her son, Franklin, Jr., who sailed for Europe on the U. S. liner Washington with seven schoolmates.

The President's wife was about 100 feet away when the car blew up as its driver, Victor Aliano, who was trying to extinguish the flame, was seriously burned about the face and hands and thrown through the air.

While the President's son walked the deck with his friends before the ship sailed a number of young women grabbed for his arm and tugged at his coat in order to attract his attention. He was plainly nervous as one girl said:

"I'm a great admirer of your father, and I like you, too."

Hit-and-Run Victim Walks to Hospital

Knocked down by an automobile which sped from the scene in East Ohio street, Miss Burldean Law, 63, of 807 East street, walked three blocks to the Allegheny General Hospital.

Her condition, according to hospital attaches, is serious. Police are searching for the driver of the car.

'FOURTH' FILLS HOSPITALS HERE

The list of those treated at hospitals had mounted to 115 today, while many others, attended by physicians or given first aid at home, were not recorded.

A majority of those injured were boys.

Firecrackers took a heavy toll of burned hands, faces and eyes, with torpedoes responsible for many hurts. Sparklers, blank cartridges and skyrockets were blamed for half a dozen injuries, while a backfiring romancandle burned one child.

One mother was struck by a bullet as she sat on the steps of

Cochet Defeated By Vines; Hagen Open Golf Leader

American performers turned in sensational feats in international golf and tennis competition in the British Isles today.

Playing at Wimbledon in defense of his title, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American champion, strengthened his position as the world's leading tennis player by defeating Henri Cochet, of France, for the third straight time. Vines' triumph, at 6-2, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1, advanced him into the final round.

Striving for his fifth British open golf championship, at St. Andrews, Scotland, Walter Hagen, of Detroit, carded a 68 for his first round and took a two-stroke lead over the field. Hagen's score, five under par, was only one stroke over the course record, established by Pat Nolan in the qualifying test yesterday.

GIRL STABBED BY EX-SUITOR

A lovers' quarrel today sent a 20-year-old girl to Braddock General Hospital with four stab wounds and her one-time sweetheart to the Pitcairn Station, according to W. C. McDowell, Pitcairn police chief.

Joe Gizzy, 19, of 368 Broadway, Pitcairn, told police he stabbed Caroline Bilinsky with his pocket knife in her home at Wall, Pa., this morning, after asking her to return his ring, according to McDowell.

When he was arrested by Patrolman L. A. Marchand in a Broadway restaurant, Chief McDowell said, Gizzy calmly recounted the story of their broken love affair and an argument that resulted in the stabbing.

The girl's condition is serious, hospital attaches reported. Miss Bilinsky was talking with Anna Betz, a neighbor, when the stabbing occurred, she said.

PRIMO CARNERA'S LIFE STORY

'Five-Year Plan' Wins Heavyweight Title for Former Circus Freak.

(This autobiography is a translation from the Italian of Primo Carnera's remarkably clear memories of his career thus far. The new world heavyweight boxing champion can speak English sufficiently to be understood, but, in preparing his life story, he preferred to do so in his native tongue. So far as is possible, the translation preserves the ideas and spirit of the champion.)

CHAPTER ONE

A "FIVE YEAR PLAN" SUCCEEDS

By PRIMO CARNERA, World Heavyweight Champion

At last the championship is mine—and by a clean knockout—and my pleasure in that alone makes up for whatever pain and trouble I met with on my exciting journey to the top.

Just five years ago, I first saw boxing gloves and started learning that style of fighting. I was 21 years old then and had been a wrestler with a small circus ever since I was 16. My first professional fight was at Paris in September, 1928. Since then I have taken part in about 75 formal matches and 100 or more exhibitions. In relating my life story, I will touch on many of these and publish for the first time my own recollections of what I consider the most interesting happening in my career thus far.

Sets Five-Year Course

As far back as 1929, my former manager, Leon See, predicted that it would take about five years for me to win the world championship. We often discussed that goal, even when things looked black. Monsier See called me "a generosity of nature" in prophesying that "in five years Primo will be invincible." Many fight fans, and experts especially, laughed at that idea. And I don't blame them when I look back, now realizing how crude I must have appeared to ringwise eyes.

But I did not take that championship objective as a joke when

'Young Eppy' Guarded After Partner's 'Ride'

Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein, former pugilist, and his brother-in-law, H. M. Fox, are going around town today with bodyguards.

It's because six men took Fox for a "ride" Saturday night in his own car, held a "rod" against his side and beat him about the body and arms, it is said.

And it's something else to be blamed on beer.

With the feud over brew continuing, Fox today filed informations before Alderman Luke Sullivan, charging John Douglas, Jr., Harry Zamski and Sam Lakin with aggravated assault, pointing firearms and larceny.

The men have not been arrested.

As to the bodyguards, "Young Eppy" and Fox, who have a "piece" in the Reading Brewery, have this to say:

Eppy—"No one can push Eppy around like that."

Fox—"You can put it in your paper that Foxie is 'puncher-proof.' My brewery has told me to spare no expense to break up this racket."

On June 6, Fox made information against Douglas charging him with passing a worthless check, while Fox's attorney sought a writ to recover 950 cases of ale and beer. On June 9, it cost Eppy $3 on a charge of menacing Douglas, and threatening to bomb his place.

Fox denied he had taken steps bombs to the Sunday meeting the wholesale dealers' organization sponsored by Douglas. said that in all of his 36 years had never toted such a bomb.

ROOSEVELT REVERSES POLICY, BACKS 'AMERICA FIRST' ie President's decision to fol- an isolationist road was npted by Europe's actions at ndon and other conferences, to ce the United States to make ctically all the concessions for rld recovery.

AR DEBT REVISION

Officials said this was strik- ly shown when England, France d other debtor nations sought to ake war debt revision a condi- ion precedent to economic agree- ments.

The President promptly sent word to London the American delegation was strictly forbidden to discuss debts. Since then the conference has been virtually at a standstill.

The new policy is blunt notice Europe must either play a co-operative game or the United States will go it alone.

During four momentous months in the White House, the President has scrapped major foreign policies of the Hoover-Stimson regime.

It was topped off by refusal of currency stabilization at London, and orders to the cabinet to speed the domestic economic recovery machinery.

CUE FROM CHIEF

Officials agreed today, taking their cue from the Chief Executive, further active co-operation with Europe will be extremely limited.

Collaboration between the United States and the League of Nations, which under previous administrations made this country virtually a member of the Geneva tribunal, is over, administration spokesmen declared.

The United States admittedly holds little further interest in the Disarmament Conference, now in moribund recess.

For the first time since the war, an administration has authorized the upbuilding of the Navy. This will place the United States in a more favorable position to follow an independent course when the London naval treaty expires.

Among the witnesses summoned were Dr. J. G. Steedle, Assemblyman, of McKees Rocks; Alderman Ray E. Schneider, North Side; Justus Schroedel, Republican chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward; Robert Murray, chairman of the Twenty-third Ward, and Samuel Fair, former Sharpsburg Police Chief.

Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed has made application for a passport at the Federal Building. He expects to sail for Europe about July 21.

O. K. Eaton, counsel for State Senator James J. Coyne, one of the 64 indicted in the Thirty-second Congressional District investigation, will leave for the Pacific Coast in about three weeks. Coyne likely will be listed for trial in November.

confidence that the conference will proceed.

He would not comment on his talk with Mr. Hull, preferring to let the actions at London speak for themselves.

At the White House, however, it was explained quite emphatically why the President will not consider immediate stabilization of the dollar, which has been demanded by the European gold bloc at the threat of disruption of the conference.

STABBILIZATION FUND

In an official source that knows, he was described as feeling that any stabilization agreement would require the United States to establish a stabilization fund and morally bind this country to export gold to back up the agreement, if it became necessary.

He is not ready to export gold or to enter any agreement that would morally obligate this country to export gold.

Mr. Roosevelt realizes that the question of stabilization of currencies in international exchange means much to some of the European nations, but does not regard it as a factor at all affecting the United States.

He is looking to an eventual permanent basis of stabilization, but holds to the opinion that such must come about first after each country has stabilized its own domestic purchasing power.

The President does not regard the establishment of stabilization funds, as has been demanded, as on the agenda of the conference.

CURRENCY RATE

As for finding the true purchasing power of the currencies of the various nations, the President does not consider there has been time sufficient to determine this as yet.

England has been off the gold standard almost two years, it was pointed out this afternoon, and France was off at one time for four years.

The United States has been off the standard only three months.

In seeking to establish the permanent purchasing power of the American dollar, Mr. Roosevelt is considering several factors.

Some advisors have urged that the 1926 price levels be taken as a basis.

Others believe that level too high and point to 1925 and 1924.

International Dollar Urged by Roosevelt

LONDON, July 5.—(AP.)—The creation of an international dollar for use as a measuring rod during the period of fluctuating exchanges preceding stabilization was understood in American quarters today to have been suggested by President Roosevelt in his instructions to Secretary of State Hull regarding the future of the World Economic Conference.

At the same time it was said in American quarters that the impression prevailed that the major part of the parley would recess this week, leaving committees to carry on technical work, possibly at Geneva.

This view was expressed after leaders of the delegation had been in telephonic communication with Washington to determine American action upon the proposal for adjournment of the conference at tomorrow's meeting of the steering committee.

The monetary measuring rod which the American President was said to have proposed could be called a dollar or by any other name which nations preferred and it would serve to assist business and foster the work of the conference until the dollar and the pound could again be fixed in value, it was said.

This proposal, it was explained, was Mr. Roosevelt's answer to Europe's criticism that it is impossible for the international gathering to continue its work while the dollar was unstable.

Big Wheat-Producing Nations Reach Agreement

LONDON, July 5.—(INS.)—Representatives of the world's wheat-producing nations today drafted an agreement based on American proposals for co-ordinated marketing and restricted production of wheat.

In accordance with the request of the Australian wheat representative, the draft will be submitted to leading importing countries for approval and co-operation of these governments.

The four principal wheat-producing countries (Argentina, Canada, Australia and the United States) reached an agreement in principle for "curtailment of production in accordance with the world demand," according to an official communique.

The agreement, it added, will be submitted to European importing and exporting nations for co-operation. The agreement, it was stated, contains no fixed figures on curtailment of wheat acreage or exports, which is said to depend on the attitude of the importing nations.

2 AXMEN, BOLT VICTIMS, BURIED

Two Pittsburgh youths, killed by lightning at the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Pine Grove Furnace, Pa., last Friday, were buried yesterday with semi-military honors. Seventy-five comrades, regular Army officers and chaplains attended in a body.

Services were held at 10 a. m. for Herman B. Chuderewicz, 20, of 320 Hancock street, at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Brereton avenue. Father Steven Zarkowski officiated. Burial was at St. Stanislaus Cemetery.

At 2:30 p. m. the company of reforestation recruits served as a guard of honor at the funeral of Robert O. Armstrong, 23, of 1902 East Ohio street.

The Rev. E. E. Oney conducted the service, assisted by Capt. Ira Freeman and Lieut. Francis J. Baily, Army chaplains. Burial was in Allegheny County Memorial Park.

PUBLIC WORKS SPEEDED BY ROOSEVELT

Ickes, Roper Confer With President On Projects

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, at a conference with Secretaries Ickes and Roper, chairmen, respectively, of the public works and industrial rehabilitation boards, arranged to give impetus to the national "back to work" movement.

The cabinet officers brought to the presidential desk a long list of projects and industrial agreements which they expect to provide new jobs for thousands, better working conditions and better prices.

Among the first things on the program is approval by Roosevelt of a long list of new projects proposed by the public works board to be constructed from the $3,300,000,000 fund available.

NAME ADMINISTRATORS

Roper recommended today that $10,000,000 of the public works fund be set aside for Department of Commerce activities.

If these funds are received, he told reporters, may of the nearly 2,000 persons who have been or are to be dismissed would be retained. The department's appropriation for the present year is $36,000,000.

EXPENSE GAIN SEEN

Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, has asked that only $26,000,000 of this be spent.

In view of increased business activity, there is a possibility that expenditures will be about $29,000,000.

Roper said that while he knew of no new estimate of governmental revenues on a basis of increased business, he believed they would be higher and that additional services would be called for from the department by business organizations.

NAVY TO SEEK $77,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—Secretary Swanson said today the Navy will ask $77,000,000 of public works funds for battleship modernization which will give the United States a fleet of "battleships equal to those of any navy."

The program outlined would include modernization of the California, West Virginia, Maryland, Colorado and Tennessee and increased gun elevation for the New York and Texas.

Now under modernization are the New Mexico, the Mississippi and the Idaho.

Swanson explained:

"If we get this money, 85 per cent will go to labor."

GERMAN PLANE SPREADS FEAR IN FRANCE

Pilots Escape After Forced Landing In Field

International News Service.

TOULOUSE, France, July 5.—A mysterious airplane bearing German markings made a forced landing in a field near Vigan today, throwing the countryside into a state of wild excitement.

When peasants arrived on the scene to aid the airmen, the latter fled. Local gendarmerie went in search of the aviators and posted a guard around the plane, which is of a type unknown in France.

PLANE BUYING DENIED

LONDON, July 5.—(INS.)—Rumors published in the United States that Germany has approached a British aviation company with a view to purchasing fighting airplanes were denied by British officials today.

The rumors were to the effect that Germany, in an alleged campaign to build up an air force in defiance of the treaty of Versailles, had entered into a contract with a British airplane construction company for the building of 60 planes similar to those delivered last year to the Belgian government, and that the British cabinet had directed the Air Ministry to prevent the contract from being carried out.

International News Service can state that the connection between British aviation companies and the Air Ministry is so close that if any company were approached by foreigners, the Ministry would immediately be informed.

LAST NON-NAZI PARTY QUITS

BERLIN, July 5.—(AP.)—The direct path Chancellor Hitler's Nazis have taken to the complete control of many phases of German life led today—exactly four months after the "vindication" in the Reichstag elections—to the dissolution of the last non-Nazi political party.

The Bavarian Peoples party, sixth in importance of the 14 groups in Parliament before the March 5 elections, voluntarily quit the political scene yesterday.

Dissolution of the Centrists, who with the Populists, also a Catholic party, held 88 of the 584 seats in the pre-Hitler Parliament, today was considered a matter of hours.

Consequently the death, dissolution or merger of all the others left the Hitlerites alone on the stage, free to continue without organized opposition their "national revolution of Germany," which began January 30 with Hitler's appointment as chancellor and which has since entered German industrial, religious, educational and agricultural life.

U. S. PAY CUT EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order continuing the 15 per cent cut in pay of federal employes.

The slash was first made effective under the economy bill to extend until June 30, the close of the fiscal year, with Roosevelt authorized to continue it if justified until the first of the year.

The order said that the living cost index for the first six months of this year was 130.2 as compared with 171 for the base period, the six months ending June 30, 1928.

Proof was obtained by painting ultra-violet the entrance to their hive. The bees went to that colored entrance, and, with the color changed, would not enter.

Dr. Lutz says bees "almost seem to think." Those bees, watching the giant doctor arranging his experiments, may have said to each other that he almost seemed to think.

BEES AND other insects that were at work here, millions of years before men appeared, are supposed to have adopted mental grooves, now called instinct, and to have stopped learning.

Many human beings also live in mental grooves, have stopped learning and will not tolerate a new idea.

ZIONISTS SCORE HITLERISM

CHICAGO, July 5.—(INS.)—With a plea to the "civilized world to take effective measures to save the Jews of Germany from the destruction with which Hitlerism threatens them," Jews from throughout the country began an exodus from Chicago today.

At the closing session of the Zionist Organization of America last night, a resolution was adopted decrying the "return to barbarism in Germany in its relentless and ruthless persecution of the helpless and innocent Jews in that country."

The Zionists adopted a program calling for the expenditure of $8,000,000 for the colonization of 250,000 Jews—the majority of them to be German Jews—in Palestine in the next four years.

The accusation that the Nazi government had employed propagandists to spread anti-Semitic publicity in America was made at the closing session of the Sixth District Grand Lodge convention of the B'Nai B'Rith, Jewish fraternal order.

BERLIN, VIENNA HINT PEACE

VIENNA, July 5.—(AP.)—Although daily explosions continued in Austria—another noisy but harmless artillery bomb rocked Wiener Neustadt near here last night—the possibilities of a truce between Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria, and the Hitlerites occupied the attention of the Vienna press today.

A friendly tone toward Austria was noted yesterday in the comment of Germany's semi-official "Aussenpolitische Korrespondenz." This was regarded in some quarters here as opening the door for negotiations leading to a Dollfuss-Nazi accord.

Such an accord would be based on the one hand on German recognition of Austria's European mission, and on the other hand recognition by Austria that all anti-Marxist forces, including Nazis, must combine.

Vatican-Germany Pact Waits Signing

VATICAN CITY, July 5.—(AP.)—Vice Chancellor von Papen, of Germany, today was still awaiting the approval of Chancellor Hitler for the projected concordat between the Holy See and the reich.

Prelates believe initialing of the pact will take place tomorrow.

Roosevelt Asked To Address Shrine

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt was considering today an invitation to speak at the Shriners convention in Atlantic City, July 10.

Should he accept, his speech would come just a few days before the dry states, Arkansas, Alabama and Tennessee vote on repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

Russia, Lithuania Enter Peace Pact

LONDON, July 5.—(AP.)—A non-aggression convention between the Soviet Union and Lithuania was signed at the Soviet embassy today. Its terms are similar to those signed Monday and Tuesday by the Moscow government and neighboring countries.

REPEAL FACING CRUCIAL TEST IN SOUTH

Alabama and Arkansas Elections May Decide Dry Law's Fate

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The probable fate of the Eighteenth Amendment will be known to the American people within two weeks. The states of Alabama and Arkansas vote on repeal July 18.

The two southern states were regarded here today as "bellwethers" of the repeal movement. If they vote wet, repeal of the Eighteenth Amandment will be assured—and probably within another few months.

If one of these states goes wet, the repealists believe national prohibition will be terminated. If both states reject repeal, the fate of prohibition will be left in doubt, with odds against removal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Sixteen states, with a population of nearly 55,000,000, have voted for repeal. The repealists need ratification by 20 more. If they can break into the so-called dry "solid South," only a political miracle can prevent repeal.

With Alabama and Arkansas dry, it would give tremendous encouragement to the prohibitionists in other southern states and in such dry territory as Maine, Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Idaho.

Sergt. York to Aid Drys in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 5.—(AP.)—Wets bent on achieving a victory they believe would presage quick death for the Eighteenth Amendment and drys fighting hard to hold traditionally dry territory of the old South have come to grips in a final struggle for votes at the repeal election in Arkansas July 18.

The united forces for prohibition in Arkansas are counting heavily upon their final campaign tour to muster enough votes to make Arkansas the first state to vote against repeal. Sergt. Alvin York, Tennessee World War hero, will come into the state this week to aid the dry cause.

New 'Carrie Nation' Elected by W. C. T. U.

MILWAUKEE, July 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, preacher and educator of Des Moines, Ia., president-elect of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, today said she would give it a leadership of the "Carrie Nation" type if necessary.

Elevated from the vice presidency yesterday, she will assume the office next November 1, succeeding Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who declined another term at the fifty-ninth annual convention. Mrs. Boole said she would devote her entire time to advancing the work of the world union.

HARRIMAN CASE NEAR TRIAL

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—The trial of Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, will proceed as soon as a case now on trial before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey is completed, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie said today.

The government's case in the present trial will be completed today, Medalie said, and the Harriman trial will start not later than Friday.

Harriman is under indictment on charges of making and causing to be made false entries in the books of the bank.

Roosevelt Not Tricked By Europe—Copeland

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Senator Royal S. Copeland, addressing the Society of Tammany's Independence Day program, expressed pride that President Roosevelt had not "been tricked by internationalism to [illegible] the needs of America" in World Economic Conference said:

For three or four days, I read with great anxiety what the press had to say about the conference. But what we have read yesterday and today should give every one of us heart."

Copeland's reference to the President's stand on currency stabilization came after he had accused the British government of attempting to "hamstring" American shipping at the London conference.

The Tammany Society's meeting was the principal observance of the holiday here. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee in 1928 was absent from the meeting for the first time in years.

4 Closed Banks to Pay $597,000 to 27,000

Four closed banks in the greater Pittsburgh district will pay $597,239 to 27,375 depositors within the next three weeks, according to announcement today by the State Banking Department.

A payment of 5 per cent, totaling $32,725 will be made July 12 to 2,908 accounts of the Merchants Savings and Trust Company, of Pittsburgh. This will bring disbursements to 33 per cent.

Federal Title and Trust Company, Beaver Falls, first payment of 10 per cent amounting to $45,887 to 1,548 accounts, July 15.

Monongahela City Trust Company, Monongahela, 7 per cent, amounting to $80,203 to 2,318 accounts, July 24. Former payments totaled 33 per cent.

Washington Trust Company, Washington, fourth payment, 10 per cent, totaling $438,424 to 19,611 accounts, July 20. Three previous payments amounted to 30 per cent.

MURDER HINTED IN MYSTERY DEATH OF RICH OHIO DOCTOR

PROBERS BREAK INTO BURIAL VAULT

Undertaker Reveals He Stuffed Body With Excelsior

IRONTON, O., July 5.—(AP.)—One phase of the circumstances surrounding an autopsy on the body of Dr. J. W. Lowry, was cleared today when a Chesapeake (O.) undertaker said he removed the chest and abdominal organs preparatory to burial in a mausoleum.

The undertaker, J. E. Snyder, explained removal was necessary because of the condition of the body. Excelsior had been found stuffed in the chest and abdominal cavities.

Persistent reports that Dr. Lowry's death was not of natural origin prompted authorities to open the mausoleum. Unable to locate the keys, they had to break into the burial vault.

ORGANS SOUGHT

The excelsior in the body was found immediately when the examination was made.

A bruise behind the left ear further supported the theory that the wealthy physician and political leader was slain. Portions of the skull and larynx were sent to Columbus for examination.

Dr. Lowry's body was found in bed at the palatial home where he lived alone, on May 25. He had failed to appear for a conference on that day.

Lights burned in the room. A towel covered Dr. Lowry's face and his arms were folded. The body was clad in night clothes.

CHOKING INDICATED

Dr. George Hunter, examining physician, said he found on the neck marks that might have been caused by choking.

Deciding to conduct the autopsy, authorities found Dr. Lowry's nearest relatives, Mrs. Alice Lowry Barger, and her son, Clark Barger, had gone to West Virginia, and were unable to locate them to learn where the keys to the vault were kept.

No will disposing of Dr. Lowry's property has been found. In his safety deposit box were $3,800 in cash and $35,000 worth of jewels. A note indicated Dr. Lowry held another safety deposit box in a Huntington, W. Va., bank. He also owned real estate.

U. S. CHANGES BOOKKEEPING

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—A new system of keeping the government books was inaugurated with the advent of the 1934 fiscal year on July 1, providing separate listing of the "ordinary" and "extraordinary" expenditures.

The system will provide for the daily statement issued by the Treasury to list under separate columns the usual general expenditures of the government as in the past.

It will, however, provide another listing for the emergency expenditures which will be made by the various recovery organizations created by Congress. This will show how all of the money raised from the sale of bonds designed to provide the funds is spent.

Working out the plan for weeks, the Undersecretary of the Treasury, Dean Acheson and Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, have just completed the task.

PRINCE SCOLDED BY PONSELLE

NAPLES, July 5.—(INS.)—The name of Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, was on the lips of all Naples today, all because Crown Prince Umberto of Italy stopped smoking when she asked him to.

The incident occurred during a command performance at the royal gardens. Miss Ponselle was in the midst of an aria and stopped suddenly when she detected the odor of smoke. Prince Umberto was revealed as the offender.

He asked Miss Ponselle if she objected. She said:

"My one obsession is against anyone smoking while I am singing."

The Prince promptly crushed his cigarette with the heel of his boot and later described the incident in an amusing manner at a state banquet given in the singer's honor.

FEAR FACTOR'S SON WILL BE KIDNAPED

Ransom Calls Held Hoax; Boy Guarded, Wife in Collapse

By WILLIAM L. COLLINS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 5.—John (Jake the Barber) Factor began his fifth day of captivity today with no authentic word received from his abductors.

The two telephone calls received by his son, Jerome—one telling the 19-year-old youth to have $75,000 in small bills ready for payment, and the other to be ready to pay a ransom of $200,000—are now believed to be a hoax.

NO CONTACTS

So far as could be learned from the "board of strategy," organized within a few hours of the abduction of the millionaire stock market operator and ensconced in a suite in a Loop hotel to negotiate with the kidnapers, no other communications have been received.

The silence of the kidnapers led Jerome, himself an abduction victim last April, to believe that his father is dealing with the kidnapers himself. Jerome is being guarded in fear that he might also be kidnaped again.

FLIGHT DISCOUNTED

Reports that Factor may have fled to some Central American resort to escape further entanglements with the British government, were discounted today by the collapse of the erstwhile barber's beautiful red-haired wife, Rella Cohen Factor. She is under the constant care of physicians. Her condition convinced authorities that Factor is a genuine kidnap victim.

Factor is charged by the British with mulcting gullible English investors of $7,000,000, and John Bull has waged a two-year fight to extradite him.

MARY, HOSTESS AT RACE, MUM ON RIFT

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 5.—Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart" of the films, was back in seclusion today at "Pickfair," after making her first public appearance since the announcement of her separation from Douglas Fairbanks.

Miss Pickford narrowly escaped being in an airplane accident.

The tail skid on the plane that was to have carried her from United Airport to the Municipal Airport for the national air races broke.

The mishap occurred while Miss Pickford was waiting at the airport for the plane to taxi up to the passenger platform. Another plane was used.

Brushing aside her marital troubles, Miss Pickford was official hostess at the air races which were attended yesterday by 50,000 persons whom she greeted over the loud speaker system.

But she declined to discuss her marital troubles or her plans for the future now that she and Fairbanks have reached an open break after 13 years. She said:

"I'm sorry it had to happen, and sorry that it had to come out at this time."

TURNER WINS 3 AIR RACES

Associated Press.

Roscoe Turner, 48-year-old, 210-pound speed flier, and Johnny Livingston were outstanding in air races at Los Angeles and Chicago on the "Fourth." Turner's achievements at the National Air Races on the West Coast were the greater.

The Californian made a clean sweep of the three principal races on the program. He won the 100-mile closed course event averaging 241.051 miles an hour and flashed to victory on a straight-away course at 280.965 miles an hour.

In the first event of the 1933 program last Saturday Turner flew from New York to Los Angeles in 11 hours, 30 minutes, shattering his own record by more than an hour. It was the first time any aviator has won all three races. Turner's prize money totaled $9,550.

Livingston averaged 204.54 miles an hour in a 35-mile race over a triangular course at the American Air Races in Chicago and on one lap his time was 213.40, the fastest time yet at the air carnival which ends today.

ROW OVER RITES OF YRIGOYEN

BUENOS AIRES, July 5.—(AP.)—Clothed in a monk's white tunic, the body of Hipolito Yrigoyen lay in state today in his humble flat, while the government and his family fell into a spat about funeral honors.

The government, as a result of Yrigoyen's alleged implication in a revolutionary attempt last December, refused to permit exhibition of the former president's body in a public place.

The cabinet, however, decreed a national funeral Thursday noon, saying it was the government's duty "to conform impartially to the established custom."

The family then declined to accept the funeral honors, whereupon Minister of Interior Melo said they would be conferred anyway.

FAMOUS CIRCUS ACROBAT DIES

CORNING, N. Y., July 5.—(AP.)—John Comosh, who became noted while a member of the Worland Family of circus acrobats as the only performer to repeat the hazardous feat of a triple somersault, died at his home here last night at the age of 78.

One of three acrobats who successfully executed the daring leap, Comosh's success at repeating the feat resulted in injuries to numerous imitators.

HOOT NURSING PLANE HURTS

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(AP.)—Fourth of July was just another day in a hospital bed for Hoot Gibson, film cowboy, who peered through two blackened eyes and told visitors he knew his airplane was going to crash at the national air races, but he didn't know how it happened.

Gibson, whose speeding plane cracked up Monday as he was rounding the second pylon in his match race with Ken Maynard, screen cowboy, for the Will Rogers trophy, must remain in bed at least four weeks, his physician, Dr. Harry Martin, said.

He suffered fractures of the first, second and third right ribs and first, second and third lumbar vertebrae, the physician said, besides severe bruises and blackened eyes.

CASINO RAIDED IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, July 5.—(INS.)—Scores of beautifully gowned women and men in evening clothes were thrown into a panic early today when the Hollywood vice squad raided the exclusive Palomar Pacific Club and arrested 14 attaches of the club on charges of gambling.

Raiding officers said that the club, known as a rendezvous for Hollywood's film folks, was one of the most luxurious gambling casinos in the area.

The officers were unable to identify any of the guests, who were not molested.

Gunmen Loot Safe And Beat Watchman

PHILADELPHIA, July5.—(INS.)—Three masked gunmen, believed to be the trio involved in two other recent robberies, today escaped with an undetermined amount of money after knocking the combination off a safe in the offices of a large chemical company and beating the watchman, Patrick Tracey, 61, when he refused to give them the combination and tools for their work.

Helen Twelvetrees Named in Tax Lien

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(AP.)—Helen Twelvetrees, film actress, and Nacio Herb Brown, song writer, have been named in income tax liens filed in Federal Court.

PLANE LANDS IN CEMETERY

CLARION, Pa., July 5.—(INS.)—John Maitland and Janet Forsythe, of Oil City, today recounted the thrills of a forced landing in a cemetery after the plane in which they were flying was forced down by engine trouble.

Their pilot, J. B. Kratzer, of Clarion, had taken them aloft to view the auto races on the speedway here. As they were circling over the track, the crank shaft of the engine snapped.

The pilot brought the ship down gently amid the tombstones of a cemetery. The occupants and plane were not hurt in the landing.

British Duke Dons Linen Pants for Ritzy Banquet

LONDON, July 5.—(AP.)—London's clubs were buzzing today over the exploit of the 62-year-old Duke of Marlborough, who appeared at a Grand Druids' banquet last night clad in white linen trousers, a soft collar and shirt.

In the course of a speech the duke, ninth holder of the historic title, congratulated himself on his costume.

He said kindly that he noticed others present properly attired in evening dress were mopping themselves and undergoing the agony—in the prevailing heat wave—of hard collars.

FOSTER PARENT QUIZ STARTS

Examination of Juvenile Court wards and foster parents was started today in Juvenile Court by Judge Benjamin Lencher, with children and parents being questioned separately to ascertain unfavorable conditions or treatment.

The hearings, scheduled to begin Monday, started today without any changes being made in the home arrangements of the many cases heard. The court will hear 240 cases in the next seven weeks.

Probation office workers were being heard as the court sought to review the social surroundings and physical conditions of the wards. Parents of the children appeared at some hearings. A 12-year-old boy told the court he preferred to stay with his foster mother rather than go with his own mother. He had been in the foster home 12 years.

Judge Lencher held Clair Corbett, of Imperial, in $500 bond to face a serious charge in connection with abuse of a 17-year-old girl ward. Corbett was taken before the court by County Detectives Michael Ford and Lawrence Kline, who were instructed to arrange bond with the District Attorney.

FLIERS HUNTING MATTERN HOP

EDMONTON, Alberta, July 5.—(AP.)—William Alexander and a crew of three left here today in their big monoplane on a 1,900-mile flight to Nome, Alaska, from where they will search for Jimmie Mattern, missing American aviator.

The plane carried 400 gallons of gasoline, giving it a cruising range of between 2,000 and 2,500 miles. The fliers have food for four days.

The rescue expedition, hoping to find Mattern in some Indian or Eskimo camp in the Far North, expected to reach Nome in about 16 hours.

School Girl Beaten, Assailant Hunted

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 5.—Mary Kibilak, 16, school girl, is under the care of a physician today as police search for a man who beat her in his auto last night after she had been offered a ride home from a theater. As the machine passed a roadhouse, Detective Frank Galloway heard the girl scream and obtained the license number of the car.

Caruso Widow Marries N. Y. Doctor in Paris

PARIS, July 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Dorothy Caruso, widow of the famous tenor, and Dr. Charles Adams Holder, of New York and Philadelphia, were married today in a simple ceremony. At the request of the couple, the Mayor refrained from making the usual wedding speech.

Only two witnesses were present in addition to Gloria Caruso and Peggy Holder, the respective daughters of the couple, and a few reporters and photographers.

Mrs. Caruso wore a dark blue ensemble with a white organdy bow at her throat and a blue straw hat trimmed with white.

Unpaid Band, Cabaret Fixtures 'Vanish'

Gone is everything—almost everything from John Jacobs' Riverview Park Inn, according to John's report to police today.

John didn't say who took everything, but he did say much of his equipment disappeared at the time of the departure of a jazz band.

He said he hired the band. At closing time Jacobs said he found it necessary to go home to get more money to pay the orchestra. While he was gone the place was robbed.

How the musicians felt about it, Jacobs didn't say, but he did report the following articles missing from his inn:

Four cases of beer.
Two cases of ginger ale.
Two wall mirrors.

185 Perish in U. S. During Celebration Of Independence

Associated Press.

America paid a greater price in loss of lives in its annual celebration of its independence than it did in the initial skirmishes of the Revolutionary War, it was revealed by a survey which showed, however, a sharp decrease in fireworks fatalities.

A total of at least 185 men, women and children perished during the holiday compared with the total loss of seven men at Lexington and 93 at Concord back in April of 1775 when the forces of the original colonies clashed with those of King George III.

In addition there were hundreds of cases of injured. New York City alone reported 670 treated at hospitals for fireworks injuries, but only a few of the victims were seriously hurt. Twenty-one were injured in Minneapolis.

AUTO DEATHS TOTAL 82

Fireworks fatalities, however, totaled but seven, compared with 10 in 1932. Motor car mishaps contributed heavily to the total deaths, as usual, with 82. Fifty-eight perished by drowning. Thirty-eight others lost their lives in other accidents.

Airplane accidents, shooting and fights helped to swell the total. A parachute jumper fell to his death at Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition.

Not only were the fireworks deaths less than last year, but the total fatalities from all causes were 58 under the 1932 figures and 298 under those of 1931, when the largest number died in recent years. The 1932 figures, however, were naturally large because of a three-day holiday.

THE DAY'S TOLL

The figures for 1933 by sections:

	Fireworks	Automobiles	Drownings	Other causes
New England	0	4	4	5
Mid-Atlantic states	5	6	4	4
South	0	17	19	2
Southwest	0	10	1	5
Middle West	2	22	23	12
Mountain States	0	6	1	5
Pacific Coast	0	17	6	5
Totals	7	82	58	38
Grand total—185.

FIREWORKS AND PARADES MARK FOURTH HERE

Parades, outings, special park programs, fireworks and civic demonstrations featured the celebration of the Fourth of July in the Pittsburgh district.

By far the most colorful event of the day was the All-Nations Festival in Schenley Park witnessed by several thousand persons. The program opened in the morning, closing with a band concert and a historical pageant in the evening, directed by Karl Heinrich. Mayor John S. Herron spoke.

More than a dozen nations were represented in the festival, costumes of many European lands adding splendor to the occasion. Folk music and dancing was a feature.

In Mt. Lebanon the Civic League sponsored a program which included a parade and fireworks.

Twenty floats were in a parade sponsored by the American Legion in Clairton.

Other celebrations were held in Brookline, Mt. Oliver, Brentwood, Soho, Woods Run, Thirtieth Street Park, South Side and Sewickley.

Child's Sparkler Sets Off Powder Blast Killing 3

HARRISBURG, July 5.—(AP.)—Celebration of the Fourth of July left its trail of death in Pennsylvania, but only four fatalities caused by fireworks were reported.

Automobile accidents claimed at least eight lives and two persons were drowned.

Although banned in many cities, fireworks caused injuries to numerous persons, but indications were that the toll was no heavier than usual.

In Port Allegany, in Western Pennsylvania, three persons are dead and six others burned because 3-year-old Diana Jean Ostrander went too close to a can of powder with a "sparkler." The can exploded, fatally burning Diana, her grandfther, Fred Freer, 50, nd her mother, Mrs. JoJhn Ostrander.

Boys threw a lighted firecracker in four-year-old Joseph Carney's face in Philadelphia and the child died of the burns. A "dynamite" firecracker killed Gus May, 12, of Franklin, at a celebration near Utica.

Shooting Cowboy Disables Telephones

BELTON, Tex., July 5.—(AP.)—A cowboy in Belton's Fourth of July rodeo rode through the arena shouting and firing his pistol, loaded with blank cartridges. Only one was not a blank.

It shot a telephone conduit in two and disabled 52 telephones.

AIR STUNT KILLS 'UNCLE SAM'

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—A World's Fair holiday crowd of several hundred thousand persons witnessed what was believed to have been a fatal attempt at a delayed parachute jump from an airplane by Joseph Wilson, identified by police as a resident of Brooklyn.

The plane bearing Wilson, attired in an "Uncle Sam" suit, soared over the grounds last night thousands watched it as searchlight followed it in its course.

Suddenly an object was seen falling from it and the crowd waited for the parachute to open. But it didn't and Wilson fell into the lake.

GALES AT SEA TAKE LIFE TOLL

Associated Press.

The hurricane, which killed 13 in South Trinidad Island June 27 and hit Cuba, was sweeping across the Gulf of Mexico today, apparently west-northwest toward Louisiana and Texas.

Five men, the crew of the barge S. G. Wilder, are believed to have been lost in the northern seacoast gale. Four men and a woman were rescued from a companion barge of the same tow.

Coast guardsmen saved three women and two men from a sinking cabin cruiser. Six men and a woman were rescued from a foundering sloop.

A coast guard seaplane sighted the Wilder yesterday but saw on sign of life on the battered hulk. Coast guard cutters were unable to reach her.

Law Graduate Dies In Apartment Blaze

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP.)—Benjamin R. Coppolo, 25, of Weedville, Pa., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania law school, was suffocated today in his burning apartment in West Philadelphia.

Officials said the fire started in a davenport in the living room, where Coppolo evidently had fallen asleep while smoking. He was taking summer courses at the university to prepare for the state bar examinations in August.

French Aces Poised For Persia Flight

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Maurice Rossi and Paul Codos, French aviators, today made final preparations for a projected flight to Persia and announced they would take off tomorrow morning from Floyd Bennett Field if the weather is good.

They will attempt to set a new distance flight record, using a monoplane which they brought to this country from France two weeks ago.

HOSIERY STRIKE PEACE DELAYED

READING, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Despite an announced basis for settlement, Reading's hosiery strike goes on.

As a result of the efforts of Dr. Benjamin Squires, personal representative of Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, it was announced Monday that manufacturers had agreed to recognition of the workers' union, primary objective of the strike now in its eighteenth day.

Last night, however, Emil Rieve, national president of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers, issued a statement that the strike still is in effect.

He said the continuation was necessitated by the attitude of manufacturers refusing to treat with the union on the basis of the agreement negotiated with Dr. Squires.

FEAR NEW RIOT BY 'CHAIN GANG'

BROOKSVILLE, Fla., July 5.—(INS.)—Reinforced by a score of National Guardsmen, two sheriffs and a force of deputies today occupied the Toole Lake prison camp near here, awaiting possible renewal of a riot which flared late yesterday.

The riot, according to authorities, came as the result of dissatisfaction among prisoners when the State Prison Board failed to grant clemency to several convicts at the camp. Six of the inmates made a break for liberty and three were recaptured.

Prints on Headlight Auto Looting Clue

A headlight on which thieves who stripped the automobile of C. G. Crook, of 2204 Linbrook avenue, Brookline, had left their fingerprints, was turned over to city detectives last night as a clue. Crook told detectives his car was stripped while parked in the rear drive of the Iroquois apartments yesterday morning.

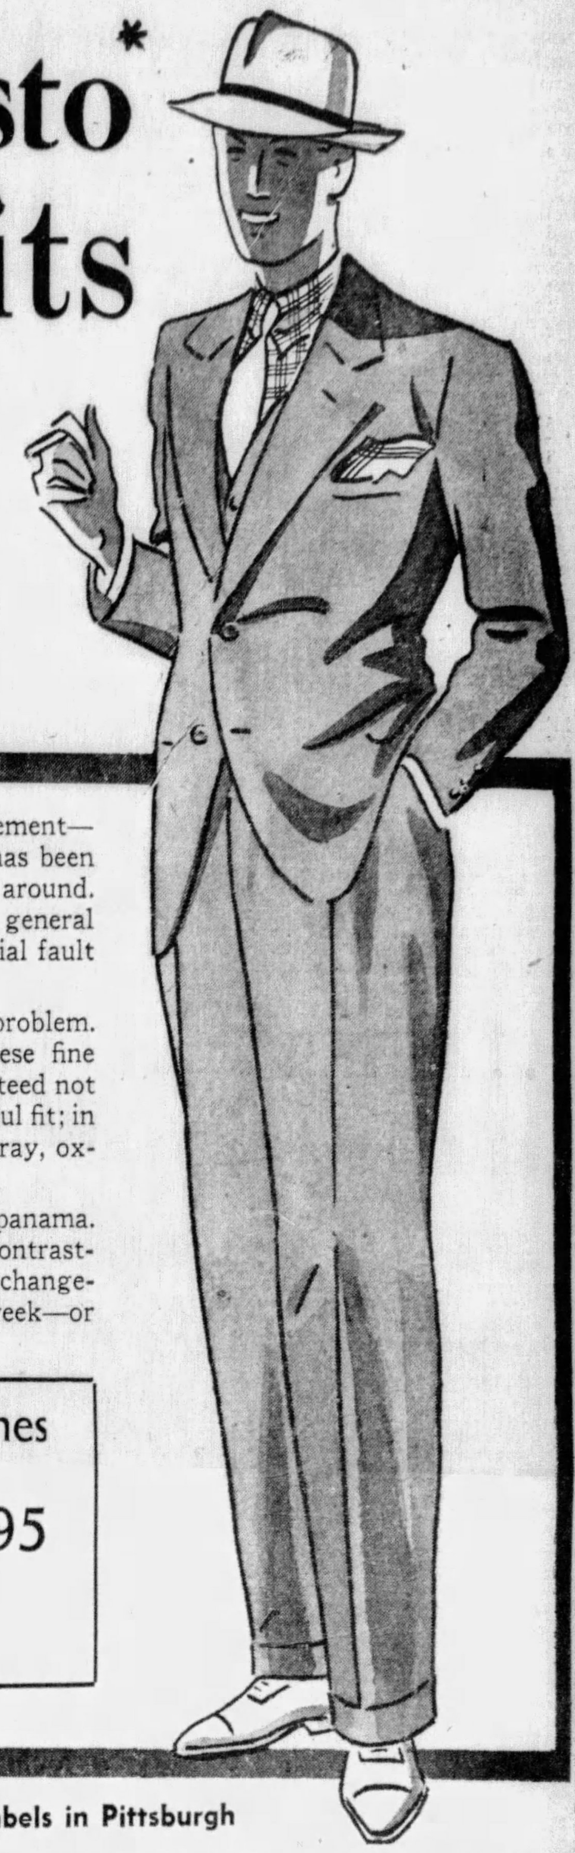
Shine Resisto* Serge Suits



Guaranteed Not to Shine

$27 With 2 Trousers

Worth $40 at Today's Price

Pittsburgh gets it first—this astounding Gimbel achievement—SERGE THAT WON'T SHINE. For years serge has been America's Number One fabric, Summer and Winter around. Nothing has beaten it yet for wear — or looks — or general utility. But serge suits have had one unforgivable social fault—the elbows and seat always shined.

Past history now! Gimbels laboratories have solved the problem. After more than two years of scientific research, these fine worsted serge suits have been produced and are guaranteed not to shine. Hand-tailored at 22 distinct points for beautiful fit; in single and double breasted models; blue, brown, blue-gray, oxford and cambridge gray.

Wear yours to business with white buckskins and panama. Leave off the vest on hot days—wear the jacket with contrasting slacks. There are two trousers with every suit for a change-about. You're going to want one of these—not next week—or next Fall—but tomorrow!

Cool Tropical Worsteds and Crashes

Hundreds more have just arrived to add to our great selection. Two-piece zephyr-weight worsteds and crashes. Shape-retaining and press-retaining this year. Plain if you like them or in smart stripe and nubbed effects. Three pieces, $20.

Sale! 5,000 1.65 MEN'S SHIRTS

These shirts at a dollar are NOT $1 shirts, but made to sell through the best men's shops at $1.65 apiece. We placed our order for them with this well-known maker months ago for delivery now. If we hadn't, this sale tomorrow couldn't have happened.

$1

Beautiful, lustrous, fine-textured broadcloths in plain and fancy patterns. The cut and tailoring are far beyond any shirts we've ever had at the price. Be sure you get your exact size, for they are pre-shrunk to wash without shrinking.

Buy half a dozen at this saving, for every man needs upwards of 12 shirts a week this kind of weather. And the weatherman says that there's two solid months of heat ahead. Collar-attached white, blue, tan, gray and fancy. Neckband in white only.

FOREST ARMY RIOTS ON TRAIN

LATROBE, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—A train carrying civilian members of Pennsylvania's Forest Army returning from a holiday at home was halted last night by a fight which necessitated calling out state troopers.

Police say the fight started among Negroes occupying one of the rear cars and spread to other coaches. Windows were broken, razors flashed and sticks and fists flew as the train passed Greensburg.

At Latrobe the melee broke from the train and the fight continued in the streets. Two men were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises.

The civilian soldiers were returning to camps at Williamsport, Dubois and Emporium. All were from Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Police said many of the men had been drinking.

U. S. Awards Ohio More Relief Funds

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—An additional grant of $1,259,309 was made today to Ohio by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

This grant was based on the reported public relief expenditures from all sources there during the first three months of this year. Previously the administrator granted $1,919,260 to Ohio.

Caretaker Slain At Hospital Door

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP.)—Believed to have been shot by robbers, a man was found dead on the sidewalk in front of the Douglas Hospital last midnight.

Cards and papers found in his pockets led police to believe he was Michael T. Nixon, caretaker at the home of Sydney E. Hutchinson, an insurance broker.

Hailstorm Destroys Crops in Canada

REGINA, Sask., July 5.—(AP.)—Raked by a hailstorm that struck about 80 miles northwest of Regina, through the Huronville district, 150,000 acres of Saskatchewan's fine crop has been partly destroyed. Accompanied by a deluge of rain the storm broke, blowing sheds and granaries about the prairies and threshing thousands of acres of grain crops into the ground.

2, Escaping Crash, Killed by Truck

SOUTH FORK, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Standing beside their automobile after a collision, Lawrence Pignani, 36, of Ehrenfeld, and his daughter, Dorothy, 10, were struck by a truck and killed last night.

Pignani, foreman for the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company, was tossed over a high wire fence. The girl was dragged by the truck and crushed against the same fence.

Oldest West Point Graduate Dies at 93

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—Brig.-Gen. John A. Kress, 93, died last night at Walter Reed Hospital of old age infirmities.

Veteran of the war between the states and the Spanish-American War, Kress had the reputation of being the oldest living graduate of West Point.

Kress was born in Tioga County, Pa., November 4, 1839, and retired from the Army in 1903.

DENY FREEDOM TO EMBEZZLER

Charles C. Ginter, 35, former secretary-treasurer of the Community Loan and Investment Company, of Tyrone, Pa., failed in court today to obtain his freedom from the Western Penitentiary through habeas corpus proceedings.

Attorneys Lex N. Mitchell and Benjamin Sigal had asked for Winter's release on the ground that his sentence of from three to six years for fraudulent conversion exceeded the maximum penalty for that offense and that the sentence should have been from two and a half to five years. Under this sentence Ginter would be entitled to parole.

Judge Ralph H. Smith denied the writ. District Attorney Richard H. Gilbert, of Blair County, declared Ginter had signed an indictment charging him with embezzling $30,000 and that the court might have imposed a much heavier penalty. Leniency was shown because Ginter pleaded guilty to fraudulent conversion and saved Blair County the expense of a trial, Gilbert stated.

RACE 'SYSTEM' TRAPS AUTHOR

H. Charles Barrett, 56, of 322 Main street, who claimed he is a short story writer, was turned over to authorities of Richmond, Ind., today on a bad check charge.

He was arrested after he had advertised for girls who were to sell Barrett's own "system" for winning money on horse races. Barrett told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court he wrote short stories under the pen name of "Graf Bates."

Father Sees Truck Kill Apollo Child

APOLLO, Pa., July 5.—Betty Ellen Shaffer, 5, was killed by a truck today on her way to vacation Bible School.

The child had alighted from the car of her father, T. F. Shaffer, and stepped from the rear of the machine into the path of a coal truck driven by Oliver Long, of Vandergrift.

Student on Peak Top Killed by Lightning

DENVER, July 5. — (INS.) — Roger McDougall, 24, Denver University graduate, was dead today, victim of a strange Fourth of July accident.

STAY IN HOME, C. D. A. TOLD

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 5.—(INS.)—The extension program of the Catholic Daughters of America today occupied the attention of delegates to the fifteenth annual convention in the second day of its session here

Woman's place is in the home, Bishop John Mark Gannon, of Erie, Pa., told the delegates in an address at the opening of the convention.

He said:

"The American home is a shrine. If it becomes corrupt, the nation becomes corrupt. The mothers of the land do their most powerful work for the nation when they stay at home and do the work of God."

You Don't Need GLASSES To See Through Optical "BAIT"

The Pittsburgh Better Business Bureau has been conducting an intensive investigation of "bait" optical offers. By "bait" is meant, the offering of eye glasses, examination, and prescription covering individual cases, at a price so low that customers attempting to purchase them are put off on some flimsy pretext, and urged to purchase others at a much higher price.

Bureau investigation indicates that the following excuses are typical of the reasons given for not selling at advertised prices: "They are not suited to your type"—"They are not suitable for your eyes," etc.

The legitimate optical field does not resort to "bait" practices.

Please report promptly to the Bureau any attempt to use "bait" methods in the purchase of eye glasses.

Song of the Soul .....Breil
Miss Flinn.
"From an Indian Lodge" from "Woodland Sketches".....MacDowell
Melodies from "My Maryland"...Romberg
American Fantasy .....Herbert

For the third lawn concert at the Schenley Hotel last night, Victor Saudek arranged a program of entirely American music.

Mr. Lissfelt

There was quite a large holiday audience present which responded gaily to the patriotic airs.

A feature of the evening was the playing of Secretary Woodin's march dedicated to President Roosevelt.

Mathilda Flinn, dramatic soprano, was solist of the occasion. She opened the program with vigorous rendering of the Star Spangled Banner. Unfortunately, to fit her music for the spirit of the program, she had to choose songs of extremely lyric character rather than more dramatic ones which might have been better heard in the open. But the two Cadman songs, his most popular ones, are always welcome, where it is a question of American music.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Flier Escapes Death When Plane Dives

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Shooting into a nose dive, while attempting to land his monoplane, Harry Lazuder, 35, of Somerset, crashed to earth yesterday, escaping with minor bruises and cuts.

Lazuder was circling when his gasoline supply became exhausted. He attempted to glide down, but nose-dived.

"Just what we want"—

Says the college set, appraising our Summer Clothing Stocks

"We didn't know there were such clothes in Pittsburgh," we're told almost daily by young fellows home from Eastern colleges.

They also comment on our more reasonable prices, as compared with college shops and those quoted by representatives of New York and Philadelphia stores who call on the schools. One identified a sports coat at $10, for which he had paid $15 at college.

We have the contrasting coats and slacks, the mess jackets, and colorful sports clothes that the extremely well-informed younger generation wants, and we're selling them a-plenty. Dressing for summer, today, is more than a matter of comfort . . . it is one of fashion, also!

Linen Suits, $12.50 and up.
Palm Beaches, $12.50.
Mess Jackets and Trousers, $12.50.
Tropical Suits, $16.50 to $35.
Flannel Suits, $29.50.
Sports Coats, $10 and $15.
Slacks galore—Sanforized cottons, linens, flannels, and novelties—$1.95 to $10.

U. S. SCANS WAR TO RULE BEER SALES HERE

vestigating the outrages. Park will return tomorrow.

Two holes in the screen door of the Italian's drinking place told detectives that Impellicceiri had been shot to death by a gunman who had summoned him to his door.

The little that police know about Impellicceiri's end was told by Mamie Cignot, 31, a domestic, who said that her employer had been shot while she was in the basement kitchen drinking beer.

Her story that two men and a woman were drinking with Impellicceiri a few moments before his death brought about the arrest of Alfred Scarfo, 36, and his wife, Frances, of Kuhn street, Mt. Washington, and Patsy Romano, of West Main street, Carnegie.

FRIENDLY PARTY

They admitted drinking with Impellicceiri, but said they left the victim in a good humor shortly before midnight. The Scarfos and Romano separated in front of the Southern avenue address, Mrs. Scarfo said. Police arrested Romano, a mill worker, as he entered his Carnegie home.

The trio's story dovetails with the one told by Mamie Cignot. She said Impellicceiri entertained the trio with music of his guitar. She said:

"I left the four of them at the table, and I could hear the guitar in the basement. A moment later the music stopped and I heard the cash register bell. The music began again, then stopped. A second later I heard two loud reports. I thought they were firecrackers, and I didn't know they were shots until I saw him in the doorway."

In Mt. Washington Police Court today Scarfo and Romano were turned over to the homicide squad. Scarfo's wife is to be questioned later.

Impellicceiri was well known to police. At the Mt. Washington station it was reported that he had been under arrest on several occasions for selling intoxicants.

He had felt the pressure of the rackets before. Two years ago his home, 428 Williams street, was torn apart by a bomb. Investigation threw no light on the bombing at that time.

He leaves his wife and two sons, Dominic, 19, and Louis, Jr., 17.

ROADHOUSE BOMBED

While city detectives were probing a price war in the 3.2 beer traffic that sent a stone with a threatening note attached through the window of Leonard J. Krzywicki, 3202 Brereton avenue, county detectives were investigating the bombing of the roadhouse of Mrs. Emma Lachovich, in Moo Township.

Mrs. Lackovich, Henrietta Popp and Peggy Farreller were thrown from their beds when the bomb rocked the place. The dining room was damaged.

County Detective Sam Riddle learned the bomb was fashioned out of two sticks of dynamite. He was told by neighbors that an automobile had pulled up to the house and then sped away, shortly before the bomb exploded.

Mrs. Lakovich, whose place was bombed some time ago, blamed "competition."

When Krzywicki opened his wholesale beer place for business early yesterday morning he found the window broken, and inside he picked up a rock to which the following note was attached:

DISGUISED AS WOMAN

Miss Sophie Izmienniewski, who lives on the second floor, told police she saw the missile thrown by a man dressed in women's clothing, who had alighted from an automobile.

Krzywicki blamed the threat on his sale of 50 cases of beer at $1.70 a case a week ago. In the future, Krzywicki said, no reduction on the prevailing price of $1.80 would be made.

He declined to offer detectives suggestions regarding the source of the threat.

The Sewickley explosion destroyed the house in which Tony Molatto lived with his wife and two children. The one-story garage adjoining also was destroyed by the fire. Windows of nearby houses were shattered.

It was said an automobile was parked near the house and drove down the road immediately after the explosion. Neighbors said Molatto and his family had gone to Washington, Pa., presumably early yesterday, to visit Molatto's sister.

Fire Chief James C. Doughty estimated the damage at $4,000. Police Chief Harold Rhoades will question Molatto when he returns from Washington, he said.

An explosion and fire destroyed a two-story frame house on the Oakdale road at Treveskyn early today. The tenant, Michael Brigge, his wife and two children were absent. Firemen said there was no gas in the house. The Brigge family had lived in the place two months.

AGED OFFICER DIES IN AUTO SHOOTING

APOLLO, Pa., July 5.—A victim of his own service revolver, John Kennedy, 72, for 25 years chief of police here, is dead. Early yesterday, his forty-fourth wedding anniversary, he was shot mysteriously in an automobile. A dog he was said to be taking to the garbage plant, a mile away, to shoot, was the cause of the fatal shooting of Kennedy and the wounding of Charles Free, 20, of Apollo, according to police.

Chief Kennedy

Police said Free, an employe of E. L. Weikert, proprietor of the Hartman Hotel, and Kennedy, recently employed as a night watchman by business houses, were taking the dog to the garbage plant. It had been kept tied in the hotel cellar, police said, after complaints had been made that it had frightened some girls. Borough police said no order had been issued to kill the dog.

En route to the plant, Free told police, Kennedy decided to kill the dog in the automobile. The bullet that killed it also entered Free's left ankle. In the excitement attending the shooting of Free, the latter said, Kennedy accidentally shot himself in the left thigh and bled to death before he could be taken to a doctor. Later Free was taken to Citizens General Hospital at New Kensington, where the bullet was removed.

TEACHERS TOLD THEY'RE NOT EDUCATED

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—Teachers attending the sessions of the annual convention of the National Education Association today were told that the time was coming when "they must be educated individuals."

The statement was made by one of their own number, H. L. Donovan, president of the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers' College at Richmond, Ky., and he made it, he said, because he foresaw the dawn of a new age in which "we will think in terms of human values, rather than in terms of vast stores of material possessions for a few favored members of society who cannot consume them."

In a report to the joint commission on the emergency in education prepared for submission today by John K. Norton, of Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York, he said teachers would take an offensive rather than a defensive attitude in their fight against forces threatening education.

Prof. Norton accused what he called a small but active minority of business and financial leaders of a campaign to slash public services.

Boy Hit With Bat At Play in Park

Joseph Mallick, 14, of Warrington avenue, suffered bruises on the head when struck with a baseball bat which slipped from the hands of another boy with whom he was playing in McKinley Park yesterday. Mallick was treated at South Side Hospital.

One Story Runs Eighteen Years!

Adele Garrison's "Given in Marriage" to Be the Sequel of Her Universally Popular "Heart of a Wife"

This new sequel marks another milestone in the history of a newspaper serial that has made history. In fact, the story of this story is in itself a story with parallel. It is as far back as 1915 that the first chapter of a serial story entitled "Revelations of a Wife" began to appear under the authorship of Adele Garrison in American newspapers—a story that vividly dramatized the experiences, the sufferings and the emotions that are typical of everyday, normal people.

For nearly 18 years this story has been published continuously daily except Sunday and it has been a regular feature in the Sun-Telegraph for six years. It has been divided into 12 chapters, each a complete separate novel and each a successor to its predecessor. "Given in Marriage" will be the 13th in the series of more than 5,500 chapters, totaling 4,500,000 words.

Whether you have been following the daily installment of "Heart of a Wife" or not,

B.-L. GROUPS OUTSIDE SCOPE OF LOAN ACT

(This is the seventh of a series of articles discussing the home owners' loan act of 1933 and explaining the procedure necessary for individuals to take advantage of federal assistance to protect the ownership of their homes.)

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

The home owners' loan act will prevent the loss of many homes threatened with foreclosure but it must be realized that its effect will not extend to every case. Relief will be limited to owners of the type of property described in previous articles and all the conditions of the act must be met.

Many legal points remain to be settled in regard to the interpretation of the act.

On one important question legal advisors are generally of the same opinion. It is believed that building and loan associations in Pennsylvania will not be able to accept the bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

MANY LOSE CHANCE

Building and loan associations are closely restricted in the manner in which they can invest their funds. Attorneys are generally of the opinion that the bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which must be given in exchange for mortgages, do not constitute a legal building and loan investment.

Under certain circumstances building and loan assiciations may take over assets, which are not legal for regular investments, to provide additional security on loans which already have been made. But in such cases they retain their original liens on which the loans were made.

LOOPHOLE BARRED

Under the home owners' loan act, the original mortgage must be turned over to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. This probably bars the use of any such loop hole to permit the building and loan associations to accept the bonds.

In cases where indebtedness to a building and loan might be less than 50 per cent of the present value of properties, it is possible that cash loans might be obtained from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Under such circumstances the new act would assist home owners who are indebted to building and loan associations.

COUNTY LEADS IN AUTO TOLL

Although its fatal traffic accidents decreased 25 per cent in 1932, Allegheny County still leads counties of the state in number of persons killed in automobile mishaps, accoording to figures released today by the Highway Safety Committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club.

Philadelphia County has 20,000 more registered motor vehicles than Allegheny, yet only 213 persons died in motor accidents there last year in comparison to Allegheny's 288 deaths. In 1931, 379 persons were killed in Allegheny, or almost double the number killed in Philadelphia County. Automobile accidents totals of other counties are considerably lower than Allegheny and Philadelphia counties because car registrations and population are small by comparison.

There were 4,114 non-fatal auto accidents in Philadelphia last year, while Allegheny County reported only 3,232.

That 94 per cent of the penthouses in New York are on the ground floor. (See definition of penthouse in any dicksh.)

That a woman was hanged for the assassination of Abe Lincoln. (Her tag was Mrs. Mary E. Surratt, one of four in the plot.)

That Andrew Jackson fought more duels than any guy of his time, and that he invariably bumped off his man. Most of his scraps were fit in defense of his wife's "good honor." (After, that is, in legal error, she married him bigamously!)

That Nome, Alaska, is farther West than the Hawaiian Islands.

That now that Capone isn't living there any more, the Chicago phone directory lists his phone number for the first time.

That a saloon in Hollywood has a sensayuma. It advertises near beer as "the beer with that illegal taste."

That King George's crown has been made an inch higher, after all these years. (Gettin' the big head, eh?)

That an Ohio prison is installing an 18-hole golf course.

That some tiny watch screws are only .034 of an inch long. (We know plenty of people smaller than that.)

That in any section of New York proper, it is impossible to get more than 400 feet away from a fire alarm box.

That there are but two pawnshops in Hollywood.

That Richard Bennett's wire-haired terrier has to have its coffee every morning—but with sugar and cream!

That a Boston journalist predicts that 100 years hence, kissing will be eliminated. (And I thought my worries had gone!)

That Graham McNamee, whose blunders are famous, tells interviewers that the best way to succeed in radio announcing is (1) Be brief. (2) Be accurate. (3) And be sure! (Uh-huh.)

That the nicest compliment you can pay Harpo Marx is this fact: He has read every book you see in his house! (And not "both of 'em!")

That Italy requires all talkies to be made in Italian.

That at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, they won't marry you unless you are sober. No other place in Mexico is that fussy.

That one commentator just asserted that Jimmy Durante has become high-hat. (Wager any odds you like Jimmy isn't!!) The same knocker said Jimmy didn't help his former stage partners. Didn't help? Clayton is his manager at fancy commissions!!!!

That the biggest executives in Hollywood are easy to spot. They're the ones whose desks have nothing on them but inkwells.

That Robert Cloud, a red cap at the Grand Central Station (N. Y.), has written words and tunes to 30 ditties.

That the Russian alphabet has 36 letters. (Correct, Alec?)

That Woollcott says he would like to know the origin of the word "phony." Well, no dictionary is certain, either. The first time we heard it was in 1916, long before Al Smith helped popularize baloney." In 1916 Broadwayites would say: "That's a lotta phony-baloney!"

That on the streets in Hollywood, Garbo excites no interest. (Unless, of course you're an autograph half-wit.)

Siren Types Scarce in Studios

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 5.—Siren types used to be plentiful in Hollywood, but, to hear Fox, there's an acute shortage just now.

After a two months' search, they have signed Carole Lombard to play the lead in "The Worst Woman In Paris."

The filling of this part has given the studio more grief than selecting the complete cast of any two normal pictures. Almost every actress in Hollywood has been under consideration at one time or another.

First it was Jean Harlow, then it was Myrna Loy. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wouldn't loan its platinum-haired sensation and Myrna became sick just before the picture was supposed to begin. Betweentimes, attempts had been made to sign up Tallulah Bankhead, Claudette Colbert, Kay Francis and Ann Dvorak. Even Mary Astor, who is scarcely a siren type, was once mentioned for the role.

Miss Lombard

Director Monta Bell is prayerfully hoping that Carole will keep her health, so he can start the cameras grinding at last.

* * *

The picture, "Gabriel Over the White House," was showing in London and he attended a performance. If you recall, at the climax of the film, a character comes in and says: "The President is dead."

This scene flashed on the screen, faded out and then, as in all English theaters, the orchestra began to play "God Save the King."

* * *

Quaint are the ways of picture-making. The other day Warners took a troupe ("Wild Boys of the Road") over to photograph scenes in an actual hobo "jungle." The real wayfarers objected so they were paid $1 each to stay out of the way. Then a group of Hollywood extras (some getting $5 a day) stepped in and played the scene.

There's much talk out here over La Garbo's increasingly frequent public appearances. In company with Rouben Mamoulian, she made her latest the other night at the Long Beach preview of "Berkeley Square."

Miss Garbo

Fox writers, players too, are inclined to grumble because a studio ruling forbids the sale of the new beer at the commissary on the lot. Rumor has it that officials think beer at noon makes employes sleepy . . . You ought to see the nursery in the Bing Crosby home. It's as big as the living room. Incidentally, Bing's younger brother, Bob, sings with the Anson Week's Orchestra in San Francisco.

Ruth Selwyn is not away from Hollywood because of any marital rift, says Edgar Selwyn, but to get acting experience in a Spring Lake (New Jersey) stock company. She's playing second leads in support of Katherine Alexander. Selwyn says she will be returning to Hollywood before long . . . W. S. Van Dyke vouches that Nome, Alaska, is farther west than the Hawaiian Islands, and that Reno, Nev., is west of Los Angeles.

Did you know: That Sharon Lynne (then Sharon Lindsey) used to be a song plugger in a local music shop owned by Jackie Cooper's father?

DORIS KENYON AS MME. POMPADOUR IN THE NEW GEORGE ARLISS PICTURE, "VOLTAIRE"

Star Guild Presents 'Honeymoon'

"Honeymoon," a comedy about a young couple's misunderstandings and reconciliations on a trip to Paris, was presented by the Stage Guild Monday at the Willows, as the second play of its series of summer dramatic productions, to be given twice weekly every other week. The second staging of the comedy will take place tomorrow night in the same place.

Elizabeth Drake has the leading role in "Honeymoon," the cast of which also includes Alexander Kann, Chester B. Story, Robert Wilson and Marjorie Macqueen.

FILM PROGRAM IN WEST PARK

A series of Wednesday evening free movies in city parks will be inaugurated tonight in West Park, North Side, sponsored by the Socialist party in co-operation with the motion picture bureau of the Y. M. C. A. The program will start at 9 p. m.

The programs will be educational in nature, consisting of industrial films supplemented by travel pictures and outdoor sports.

Bills Coming Friday

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow have the leading roles in "Hold Your Man," photoplay opening Friday in the Penn. Miss Harlow has the idea of living through "vamping," but she falls in love with Gable and it becomes dramatic when he has to leave town in a hurry.

* * *

"The Story of Temple Drake" opens Friday in the Stanley with Miriam Hopkins, Jack LaRue and Irving Pichel in the principal roles. Miss Hopkins plays the part of the daughter of a wealthy man who has a strange wild streak.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Patricia Ellis supply the love romance in "The Narrow Corner," one feature in the Sheridan Square Friday. The second feature will be "Professional Sweetheart" with Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster.

'The King of Jazz,' With Bing Crosby, in Fulton

By MILDRED FILLMORE

The popularity of musical films, which have taken on a new lease of life recently, after a total eclipse of such pictures that has endured for several years, is reflected in the revival of "The King of Jazz," now showing in the Fulton. It is a review that critics liked on its original presentation, but it appeared just at the time when the public was tiring of such films, so it was withdrawn. Taste having veered the other way, it is now being presented again, with some omissions to speed up the action.

It is entirely in natural color, and was directed by John Murray Anderson, who staged the several Greenwich Village Follies, noted for their novelty and artistic effects.

Among those seen in the cast, a veritable galaxy of radio, stage and screen stars, are Paul Whiteman and his artists, Bing Crosby, Jeanie Lang, Jeannette Loff, Brox Sisters, John Boles, Charles Irwin, the Sisters G, Russell Merkert Dancers and many others.

It is an elaborate production of specialties and novelties among which is a dramatized version of "Rhapsoody in Blue," by Whiteman and his band boys.

Colleen

Marion Davies is an Irish lass who inherits wealth in "Peg O' My Heart," film of famous play, now showing in Enright.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Perfect Crime.

IF YOU had been driving close enough to catch a glimpse of the man's face, you would have sworn that he was a madman. Certainly, his actions were anything but rational, to say the least. As he bent over the wheel of his car, his face was now fiendish in triumphant glee. Now set in sharp lines. Sometimes he chuckled. Sometimes his hands shook so that he could hardly hold the wheel.

You would have been at a loss to understand all this yet it wasn't exactly strange, considering that Rufus Bell had just killed a man. Not accidentally. Not in the heat of a sudden rage. He had committed the murder cooly, along lines that had been carefully thought out weeks before.

He tried to reassure himself.

He told himself that there wasn't the faintest clue that it was he who had killed Dunmore. Dunmore, the shyster lawyer, whose corpse was now in the bottom of the river miles away.

Hatred shook him now, crowding out his terror. He had a mental picture of the man who had fostered the secret of Bell's one indiscretion. But for Dunmore, he would have been in prison long ago. And but for Dunmore, he would have been thousands of dollars wealthier. For years, Dunmore had blackmailed him, had played with him in cat-and-mouse fashion. For years Bell's hatred had festered and he had waited, not too patiently, until at last his chance had come.

The events of the past few hours flashed before him. Two days ago the lawyer had been disbarred. His disbarment was followed shortly by his wife's desertion. What more convincing motives for suicide? Bell knew that he would never have a more opportune time for the murder he had been planning.

He had taken his car from the garage that afternoon. He had mentioned deliberately that he was going out of town immediately. Then he had parked in a back street until Dunmore left his office shortly after dark. Bell followed him until the other man turned into a deserted street. Ascertaining that there was no one about, he drew alongside and invited Dunmore to ride with him.

The car sped along to the outskirts of the town, reached the river road and suddenly developed engine trouble. The lawyer obligingly offered to get out and investigate. As he bent over to raise the hood, a heavy instrument fell against his skull.

Dunmore was not a large man, and Bell was a strong one. After weighting the unconscious man's pockets with heavy stones, he lifted him to his shoulders. One motion, and the body of the lawyer had plunged into the dark water.

It was perfect, Bell reassured himself again and again. There had been no one about to witness the deed. The darkness had shielded his actions. Without a doubt the body wouldn't be recovered for days. Then Dunmore's disgrace and the loss of his wife would surely point to suicide.

And he, Bell, would not be there. As he had advised the garage mechanic, he was going away for a while. He would not return until the affair had blown over. He had legitimate business in another state, of which fact his employes were aware in case of questioning.

Yet sometimes his hands shook so that he could hardly hold the wheel. Sometimes his face set in sharp lines. Then it would grow fiendish in triumphant glee. Now he would chuckle.

He had but one desire; to get out of the state quickly, and as far away as possible. But he could not understand his nervousness. He had taken care of everything. He was sure of that. And yet—suppose he had slipped somewhere? He began to shudder violently.

He was nearing the state line now, passing through small towns that were but deserted streets and darkened stores and houses

He should be happy. The lawyer's death, for which he had longed so many years, was now an actual fact. But that horrible doubt wracked him. Had he taken care of everything?

The last town before he reached the state line. A larger town than the rest. More traffic. More people about. He didn't like that.

Then, suddenly, came a sound that turned his blood to ice. It was a police whistle. He did not stop, but bent lower, gripping the wheel more tightly than before. The car shot forward. Through the town it raced at breakneck speed, out into the open spaces of a country road.

In the mirror above him, he could see that he was being followed. There was no mistaking that automobile. It was a police car. He pressed the accelerator closer to the floor, and yet the police car gained on him. He could distinguish the uniforms of the two officers in the front seat.

The road swirled in front of him as his thoughts beat against his brain. He had slipped somewhere. Or, in spite of his precaution, someone had seen him.

If they caught him—as they surely would, for they were gaining on him by inches—he shuddered as he thought of what it would mean. Trial for murder, and the electric chair. He grew mad in his desire for more speed.

There was a treacherous curve in the road not many yards ahead, but he did not see it. There was a steep banking that dropped two or three hundred feet on the other side of the white fence, but he didn't know that.

The car raced straight ahead. The white fence at the road curve was smashed into splinters And Rufus Bell's car shot out into space and then whirled sickeningly several times before it came to rest at the bottom of the ledge, utterly demolished.

The police officers who had followed him climbed carefully down the banking, and dragged his lifeless body from under the mass of steel. But Rufus Bell was beyond any human help then.

The younger of the two officers was new on the force. This was his first major accident. He was more or less shaken as he began to make out his report.

"Joe," he asked, and scratched his head in puzzled fashion, "what do you suppose made him do it? I mean race away like that?"

"He might of got a ticket, but that wouldn't be anything compared to this. Sneaking over the line at a crossing before the red light changes don't carry more'n a five dollar fine." . . .

JUDGES HUNT PRIZE MENU ENTRIES

The judges in the third week's Sun-Telegraph-Prudence Penny $100 weekly cash prize dinner menu contest are again wading through hundreds of entries submitted by ambitious housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity. That the interest in the contest is growing is disclosed in the number of menus sent in, totaling many more than in either Contest No. 1 or No. 2.

The judges say there is still a marked improvement in the general makeup of the menus that the women following suggestions and models offered by the publication of the early prize winners have a better slant on the real idea behind the contest. It is probable the names of the winners in Contest No. 3 will be ready for publication Friday.

NEW CONTEST ON

In the meantime Contest No. 4 is on and offers $100 in weekly prizes for the best entries on the question:

"Can four persons be served with a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?"

Entries for this week's contest—the fourth—must be submitted before next Tuesday at midnight. Every housewife in the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph is invited to participate in this contest. On another page of the Sun-Telegraph today there is a set of rules and an entry blank. There is no limit to the number of entries any one woman may send in and if additional entry blanks are desired they may be obtained without cost at Kroger's, Butler's, McGann's, Donahoe's Triangle or Clover Farms Stores.

PRIZE MENUS

Mrs. A. V. Crouch, of 408 Pershing drive, New Kensington, took seventeenth prize with this meal:

SOVIET CREWS HELD AS SPIES

TOKIO, July 5.—(INS.)—Another spy scare today enlivened Soviet-Japenese relations precarious since Japanese military operations in Manchuria and Northern China began.

The latest incident was revealed in reports stating Japanese authorities were detaining two Soviet ships and their crews in the Kurile Islands on suspicion of espionage.

The spy scare follows a series of mutual apologies between the governments. The Soviet government on Monday apologized for the killing of three Japanese fishermen by Soviet guards in Kamchatka and the Japanese government apologized for action of a "patriot" for wrecking the office of the Soviet commercial attache here with a huge sword.

Aliquippa Man Shot During Argument

Shot in the abdomen during an argument, Charles Berry, 35, Negro, of Fifth avenue, Aliquippa, was reported in a critical condition today in the Rochester General Hospital. Jack Chapman, 36, Negro, of 700 Grove street, Aliquippa, was held by police for questioning.

Pittsburgh Lawyer Slated for U. S. Post

Robert L. Vann, publisher of the Pittsburgh Courier, Negro newspaper, will be named special assistant attorney general as a reward for swinging the Negro vote in Western Pennsylvania to the Democratic party in the last presidential election, it was learned today.

He will be the first Negro to hold such an office in a Democratic administration.

Gold Coast 'Castle' Returns to Palmers

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—The old Potter Palmer "castle," landmark along Chicago's "gold coast," was back in the Palmer family again after having passed through two different owners.

A deal was completed yesterday whereby Potter Palmer, Jr., acquired it from the syndicate that bought it from Vincent Bendix who paid Palmer $3,000,000 for it in 1928. It is planned to convert the structure into a hotel.

HONOR FOSTER IN KENTUCKY

BARDSTOWN, Ky., July 5.—(AP.)—A massed chorus of 3,000 voices sang "My Old Kentucky Home" and other melodies of Stephen Collins Foster in tribute to the Pennsylvania composer at My Old Kentucky Home State Park here yesterday. Approximately 8,000 attended the exercises.

Cale Young Price, Kentucky poet, and former Senator A. O. Stanley were the principal speakers. A parade with floats depicting scenes of pioneer days preceded the program.

Rice said:

"Had not Stephen Foster left home in Pittsburgh and wandered down to a Kentucky home, the world would have lost one of its most appealing songs."

Stanley said Foster was "enshrined in the heart of every Kentuckian, and his songs will live as long as there are men and women to regard a Kentucky home as the dearest spot on earth."

Foster wrote his most famed song while visiting at Federal Hill, near Bardstown. The home and grounds are now preserved as a state park.

INSULL BROTHER FILES APPEAL

TORONTO, Ontario, July 5.—(AP.)—An appeal was entered yesterday on behalf of Martin J. Insull, wanted in Illinois on extradition proceedings, against the decision of Justice J. C. Kingstone in refusing to grant an order for appointment of a commission to take testimony in the United States.

Insull's return to the United States is sought on charges in connection with the collapse of utility interests in which he and his brother, Samuel, were interested.

Justice Kingstone had expressed doubt as to whether he had authority to send a commission to take testimony in a foreign country on an extradition warrant although he was empowered to hear testimony if the witnesses appeared before him here.

WIFE OF P. R. R. OFFICIAL DIES

PARIS, July 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elisha Lee, 56, of Philadelphia, died in a hospital here yesterday after a short illness.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elisha Lee was the wife of Elisha Lee, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

She left here June 24 in good health with her son, Elisha Lee, Jr., for a short vacation in Europe, and arrived in France last Saturday. Word came to Mr. Lee here yesterday that she was taken to the hospital for an emergency operation which was performed Monday.

She is survived by another son, J. Latimer Lee, and a daughter, Mrs. Grevill E. Haslam, both of Philadelphia.

Man Hurt in Fight At Picnic; One Held

John Palko, 35, of 132 Second avenue, Homestead, was in a serious condition today in the Homestead Hospital with a probable fractured skull suffered, police said, in a fight late yesterday at a picnic in Smith's Grove, New Homestead. Andrew Laca, 35, of 303 Sherman avenue, Whitaker, was held on a suspicious person charge, according to police.

CHILD'S WORDS TRAP FATHER

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP.)—Three little words of his 4-year-old son caused the arrest of Dominick Piccola in the hatchet slaying of his wife.

Piccola ran into a police station yesterday and reported he found his wife's body after he returned from a picnic.

In a routine investigation, detectives questioned the 41-year-old unemployed machinist's two small children. The youngest, Nicholas, told them that "Papa hit mamma."

Piccola was held for questioning, and later police announced he confessed he killed his wife after a quarrel about her "going out nights."

Volunteer Firemen To Parade at Fair

A parade of visiting firemen will feature tonight's session of the annual fair being held by East McKeesport Fire Company No. 2 on the grounds adjoining the fire station.

McKeesport Man Hurt in Fall Dies

Thomas Atwater, 87, of 721 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, died yesterday in his home from injuries suffered when he fell on the floor Saturday, according to a Coroner's report.

FORMER MAYOR OF NOME DIES

Harry H. Campbell, of Morgantown, W. Va., the first mayor of Nome, Alaska, died yesterday in the West Penn Hospital. He had been ill a short time.

Mr. Campbell went to Nome in the early days of the Klondike gold rush and was selected mayor of the newly founded settlement of gold prospectors and traders. He returned to his Morgantown home when the rush ended.

Later he became a glass worker and was employed for 40 years by the Morgantown Glass Company. He leaves his widow and five children, one of whom, Robert C. Campbell, lives at 1306 Sandusky street. He will be buried in Morgantown.

JAPAN LOOKING TO PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., July 5.—(INS.)—"Japan is not large enough to shelter its inhabitants and must seek accommodations elsewhere."

Dr. Yasahi Hijiata, head of a party of Japanese peers visiting the Phillippine Islands, made this statement today before sailing for Tokio. He added:

"I am confident that the Japanese who reside in the Philippines and those who come later will receive the protection they deserve from the government of the Philippines.

"We'll encourage Japanese emigration to the Philippines as the best method of bettering commercial relations."

Members of the delegation did not mention their stand on the Hawes - Cutting independence measure passed by the Congress of the United States, but left no doubt that they expected Japan to play a major role in the development of the islands.

FOSTER LIFE STORY -:- Lombardo, Waring, Olsen, Bernie -:- ON RADIO TONIGHT

'Perfect Day' Composer On Air

Highlights in the life of Stephen C. Foster, drawn from John Tasker Howard's biography of the Pittsburgh-born folksong composer and adapted for radio presentation by the author, are reenacted in a new weekly series of dramatic-musical sketches opening on NBC-WCAE tonight at 8:30.

Coincident with the one hundred and seventh observance yesterday of Foster's birth, the initial episode deals with the writing of "Tioga Waltz," his first known composition, and of its premiere at a church entertainment in Athens, Pa., in April, 1841.

The data for the series have been drawn from hundreds of family letters, Foster's own account books and notes, newspapers and interviews with Foster's daughter, Mrs. Marian Foster Welch, who now, more than 80, resides in Pittsburgh.

* * *

Three other ace bills are plotted for dialing music lovers tonight, the first, on WJAS at 8:30, being a microphone appearance by Carrie Jacobs Bond, composer of "A Perfect Day," as Kate Smith's guest. The entire program, dedicated to Mrs. Bond, is made up of "memory" songs of the nineties.

Music in the Air

Marking the Venezuelan National Holiday, the United States Army Band's sixty-seventh Pan-American concert goes on NBC-KDKA at 10 p. m. with short-wave facilities transmitting to South America. Senor Leopoldo Gutierrez, Chilean baritone, is soloist.

Nine p. m on the same net brings an extra Lewisohn Stadium concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in the recently inaugurated Tuesday-Saturday summer series.

Bach's "Choralvorspiel," arranged for string orchestra, is highspotted by Frank Black on KDKA at 7:30...and on the 8:15 WJAS show, "Curtain Calls," bits from Planquette's romantic operetta, "Chimes of Normandy," are offered.

Audience opinion as to the stigma of murder in the case of the Greek refugee who slew his own child while fleeing from the Turks is aired by the Voice of Experience via WJAS at 8 p. m.

Bob Trout, CBS Presidential announcer, does a "Meet the Artist" appearance on WJAS at 6...Fred Waring's weekly radio show moves into New York's Carnegie Hall tonight, going on the air before an audience of 3,000.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen.

Here is a warning to the boys in Sheraden. Some of the residents are not sympathetic to some of the boyish pranks. Hurling torpedoes at the front door of the woman on Bergaman street gave her a bad scare. Her friends resent such Fourth of July demonstrations. They are not going to do anything about it, but they don't want incidents like that to happen again. How about it, kids? I told her over the phone that it wouldn't.

"So I reached into my vest pocket to get a match and found a bird's nest full of little birds."

Many of you saw Lya Graf, the midget who sprang to fame with her leap on the lap of J. Pierpont Morgan, but later was pictured on the knee of a newspaper reporter, at the circus.

Dexter Fellowes, universally acclaimed big top press agent, said he was in Newark at the time this daring publicity stunt was engineered. Although he received editorial praise from New York papers and the congratulations of many of his profession, he once more denies that it was his masterful touch.

C. A. Duvall, Monessen—The office of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation hasn't been opened yet. Plans are under way. The Sun-Telegraph will keep you informed.

Cinderella Play On Station WFBG

"A Preferred Blonde," a true "modern Cinderella" play based on an article published in the next issue of the American Weekly, will be presented over Station WFBG, Altoona, tomorrow at 3 p. m. Suzanne Caubaye, noted French actress, has the principle role.

The American Weekly is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

B. A. Rolfe Returning To Old Spot on Chain

By AGNES P. M'GILLICUDDY
(Aircaster's Involuntary Stooge.)

It's like I always says to my gentleman friend, you can't tell me that it's women who make up their minds on the spur of the moment. The men are all alike; you never know what to expect, although I might have known that with the Glorious Fourth and all, Aircaster would expect me to hold down the job while he ups and decides on a two-week vacation.

I don't know where Aircaster gets his information, and sometimes I warn him that he is too quick on the trigger, shoting stuff so far in advance, but I found out that when he said the Thursday hour left vacant by Jack Pearl and filled by the Perkins show, would probably be taken by B. A. Rolfe, for a tire company, he was right.

Rolfe auditioned Monday for that tire concern. Which is a funny thing, because the Rolfe band then will have the Thursday and Saturday hours identical with those he used to fill for the cigaret outfit.

I was sorry to hear the news which M. H. Aylesworth, president of the N. B. C., received Saturday night. His father, Dr. Barton O. Aylesworth, died in a Denver hospital. The elder Aylesworth was 73 years old, and for Aircaster, I wish to extend sympathy to "Deac."

Well, even if I have been left suddenly at the switch maybe things won't be so bad, because at the rate some of the people imposed upon this year for writing pieces during his absence are responding, maybe this column will pick up a bit.

Among those who are writing columns for Aircaster are Louis Joseph Vance, the famous novelist, who writes a very nice column, indeed, and John B. Kennedy, who, Aircaster has often said, turns out the niftiest phrases you ever heard, and maybe the great Roxy and John P. Medbury.

Kaufman Yields To 'Century' Game

In deference to network broadcasts of the Century of Progress "Baseball Game of the Century," at 2 p. m. tomorrow, the 2:15 WCAE-WJAS news broadcast by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, has been cancelled for that day only.

His flashes today are aired at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. over both stations.

Seals Will Offer Swimmer and Coach

Junior Patrol In Variety Program

Snuggins, Spike and Percival, aided and abetted by Uncle Ted and eight more embryo entertainers from the Junior Patrol ranks, present 30 minutes of variety during their weekly broadcast over WCAE at 4:45 today. Directed by Miss Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, the program is as follows:

Snuggins, Spike and Percival.
Uncle Ted.
Violin solo—Estrellita. Manuel A. Ponce
Theodore Grafel.
Folk Song.

BOGGS & BUHL JULY CLEARANCE

A store-wide clearance in which practically every department takes an active part. Odd and surplus lots are sacrificed with scant regard for profit. And bear in mind that these reductions are on THIS YEAR'S selling prices—already down to the lowest levels in years. In the face of a rising market, this clearance affords an opportunity to supply wanted merchandise at prices without parallel. These are but examples.

There's to be another horse show this season—the Heath Manor Horse Show on Patterson Heights, Beaver Falls, Pa., Saturday, at Heath Manor, home of Mrs. Clifford H. Beegle. And in addition to the usual horse show classes there'll be a Gymkhana class—musical stalls.

And that's not all—before the horse show there'll be a pageant—Chaucer's "Canterbury Pilgrims"—to start at 1:30 o'clock.

Among those who'll be in the pageant are James M. Barrett, Verner Boggs, Eugene S. Hoopes, Willard Colbert, Wayne Young, Earl Beranger, Marjorie Rhinhart, Henry Klein, Herman Paffart, John Locke, Ray Myers, Nelson Kennedy, Robert Miller, Mortimer Ashton, Bob Harold, Kay Ryan, Cliff Beegle, Mrs. Cliff Beegle, Bill Groner and Clyde Stone.

Aides in Costume

Among them are Edith Dando, Ruth Winter, Martha Glover, Martha McCue and Eleanor Wise. And charming young Martha Louise Aiken, of New Brighton, Pa., is doing publicity for the show.

All 29 characters in Chaucer's Prologue will be there, garbed in Fourteenth Century costumes. Each year more Pittsburghers go to Beaver for the show. Of course many of them have summer homes on Patterson Heights.

A romantic moonlight boat ride down the Ohio River is planned for Monday night by Mrs. William Booth Trainer, of Ridge avenue, and Mrs. Clinton L. Childs, of Sewickley. The affair will be a Dutch treat. A river boat has been chartered and will leave Pittsburgh at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, stopping at Sewickley to take on passengers from there. And there is to be an orchestra for dancing, and bridge parties, and the folks will not return until hours after midnight.

Evelyn Bitner Betrothed to C.H. Pearson

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bitner, of Beechwood boulevard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Bitner, to Carl Henry Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel S. Pearson, of Green street, Homestead Park.

Miss Bitner is a graduate of Pennsylvania College for Women, and her fiance attended the University of Pittsburgh.

Helen Griffith, Michigan Man Married

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Griffith, of Voelkel avenue, Dormont, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Marjorie Griffith, to Herbert Spencer Hertzler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Hertzler, of Glennie, Mich. The Rev. Dr. U. Franklin Smiley, of the Dormont Presbyterian Church, officiated, in the presence of the families and a few close friends, at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning in the Griffith home.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Eva Jane Griffith, and Honor Hutchison, of Smithville, O., was his cousin's best man.

After the reception and wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Hertzler left on an extended wedding trip. They will be at home August 1 in Harrisville, Mich., where the bridegroom is District Attorney.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State Normal College and attended Norwestern University and Carnegie Tech, and for the past three years has been supervisior of music and art in the East Huntington schools. The bridegroom, also a graduate of Michigan State Normal College, is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law and a member of Sigma Alpha Delta, Pi Kappa Delta and Sigma Delta Kappa.

Miss Celia Fingeret Weds Isaac Oberman

Mr. and Mrs. Max Fingeret, of Northumberland street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Celia Fingeret, to Isaac Oberman, of Titusville, Pa., which was solemnized on Sunday in the study of the Beth Shalom Synagogue. Officiating was Rabbi Goodman A. Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Oberman will reside in North Drake street, Titusville.

Squirrel Hill, East End Girls Engaged to Wed

Among the engagements announced over the week end was that of Miss Laura Eger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Eger, of Murray avenue, to Bernard Fredland, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Fredland, of Waldron street. The announcement was made at a dinner in the Eger home.

Mrs. Lewis E. Glassner, of Burchfield avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Pearl Glassner, to Benjamin Langer Weisman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weisman, of Black street.

Another betrothal which was announced was that of Miss Louise Friedlander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Friedlander, of Wightman street, East End, to Harry G. Isaacs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Isaacs, of Beacon street. Mr. and Mrs. Friedlander will hold a reception Sunday evening in honor of their daughter and her fiance.

Home of Good Shepherd Boat Ride on July 25

The annual boat ride for the benefit of the Home of the Good Shepherd, Troy Hill, will be held July 25, on the steamer Washington. Mrs. Clara B. Sauter is chairman.

Three Cabin Mates Meet First Time Since War

Three women who have not seen each other since they sailed together for war work overseas met by accident yesterday at the annual convention of the Women's Overseas Service League. They are Lila Stillman Lynch, of Pittsburgh; Florence Haines, of Newark, N. J., and Edith Tallent, of Columbus, who occupied the same stateroom on a 16-day crossing. A flu epidemic on board the ship delayed it and Miss Tallent was left ill in Liverpool. None of the trio has ever attended a national convention until this one.

Yesterday was service day at the convention, which is being held at the Hotel Schenley. Service reports in the morning showed the wide scope of peace activities followed by these former war workers. One unit reported that three pigs had been bought and fattened and sold to finance its work and another unit told of buying a sheep which it rented as a living lawn mower to families in the neighborhood.

The service luncheon was held in the Twentieth Century Club with Judge Sara Soffel speaking on service and Dr. Henry Rolf Brown, of the Veterans' Hospital, telling of the need for peace work in maintaining the morale of hospitalized veterans.

Reunions of those who had worked together overseas marked the afternoon and last night groups who had seen service together in Paris held an informal dinner at the Schenley. One interesting group at luncheon yesterday consisted of Miss Fanny Eales, of Los Angeles, who was head of the research department of the central record office, American Red Cross, the only woman in France who knew the movements of the American Army 24 hours in advance; Miss Ruth Townley, who had charge of Red Cross canteens at Bourges; Mrs. Eve Hammond Grieve, an army nurse who was twice decorated for volunteering on gangrene cases, and Mrs. Lila Lynch, who was regional entertainment secretary.

This morning the Pittsburgh unit's three honorary members, Mrs. Ralph Harbison, Mrs. James MacFarlane and Mrs. William Watson Smith, gave a breakfast in honor of the delegates. This afternoon Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is entertaining at tea in the College Club and tonight the visitors will be taken for a cruise down the Ohio aboard the Washington.

Miss Meredith Groom Weds John C. Sterrit

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Groom, of Liberty, Mo., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Meredith Groom, and John C. Sterritt, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Sterrett, of Bellevue, which took place Saturday in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington.

Miss Katherine B. Sterrett and John C. Reed were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Sterritt will live in Washington.

Plant and Flower Guild Opens Station in Nixon

Pittsburgh Branch, National Fruit, Plant and Flower Guild, opened its summer station in the Nixon Theater lobby this morning, with Miss Helena Beegle in charge. The station will be open each morning during the summer. Mrs. Harry G. Samson, executive chairman of the branch, is spending the summer at Point Chautauqua.

GOSSIPY CHAT

By NANCY JANE

Young Robert Colgan Schmertz, Jr., son of the Robert Colgan Schmertzes, of Coraopolis, feels that he's a full-fledged Izaak Waltoner.

While he and his little sister, Mary Caroline, were visiting their grandparents, the Louis R. Schmertzes, of Ligonier, their grandmother took them to Idlewild Park. And young Bobbie, after hours of patient fishing, caught one. But he had to throw it back in the stream for it was "out of season" for that particular kind of fish.

But the next week he had better luck—he caught two that he could take home. And he was very proud.

His grandmother has one of the loveliest gardens roundabout, by the way. And spends much of her time working in it.

All the younger set members in Sewickley while in the Village or in the Heights are going barelegged this summer. It's cooler and it's a big help to those greedy for sun-tan.

Mary Elizabeth Floyd boasts the most gorgeous sun-tan I've seen this season. Her back and shoulders and arms are deeply and evenly tanned.

Literary and Musical Club Committees Named

Mrs. Ben G. Graham, president of the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club, will be assisted next year by the club's customary committees, program, social and reception.

On the program committee are Mrs. H. W. Golden, Mrs. William Swift and Mrs. C. E. Dornbush. The social committee includes Mrs. William B. Epley, Miss Lettea C. Donaldson, Mrs. J. Freeman Guy, Mrs. Harvey R. Owens and Mrs. H. P. McKown, and on the reception committee are serving Mrs. W. M. Davidson, Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, who is also the musical director; Mrs. Sims, Mrs. R. G. Himmelrich and Miss Grace Swan.

B.P.W. Convention Theme Will Be Leadership

"Training for Leadership" will be the recurrent theme at the biennial convention for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs which will attract thousands of business and professional women from all parts of the United States to Chicago July 9-15.

"Training for Leadership Through Education and Professional Standards" will be emphasized at a two-day institute of occupations, Monday and Tuesday, at the Hotel Stevens, convention headquarters, with experts from 30 widely diversified vocational fields as speakers.

"Training for Leadership Through Public Relations" will be stressed on Wednesday at a public relations luncheon at which Judge Florence E. Allen, of Cleveland, first and only woman Supreme Court justice, and Dr. Frank Bohn, of New York City, noted economist, will be speakers. "The Contribution of Men's and Women's Service Organizations to the Coming Social Order" will be the specific theme. Miss Elizabeth K. Eckert, of Chicago, will preside and Mrs. George W. Reinecke, former collector of internal revenue, will be toastmistress.

"Training Through International Relations and Through Government" will be dual themes on Thursday, July 13.

Only Three Presidents Rule Over Chautauqua Club in 45 Years

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Several factors in its history, management and procedure give the Chautauqua Woman's Club a distinctive place in the club world. The club is 45 years old. It has had but three presidents, Mrs. Emily Huntingdon Miller, one of the founders who was a relative of Louis Miller, one of Chautauqua Institution's founders; Mrs. B. T. Vincent, sister-in-law of Bishop Vincent, who served from 1896 to 1916, and Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, the incumbent, who also is honorary president of the General Federation of Women's' Clubs and a trustee of Chautauqua Institution.

In 1917 the club owned no property whatsoever; the dues are only $1 a year yet in 1918 the present location on the lake front was bought for $8,000 and a beautiful colonial home was built and furnished at a cost of $30,000. Three scholarships have been established, one for each of the presidents. The Emily Huntingdon Miller scholarship was endowed by Mrs. Thomas A. Edison; the Mrs. Vincent scholarship was taken from the club treasury and the Mrs. Pennybacker scholarship is the income from $2,000 which was presented to the Institution to mark the tenth anniversary of Mrs. Pennybacker's presidency.

The club gave $3,500 from its treasury as a nucleus for the building fund for the woman's dormitory; it raised approximately $45,000 for the Chautauqua endowment fund and contributed from the treasury $3,000 to finance half the expense of the Chautauqua biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and every year it contributes at least $100 on "old first night" to the institution.

Leading women from all over the country are at Chautauqua for the sessions which opened Monday and will continue for six weeks. Many Pitsburgh women are interested and active members of the organization. Mrs. William H. Alexander of Monongahela and Miss Mary Louis Succop, of Castleman street, have both been vice presidents from Pennsylvania. Mrs. S. M. Palmer, of Davis avenue, North Side, is acting treasurer, Miss Lide Kerr Wilson, assistant treasurer and Mrs. John S. Craig, of Aiken avenue, is a director.

Quota Club Card Party Hostesses Announced

Dr. Lillian P. Shook, Miss Margaret Greeley and Miss Frances McKillopp will be hostesses Saturday for the card party which the Quota Club will have at Spear's.

Tomorrow the John Brashcar Sisterhood of the Dames of Malta will meet at Spear's for a bridge tea with Mrs. Ruth King, Mrs. Mabel Schaffer, Mrs. Florence Dollar and Mrs. Florence Slaney as hostesses, and on Thursday the Oakland Women's Club will have a party there.

Angelina Vertacnik Marries John Farina

At a quiet ceremony Saturday evening, Miss Angelina Vertacnik, of West Newton, Pa., became the bride of John Farina. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Graciano were the only attendants.

After an extended motor trip through the middle West, Mr. and Mrs. Farina will make their home in North Euclid avenue, East Liberty.

Miss Katherine Scott Engaged to H. W. Soles

The engagement of Miss Katharine Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Scott, of Waynesburg, Pa., to Harold W. Soles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Soles, of McKeesport, was announced on Saturday afternoon, at a bridge party.

The hostesses were Miss Mary Garrison and Miss Elisabeth Burns, and the affair was held in the Burns home in Waynesburg. Miss Scott has chosen August 1 as the date for her marriage.

SPORTS CLOTHES ARE WORN OVER SPECIAL UNDERGARMENTS

SPORT ACTIVITIES demand freedom of the body, which is a difficult art without especially created undergarments. There must be just enough restraint to confine one's figure, and an airy quality about the fabric so one can feel as cool as the proverbial cucumber. The sun shines with pride on those in the accompanying sketch.

* * *

SOME INSPIRED and envious woman must have dug into friend husband's wardrobe chest to copy his mannish trunks, as you see sketched—downright masculine, but cut to fit the female figure! We nominate them for fame. They're loose enough for active sports, free enough not to hinder long-legged strides down rolling fairways—or mad dashes after hard-placed shots on the court. They come in sheer white broadcloth, madras, nainsook and fine mesh as shown. The fitted band buttons in front, is adjustable in back. No need for a slip—these are long and full.

* * *

HERE'S ANOTHER amusing idea—shorts and skirt (a petticoat too) of bright plaid silk! The skirt has non-skid shoulder straps—these shorts, too, are full and a good length.

* * *

NO MATTER how perfect your limbs, stockings have a way of slipping unless evenly supported by long garters. With hot weather at hand, you'll approve of the new garter panties worn by the young girl at the lower right. Two sets of garters are attached to the two-way stretch waistband. The panties themselves are a fine open-work mesh—light as a feather.

* * *

THE SPIRAL-FASHIONED bandeaux and girdle on the lower left figure both slip over the head. In the hand they look as small as knitted mitts! But they do a miraculous job for the figure, hugging it as you'd never believe possible of such light little things! They're cool and comfortable, and "belong" under sheer evening clothes as well as under more hardy cottons for sports.

* * *

LAST BUT not least, one of the most popular garments of the year—the tiny lace two-way stretch panty at the upper right. Never mind a girdle—this panty gently pushes little pouches of fat into place for you. They're the pet rave of all the young people who wear them.

Happy Wife Urges Tolerance And Understanding

Is a girl who has "gone wrong" unfit to be loved and trusted by a good man!

Once a Disgusted Lover announced to this column that he was, and told his story to prove it. He had loved, and was about to marry, one whom he considered to be "the purest and sweetest woman on earth"—an angel! But because she was actually as honest and brave, as he thought she was, she would not let him go to the alter believing a lie. So she told him of the one slip in her past—

And he promptly went away from there!

Today Grace tells the story of a girl like that—and what she made of her life. If you haven't been wise, little sister—if, instead, you've been tragically foolish, and feel that life has lied for you before it scarcely began—then here is a true story which will give you new hope.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I've just read the letter from Disgusted Lover, who claimed to be permanently disillusioned by the fact that the girl he was engaged to had confessed she had once had an unwise love affair, and he felt that he couldn't marry her, knowing of her old folly.

If there can be any help from my story, here it is, in all its sordidness. I "fell," too—once. The only excuse I can make in my own defense is that I was romantically stirred by the war and the vast throngs of soldiers, who were going out so gaily—to die. I was only 17, too, and I had never had a love affair, so I proceeded to "fall" for the best looking soldier in the first war-given dance.

TOLD HER STORY

I was so overwhelmed that I forgot my ideals—everything. And many months after this 19-year-old youth had sacrificed his all on the bloody field of Chateau Thierry I held his son in my arms—for love of whom my own family, and even most of my friends, forsook me.

But—and here's the point I want to stress—Sonny was three when I met the one man destined from the beginning to be my own, and I told him my story. Did he condemn me? Did he rebuke me for telling him, and say that he couldn't accept me with "unclean hands"? He did not!

And tears fall unbidden, even now, after years of being his wife, when I think of the tenderness with which he proclaimed:

"No man, dear, is an angel. Even the best of us have our errors. A woman would have to be pretty bad to be on a level with some of even the best of us. Let's never mention it again."

URGES TOLERANCE

And he never has. He has loved and guided my son over difficulties that his own father might have lost heart in doing. Nor has he ever been partial to the little daughter that is his own. He loves them both, even as I do.

And do I worship him? Would I give my life to be true to him and make him happy? I do and I would.

So I say—practice the Golden Rule. Remember those truest of words, "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone!" Be tolerant and forgiving. Because a girl has been foolish is no sign that she will be disloyal to you, if she is honestly trying to live finely now. And you might need tolerance and understanding yourself some time.

Above all, do not ask from another what you yourself cannot give. Understand and sympathize, and it will be as "bread upon the waters." GRACE.

That's a great letter, Grace—and that husband of yours is the salt of the earth! Here's my hand to both of you!

If we all had understanding like his, and courage and loyalty like yours, what a world this would be!

Fay King Tells You How to Live Your Life for True Success

SUCCESS IS NOT ALONE IN ACHIEVING — BUT ALSO IN AVOIDING
PUBLIC APPLAUSE AND LARGE INCOME IS BUT ONE PHASE OF SUCCESS
THERE IS NO FINER SUCCESS IN LIFE THAN MAKING A HAPPY HOME!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Young persons become discouraged because they think of success only in terms of great fame and enormous income.

This is the rare, extreme interpretation of success. It is too often sudden and fleeting. Its very distinction is sometimes the source of destruction. When extraordinary success passes dire failure may take its place.

The smaller, slower, more secure success is best. It is achieved by steady application, earnest effort and modest ambition. But it is a never-ending advancement.

It is the lasting success of a clean life and a good character. There is no greater success than being a worthy human being.

Many of those whom the world has acclaimed have been only glorified failures in the finer things of life. Don't emulate them.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Shortness of Breath Not Always Due to the Heart

Abnormal shortness of breath, or "dyspnoea," as it is called by the physician, is often the cause of undue alarm and anxiety. To most persons, shortness of breath means heart trouble. This is not necessarily true; shortness of breath is frequently found in individuals who have no disease of the heart or lungs.

Dr. Copeland

It is commonly seen in persons who are high strung, nervous, and under constant mental strain and worry. During the World War many soldiers were found to complain of shortness of breath and vague pains around the heart. The condition was called "soldiers' heart" or "irritable heart." It was caused by the severe strain to which these men were subjected. It is also encountered in civilian life.

In what I have said, I do not mean to imply that shortness of breath should ever be ignored. When present, with vague pains around the heart and swelling of the ankles, it is nature's warning that you are working too hard and your heart is tired. My advice is to consult with your doctor who will determine the cause and prescribe for you.

Shortness of breath is often present during an acute illness, in tonsilitis, flu, bronchitis, or pneumonia, for example. It may be traced to an obstruction in the nose or throat.

I know a man who had complained of shortness of breath for many years. He feared going to a doctor as he did not want to be told he had heart disease. He avoided all strenuous work, rested and led a quiet life, but without any improvement in the shortness of breath. Finally in desperation he consulted a doctor who discovered he was suffering from polyps in the nose. I am glad to say that the polyps were removed and with them disappeared the shortness of breath and the fear of heart disease.

Hardening of the arteries is a common cause of shortness of breath. When certain changes occur in the blood vessels they become hard, and lose their normal elasticity. This places an additional burden upon the heart and the sufferer notices that he has difficulty in walking up steps and must stop to catch his breath.

He cannot walk quite as fast as formerly without complaining of shortness of breath. At times he may have pain around the heart. Of course, the victim of this affliction should avoid climbing stairs and sudden or fatiguing exertion. He should lead a quiet and well regulated life.

Bear in mind that shortness of breath may be normal under certain conditions. But it warrants a visit to the doctor. He will determine whether it is a sign of some disturbance within the body.

Answers to Health Queries

F. M. Q.—Is it harmful for a person with an infected lung to live next door to a shoe factory?

A.—No, unless there is irritating dust, or other particles in the air.

Household Hints

A teaspoon of vinegar added to lard used for frying prevents the food from absorbing too much fat.

Nail varnish which has thickened may be diluted with a drop or two of polish remover. If you find you have bought too dark a color, get another bottle of the same make, but quite colorless, and mix them. Always buy the very smallest size in polish remover, since it evaporates even when corked.

Try roasting a beet root in the oven instead of boiling it, and note how much nicer the flavor is. After baking, it should be peeled in the usual way.

To fasten blades of knives in ivory handles, mix four parts of resin with one part beeswax and one part plaster of paris or brickdust. Fill the hole in the handle with the mixture, heat the tang of the blade, then press it in.

Owen Tries to End Life Before Making Confession

"We have this bird ready to talk," Harry said to Hugh. "What about Brixton? Can he stand it?"

Hugh turned toward the curtained alcove in which Lee Chow was caring for Samuel Brixton.

"I'll tell you in a minute," he said, as he disappeared behind the curtain, and at his words the people in Nettie's "parlor" beat hurried retreats to the sides of the room, huddled together in hushed groups as if they were expecting the curtain to rise upon a drama.

Harry Underwood placed a chair by the couch upon which I lay and put his wife into it, patting her shoulder reassuringly as he went back to the door. She reached out her hand to mine unsteadily.

Mary sat down upon the foot rest of my bed, with Noel standing close beside her, and I saw Philip Veritzen watching his son furtively.

It was in that moment, I think, that a definite plan for Mary and Noel rose in my mind.

OWEN CARRIED IN

For as Hugh came back from the alcove, he drew the curtains aside and we saw Samuel Brixton sitting up in bed, haggard, pale, his head still bandaged, but with the light of sanity in his eyes, even though they were filled with rage.

"Where is he?" he demanded, moving to the side of the bed. But Lee Chow put a restraining hand upon his arm.

"Presently, presently," he said soothingly. "But you must not injure yourself."

"Only let me get my hands upon him," he pleaded feverishly, and I saw Hugh move swiftly to Lee Chow's side, and knew that he was ready for any emergency.

At the same minute, Dicky came back from the hall through which he had escorted Dr. and Mrs. Barnes, and Harry hailed him with distinct relief in his tones.

"Ah! There, Dicky-bird," he said, "come over here with me."

He was standing near the door with Philip Veritzen and my father, and when Dicky had joined them he opened the kitchen door and called:

"Bring him in, boys."

At Harry Underwood's order to "bring him in, boys," I saw Marion go pale. Then Brown and "Hen-ner-y" came through the door bearing a stretcher upon which lay the figure of Charles Owen.

"Now," my father said, with the authority that always invests any speech of his, "you will kindly tell us in as few words as possible how this plot originated, and if anybody beside yourself and your paid thugs was a party to it."

A SEQUEL—TO "HEART OF A WIFE"

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Charles Owen's eyes opened so wide that they looked suddenly lidless like those of a snake.

"I don't know what you call a plot," he said venomously.

"Look out!" My father's voice raised itself warningly, and Dicky, with lightning-like quickness, wrenched away a vial from Owen's bound hands, a vial which he was trying to open with his teeth. Dicky took the vial gingerly, opened it and sniffed its contents.

"Cyanide," he said, and then he turned to Owen.

"I'll talk," came in whistling accents from Owen's twisted lips.

"You bet you will," Dicky replied.

"I'll come clean," Owen whispered, and I saw that great beads of moisture stood out on his forehead.

"My brother and I knew what was in Marion's lock box," he began.

"Don't you call me brother, you hound of hell," Samuel Brixton said hoarsely, and Lee Chow hushed him, even as he said with cold emphasis:

"You will not say what that lockbox contains. I forbid it."

"That goes, Owen," Dicky said, and Owen resumed:

"We tried to get it in various ways, because it was really Sam's property, of part of it. That stunt of the pretended bank robbery was simply to scare you into keeping the thing safe from the Chinks, who were also trying to get it.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Surprising about permanent waves. Some of them are amiable, almost intelligent. They fall into pleasing lines, require almost no attention. Others prove obstinate, will not conform to present-day ideas as to how feminine locks should behave. Much depends upon the first finger wave, so choose your operator with care. The skilled specialist understands that soft fine hair won't respond to the same treatment that is given dry, thick locks. Don't forget that the wave enjoys a steaming now and then, and that every particle of soap must be removed after the shampoo if the wave is to survive and assume a rhythmic pattern.

Too heroic brushing of the teeth is frowned upon by dentists. Diligent scrubbers are likely to injure the gums, cause them to recede. Brush away from the roots. Roll the brush, so the bristles will be forced between the teeth. Clean inner surfaces as well as outer ones and don't overlook the ends of the teeth. A small brush is more likely to make a thorough job than a large one, and grouped bristles are recommended.

Need a tonic pack and bleach for a skin that has gone yallery, looks out of form? Whip the white of an egg, add one teaspoon of lemon juice and enough almond meal to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Spread over a clean skin surface, lie down and rest for 20 minutes. Remove the pack with tepid water, dry, tap in cold cream.

Don't overlook chin and ear lobes.

Liquid rouge has more endurance than compact blushes. But there's a trick in applying it. Moisten a piece of cotton with water, pour on a few drops of the liquid, squeeze the cotton slightly, so as to thin the coloring agent, apply lightly. Careful powdering will tone down the border lines, do the proper blending act.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Courtesy

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Should a young man offer his seat to a lady of between 18 and 25 in a public passenger vehicle? J.

Gallantry isn't bound by age, and so there wouldn't be any definite age margins for courteous acts like this. It would depend entirely on the native courtesy of the man. In some parts of the country, this sort of courtesy would be taken for granted, but we don't see much of it in a crowded metropolis. However, even if seats aren't generally offered to young ladies, they are still given . . . thank Heaven . . . to old people, or people who are crippled, and always (I've never seen it to fail) to a woman with a baby in her arms.

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is planning for her second marriage at this time and has suggested that she would like to have me as her witness to the ceremony.

Would it be improper for a mother to have her own daughter act in this capacity for her? I would love to have this honor, as mother and I have been wonderfully close to each other. The wedding will take place in the parish house of a Catholic church. B.

I agree with you and your mother that this would be a lovely and charming thing to do, if there is no denominational objection to it. To be sure about it, do by all means consult your parish priest and he will advise you about it.

MINE UNION PROTESTS PITTSBURGH COAL EVICTIONS

POLITICS

Reed's Hoover Visit Significant

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Senator David A. Reed will visit former President Herbert Hoover at Palo Alto, Cal., the latter part of this month.

Mr. Shields

Ostensibly the occasion is a reunion of the Bohemian Club, a famous organization in which the former President is interested.

But there is an inescapable political interpretation to be put on the visit, in view of the happenings of the closing days of Congress, a recognition of the fact that in the attempted comeback of the Republican party as a factor in national politics the senior Senator from Pennsylvania has been selected for a prominent role.

It was Senator Reed who headed the Republican disinclination to grant all the powers requested by President Roosevelt. The Pennsylvanian admitted that the present occasion demands cooperation, but he insisted it was not co-operation at the expense of surrender by Congress of some of its inherent powers.

* * *

Looms More and More As Conservatives' Leader

With the old-line Republican ranks in the Senate decimated by the debacle of 1932, Reed loomed more and more as the leader of the conservatism which motivated the Republican party during the Coolidge and Hoover regimes. He received attention throughout the country for his position, some of it praise, much of it criticism.

There was plenty of evidence when Congress adjourned that the attitude of Reed had struck the keynote for the Republican campaign to beat the party's way back to strength. Some of the men who were associated with Mr. Hoover have not been inactive, but with the exception of Ogden Mills, they are not figures with the national prominence of Senator Reed.

President Hoover in the election of 1932 was repudiated by a tremendous vote. Yet there is no other outstanding figure toward which the discomfited Republican elements can turn as a rallying point. That they do so does not mean that automatically they will turn to him for a candidate in 1936.

The probabilities are that they will not. But he is a symbol, what he does or what he says will receive more attention than the utterance of any other Republican of the day.

* * *

However Camouflaged, Visit Is Significant

For this reason the visit of Senator Reed to the West Coast attains unusual significance, however it may be camouflaged as a semi-social and fraternal expedition. Without doubt the state of the party will be discussed, as well as ways and means for rehabilitation.

Perhaps Senator Reed will be selected as one of the leaders, if not the leader, in that attempted revival. The Senator has no flair for the practical side of politics, for the irksome duties of organization, for the necessary attention to details.

But he is nationally known, he speaks well and correctly, he receives a hearing even in quarters which do not agree with his premises. In addition, he has courage to say what he thinks; he is not depressed by setbacks to causes in which he believes.

If the country is to continue down the road of progressivism in politics Senator Reed would be no Messiah, nor even a John the Baptist. But there are Republicans who believe that with better business, a return to normal earnings and their purchase of normal comforts, the country will turn back more toward the conservatism of the Republican party.

* * *

Event Not Restrictedly Viewed by Politicians

Only time and the play of politics can tell whether they are right, but that is their opinion, and Senator Reed is the logical person to act as its public and vocal exponent.

Senator Reed once made a statement, more or less subject to latitudinous interpretation, that what this country needed was a dictator. At the same time, he objected to Congress surrendering its rights while maintaining the letter of the rule of divisible authority in the government.

That, apparently, is to be the chief plank in the Republican comeback.

Senator Reed, of course, has nothing to say about his visit to the former President, except that it is social. The event, however, is not being so restrictedly viewed by politicians generally and their view is a tribute to the strides forward the senior Senator has taken in the last few months.

By title he is not the Republican leader of the Senate. By the turn of affairs he is the leading Republican of that wing of the party which stood or fell on principles of conservatism.

WARD LEADERS IN OPEN FOR HERRON

Democrats Called to Scan Candidates For Judge

Departing from custom, the Republican City Committee apparently is preparing to take an open and official hand in the mayoralty primary, giving the organization influence to Mayor John S. Herron. This, apparently, is the purpose of the meeting of ward leaders called for the Hotel Henry tomorrow afternoon by City Chairman W. J. Soost.

Soost, a member of City Council and leader of the Eleventh Ward, is calling in all friendly ward chairmen, and in wards where there is some division of organization sentiment due to jealousy of the chairmen, representatives of dissenting factions will be invited. This situation exists in the Sixteenth and Nineteenth wards, among others.

Customarily, the party officers take no official part in primary fights, but manage the campaign in the regular election. Tomorrow's meeting, however, is viewed as the formal opening of the Herron campaign.

Democratic attorneys will meet at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow night to consider judicial candidates. The meeting has been called by County Chairman David L. Lawrence. Many of the candidates seeking Republican nominations intend also to enter the Democratic primary, a plan which is arousing some opposition among the minority party leaders.

Members of organized labor are planning a meeting for July 15 to indorse the candidacy of Representative John J. Kane for the Democratic mayoralty nomination. Kane in his first term in the Legislature established a good record and is in favor with several Democratic leaders.

P. J. Fagan, of the United Mine Workers, himself spoken of as a possible mayoralty candidate, will be chairman of the Kane meeting.

OVERSEAS UNIT TO AID NEEDY

An emergency fund to aid needy members of the Women's Overseas Service League had the approval of the league, meeting here today.

The fund would aid those not provided for by the organization's disability fund, Miss Shirley Farr, of Chicago, the president, said. Miss Faustine Dennis, national legislative chairman of the league, reported that a bill providing that women who worked overseas during the war should be regarded as having been enlisted in the service had been introduced in Congress. She said it would make such women eligible for the bonus, but the league did not ask for this provision.

Business sessions featured today's program at the Hotel Schenley. The delegates will make a boat trip down the Ohio River tonight.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

PRESCOTT, Ariz., July 5.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Arizona prolongs the life of the afflicted, as well as makes perpetual the lives of the well. By the way, I see in the Arizona Republic that the London Conference was knocked cuckoo when Roosevelt told them it was our dollar, and we could arrange the price of it.

Yours, WILL.

4 FROM HERE DIE IN HOLIDAY AUTO CRASHES

Oakland Wreck Hurts Family; Boy Coasts Into Parked Car

Heavy holiday traffic claimed the lives of four Pittsburghers, and injured many others, according to police reports today.

One man was killed and eight persons were injured when two automobiles collided early today at Bigelow boulevard and Forbes street.

James Morton, Negro, 45, of 631 Kirkpatrick street, was dead upon his arrival at the Homeopathic Hospital. His automobile, driven south on Bigelow boulevard, crashed with the automobile driven in Forbes street by Paul Kaecher, 37, of 1755 West Liberty avenue, according to a police report.

CHILDREN IN CRASH

Besides Kaecher, those in his car who were injured were his wife, Mrs. Amber Kaecher; his son, Lawrence Kaecher, 17, and his daughter, Margaret, 8.

Passengers in Morton's car who were injured were Minnie Lethan, Negro, 18, of 2142 Herman street; Gladys Chandler, Negro, 19, of 2114 Herman street; George Cooper, 25, Negro, of Bedford avenue, and Earl Pollard, 25, Negro, of 2155 Webster avenue.

William Kohnis, 44, 214 Sagamore street, Esplen, was injured slightly by a hit-and-run motorcyclist on Windgap road near McKees Rocks last night. County detectives were directed to hunt for the driver of the motorcycle. Kohnis died today in Ohio Valley Hospital from internal injuries and a fractured hip.

Hary E. Wolcott, 56, and his wife, Mrs. Carrie Wolcott, 45, of 39 East General Robinson street, North Side, were killed and their son, Harry E. Wolcott, Jr., 15, and George Reynolds, 18, also of the North Side, critically injured when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by another car two miles east of Newport, Pa., early yesterday.

Young Wolcott and Reynolds were taken to Polyclinic Hospital at Harrisburg, where their recovery was considered doubtful. Both suffered skull fractures.

Charles Hanley, of Altoona, who was riding in the other machine with his brother, Roy Hanley, of Juniata, was taken to Lewistown Hospital. Roy was held under $1,000 bail in the New Bloomfield jail charged with transporting alcohol, according to an International News Service report. Authorities charged the Hanley machine contained about 120 gallons of alcohol at the time of the crash.

ON HOLIDAY TRIP

Besides Harry, the couple leaves two daughters, Margaret, 19, and Mildred, 17. Arrangements were being made to ship the bodies here for burial.

WIFE ON PICNIC DIES IN TRUCK

Stricken with a heart attack while returning from a family outing in South Park last night, Mrs. Grace Welsby, 32, of 2217 Sarah street, was pronounced dead when carried into the office of Dr. C. T. Provost, 2446 Library road, the Coroner's office reported.

Mrs. Welsby, her husband, Clarence; daughter, Florence, 12, and relatives were returning from the park in a truck driven by her brother-in-law, Andrew Dremel, of 39 Allen avenue, when she collapsed. Relatives told deputy coroners Mrs. Welsby has been in ill health since the death of her father-in-law three months ago.

Bookkeeping On [illegible]g U. S. Is Loose Leaf

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Way we figure this international thing is that we lend nations money to buy our goods. They return the coin for our merchandise.

Then, when we go about the business of collecting, they ask why should we pay twice? That makes loose-leaf bookkeeping all the looser.

Ramsay MacDonald looked over our London delegation yesterday and hollered, "So you won't talk, eh?" It's an old administration habit.

So far there hasn't been a yodel on the mountain or an echo in the valley. Our boys must be knee-keep in chewing gum wrappers.

Mr. Roosevelt's messages to London indicate that his windshield wiper is working perfectly.

One of our diplomats over there got a bad cold when he stuck his head out of the trans-Atlantic telephone booth.

The candidacy of former Morals Court Magistrate A. D. Brandon for Council has been indorsed by the Community Bible Class of Knoxville. Copies of the indorsement were sent to the following Independent leaders: Councilman Robert Garland, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and M. L. Benedum.

The resolution stated:

"Judge Brandon stands firmly upon the principles believed in and advocated by this group and he will be vigorously supported at the coming primary if given the opportunity."

Drum Crops Plans Benefit Card Party

The drum and bugle corps of Trees-Carlisle Post No. 166, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will give a benefit card party the evening of July 12 at the V. F. W. Hall, 6023 Penn avenue.

The next regular meeting of the post will be held next Tuesday night.

PLAN FOR P. O. RAMP STUDIED

City Council today was to study plans for a proposed ramp along Pentland street from a point near Strawberry way as an approach to the new postoffice building truck-loading platform.

The ramp was discussed at a conference Monday between city engineers and federal representatives. The one under consideration would cross Seventh avenue overhead. Its purpose is to avoid left turns from the grade on Seventh avenue in approaching the loading platform.

Present at Monday's conference were Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang; Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert; Lewis W. McIntyre, of the Bureau of Traffic Planning; L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the city's Planning Commission, and U. N. Arthur, engineer for the Planning Commission.

INDUSTRY CZAR TOLD OF BAN ON WORKERS

Firm Violating Law As to Organization, Says Fagan

The federal Department of Labor having failed to intervene in the evictions of 20 families from houses owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company over the week-end, officials of the United Mine Workers of America today carried their complaint to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of national recovery.

The complaints specifically charge the Pittsburgh Coal Company with discharging men from their employ and using the eviction as a weapon against the families whose men folks participate in United Mine Workers' activities.

WIRE TO PERKINS

A telegram to Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, and A. M. Northrup, Pennsylvania secretary of labor and industry, reads:

"Pittsburgh Coal Company is ignoring provisions of section 7, article 1, National Industrial Recovery Act and discharging and serving eviction notices on employes for organizing activities. Please exercise your powers to prevent summary eviction of these men from their homes by this company."

Notices were served on the following, according to P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, U. M. W. A.:

8 FAMILIES EVICTED

Five families were evicted Saturday at Gallatin, according to Fagan, and three families were evicted Monday from Library.

Fagan declared:

"The new national recovery act gives men the right to organize and enjoy collective bargaining. The Pittsburgh Coal Company refuses to give them this right. We will not stand by and let them intimidate our people in this manner."

PITT GRADUATE PANAMA CONSUL

Dr. Jorge E. Amador, consul for the Republic of Panama in Pittsburgh, is establishing his consulate—the first of his country in the city.

Dr. Amador has already presented his credentials to Mayor John S. Herron. He was introduced to Mayor Herron by Kosto Unkovich, consul for Yugoslavia and president of the Pittsburgh Consular Association.

The new consul spent several years as a student in the University of Pittsburgh's dental school, graduating in the class of 1931. Until recently he worked and studied at the Warren State Hospital. Dr. Amador was born in Santiago, Panama, and received his elementary education in that city.

Dr. Amador is now the guest of Jose Valenguela, consul for Mexico.

FOSTER MOTHER SLAIN, BOY HELD

LANCASTER, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Charged with slaying his foster-mother, Gilbert Hayes, 22, sits in a Lancaster County jail cell waiting for the law to take its course.

State police announced yesterday that he confessed shooting her, because the woman who took him from an orphanage when he was a boy, refused to let him have the family car for the holiday.

The woman's husband, Matthew Hayes, is held as a material witness. Police say he saw the shooting.

Police took Gilbert and Hayes back to the farm after questioning them. The officers said today the shooting was re-enacted, and that Gilbert, formally charged with murder, remains bitter toward the woman.

Stenographer Wins $30,000 for Hurts

DETROIT, Mich., July 5.—(INS.)—Lena Mary Carpenter, 21, pretty Brantford (Ont.) stenographer, today won a Federal Court verdict of $30,000 against the city of Detroit.

Criticism of Mayors Bemoaned by Herron

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 5.—Newspapers shouldn't be so harsh on mayors in particular and public officials in general, in the opinion of Mayor John S. Herron, of Pittsburgh, and Harry H. Yont, of Greensburg, who spoke during the three-day national convention of the Sons of Columbus of America here.

Mayor Yont said:

"If you believe all you read in the newspapers you will think that there are no state or city officials who are not crooks or grafters and that there is a bootlegging joint on every city block."

Herron said that if people believed half of what they read about him in the newspapers he would not be "fit to come here and break bread with you." He went on:

"The people like to read sensations and the newspapers get the headlines and we in public life never escape."

He added that there has been less crime in Pittsburgh than in any other big city in the United States.

Montefiore League Indorses Nuskay

John D. Nuskay, candidate for a Republican councilmanic nomination, has been indorsed by the Montefiore Civic League of East Liberty businessman by the ment already given the East Liberty business man by the Greater Pittsburgh Garagemen's Association.

Samuel Goldstock, president of the league, said that Nuskay's experience familiarized him with general civic and tax problems and an understanding of neighborhood affairs.

Train Kills Man Crossing Tracks

The body of Michael J. McGuire, 22, of 98 Wabash avenue, was found early yesterday by the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near the Elliott tower. He apparently was struck by an eastbound passenger train while crossing the tracks.

The body was taken to the morgue, where it was identified by a brother, Hugh McGuire, of 98 Wabash avenue.

LIGHTED FUSE FOUND ON CAN OF POWDER

Three men, arrested in connection with what police said was a plot to burn Matty's Theater, Wilmerding, early yesterday morning, were to be questioned today by county detectives. A fourth man is being sought.

Joe Tonti, 32, and Tony Cerese, 31, both of McKeesport, were arrested leaving the theater when Wilmerding police discovered the alleged plot, according to a police report. John Rule, of Wall, manager of the theater, was arrested later.

Chief Sol Holden and Capt. William Curran entered the theater to investigate a light they saw within, and reported they found a 30-foot fuse burning toward a can of black powder.

Beside the can, the officers reported, were several pig bladders laden with 20 gallons of gasoline. The fuse, the officers said, was connected at the other end to a wire leading from a theater footlight, which had been short circuited.

It was the second time in two weeks Wilmerding police prevented a fire in the theater. The first attempt, described by police as similar to yesterday's, is still under investigation.

The theater has not been operating continually. It is insured, county detectives said.

HASKELL DIES, MOVED CAPITAL

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 5.—(AP.)—Charles N. Haskell, 73, Oklahoma's first Governor, died in his room at an Oklahoma City hotel today. He had been ill several weeks.

A native of Putnam County, Ohio, Haskell became a school teacher. He came to Oklahoma in 1901, settling at Muskogee, to engage both in the practice of law and railroad building.

Gov. Haskell created a sensation in the state when he moved the capital from Guthrie to Oklahoma City. Believing the latter city should be the seat of government, he carried the seal of state and a few records from Guthrie to Oklahoma City in a suitcase, establishing the executive offices in a hotel.

Guthrie was indignant, as were other parts of the state, but no formidable opposition to the change developed. By a narrow margin the Legislature later sustained the Governor's action.

Haskell made and lost a fortune in oil and railroad enterprises, after leaving the Governor's chair. He lived in New York for several years.

MINE LEADER'S HOME BOMBED

SCRANTON, July 5.—(AP.)—An explosion of dynamite early today damaged the home of John Boylan, president of District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America.

Boylan, his wife and their two children, John, Jr., 13; Robert, 12, asleep in the house, a two-story stucco, were uninjured.

Police estimated that 10 sticks of dynamite were placed on the front porch by two men who drove up in a sedan.

The explosion also damaged the adjoining homes of John Robson and Albert Clarkson.

Police said the explosive had been planted apparently by persons not satisfied with Boylan's administration as leader of 60,000 miners in the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre district.

CANAL PLEA UP TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, July 5.—A petition to President Roosevelt, urging the canalization of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers as a part of the public works program under the National Recovery Act, will be presented to the Chief Executive today.

The petition, signed by 22 members of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation, will be presented to the White House by Senator David A. Reed.

Senator Reed will ask the President to recommend the project in the general public works program. It is pointed out that the proposed improvement consists of connecting the Ohio River with the Youngstown steel district through canalization of the Beaver and Mahoning rivers to a depth of 12 feet, and a width of from 200 to 300 feet at a capital of about $30,000,000 and an annual maintenance of about $1,500,000.

Dormont Student Overcome in Fire

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—One of the half-dozen occupants of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house on the Pennsylvania State College campus was overcome by smoke yesterday as fire damaged the structure. Robert Harmon, of Dormont, the victim, revived quickly.

The blaze broke out in a third-floor room used for meetings. The cause has not been determined.

JEWISH DRIVE OPENS JULY 16

Pittsburgh's drive for funds for relief of Jews in Germany will begin July 16, when representatives of counties in Western Pennsylvania, parts of West ginia and Ohio meet in the Concordia Club here, according to announcement of Leo Lehman, chairman.

Mr. Lehman

The campaign will be held in connection with the national quota of $2,000,000 to feed, clothe, rehabilitate and transport destitute Jews to havens of refuge.

'DIPS' WARNED BY ROTHENBERG

A couple of "ambassadors-at-large" were appointed in Central Police Court today to carry the word among pickpockets that they'll do a 90-day stretch if they are caught in Pittsburgh.

The portfolios were handed them by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg along with sentences to 90 days in the workhouse without the alternative of paying fines.

The "ambassadors" are Zeb Hill, 28, of Cleveland, and Edward Holden, 30, Boston, Negroes. City Detective William Sullivan, who arrested them, said they came here from Cleveland to "clean up" during the Fourth of July holiday.

Rothenberg made a speech. He said:

"I am going to appoint you ambassadors-at-large of the pickpocket fraternity. After you serve your 90 days, you can tell your friends Pittsburgh is no haven for thieves. If they come before Leo Rothenberg, they are going away for 90 days.

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Benjamin Baker, 61, financial analist and editor of The Analist since 1925, died of heart disease yesterday.

Two Wives Ask Court To Return Freedom

Nuptial Knots Cut For Seven Couples By Courts

Alice May Virtue, 118 Chesterfield road has filed a libel in divorce against Samuel E. Virtue, 209 Harrison avenue, Avalon, charging him with misconduct. They were married November 25, 1898.

Jean H. Richardson, 317 East Tenth street, Tarentum, wants a divorce from George L. C. Richardson, Jr., 6614 Meadow street, Pittsburgh, on grounds of indignities. They were married September 16, 1927.

BUSINESS GAIN TO CONTINUE

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Standard Statistics Company said today that a continuation of the upward business trend during the remainder of the year was probable. It stated:

"The usual mid-summer recession will be greatly moderated, or entirely eliminated, in many lines because of accrued and belated buying. By the close of the year business volume in most of the essential industries undoubtedly will compare favorably with levels witnessed in the early stages of depression."

The June improvement was one of the sharpest on record, said the summary, "an upturn that was especially significant inasmuch as in most industries activity seasonally recedes in June." The summary said:

home yesterday, police reported. He was taken to West Penn Hospital.

Mrs. Minnie Kline, 30, and Mrs. Rebecca Unger, 53, of 6333 Phillips avenue, received cuts and bruises when an automobile in which they were riding with the former's husband, Louis Kline, 35, collided with another car at Murdoch and Bartlett streets yesterday. They were treated at Montefiore Hospital.

HITS UNDERTAKER'S CAR

Jennie Zubik, 16, of River avenue and Anderson street, incurred lacerations of the head and both legs when an automobile driven by her sister, Helen Zubik, 18, collided with an undertaker's service car at North Highland and Stanton avenues. She was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Chester Szporyck, 3, of 90 South Fourteenth street, suffered a broken left arm when he was struck by an automobile in Carson street, near South Eighteenth street. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Girard Kraus, 32, of 1165 Jancey street, and Walter G. Peindl, 38, of Library road, were injured when automobiles they were driving collided yesterday in Library road. Both were taken to Mercy Hospital.

BOY COASTER HURT

Jack Hayes, 9, of 233 Hays street, West Homestead, suffered bruises when the wagon which he was coasting crashed into a parked automobile near his home yesterday. He was taken to Homestead Hospital.

Herman Robinson, 5, of 8401 Frankstown avenue, suffered a fractured leg when he was struck by an automobile near his home. He is in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Frank Ellis, 25, of 1821 Parkview avenue, was injured when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at South Eighteenth and Josephine streets last night. Ellis was taken to South Side Hospital.

JOHNSON HITS PRICE KITING

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(INS.)—Warning against "runaway prices" was sounded again by Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Administrator of National Recovery, who was considering today the possibility of retail price advances out of proportion to the basic commodity rises. He said:

"I know and deprecate the tendency. If we have a runaway price market, we are going to have trouble."

He revealed he already is considering methods of maintaining basic prices at reasonable levels, through control exercised by the industries themselves.

Meanwhile states are preparing to adopt legislation harmonizing their laws with requirements of the National Recovery Act.

Bills are pending in California and Ohio legislatures and one has passed the Wisconsin Assembly. Questions from other state officials regarding the form of such legislation are coming to Johnson daily.

VET ORGANIZERS BEATEN UP

CAMDEN, N. J., July 5.—(AP.)—Organizers for the Khaki Shirts, an organization pledged to obtain justice for war veterans, were beaten while attempting to form a post in South Camden.

One of them, "Brig. Gen." Frank Spinogatti, 33, is in a Camden hospital with a broken jaw.

Police were told that a group of men entered the house where the organization conference was being held yesterday and after destroying records broke up the meeting with clubs and blackjacks.

AMBUSH SHOT KILLS QUARRY

JOHNSONBURG, Pa., July 5.—(INS.)—State and county police joined forces today in a search for the killer who lurked in ambush here last night and brought down his quarry, Joseph Zampogna, 45, a building contractor, with a single shot.

Indications were that the slaying was either the work of a professional gunman, or that it had been carefully planned.

The professional gunman theory was given added credence when it was learned that the single shot was fired at 10:30 o'clock last night—just when the local fireworks uproar was at its height. The roar of exploding firecrackers masked the sharp snap of the killer's pistol.

The victim had been in the contracting business here for the last several years. It was believed the killing may reopen the gang warfare which swept this section two years ago.

Zampogna, awarded a contract for a bridge across the Clarion River, was rapidly nearing completion of the project.

Internal Revenue Counsel to Speak

Attorney John A. McCann, special legal representative in Pittsburgh of the general counsel of the United States Internal Revenue Department, will speak on "A Tax on Honesty" at the noon luncheon tomorrow of the Wilkinsburg Kiwanis Club in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. Rotarians of the borough will be the guests of the Kiwanians.

650 JOBLESS ENTER SCHOOL

Six hundred and fifty unemployed of the Pittsburgh district today are back in school to prepare themselves for jobs. Some plan to learn new trades.

Summer enrollment of the Clifford B. Connolley Trade School, Bedford avenue, was 650 men and boys. Many more are expected today, the dead line for enrollment. Last year, at the inaugural session, more than 1,200 took advantage of the free courses.

Only unemployed are eligible for one of the 14 courses, according to Dr. L. H. Turner, principal of the summer school. The ages are 18 years or more.

LAWYER FREED ON PAROLE

Attorney Winfield S. Walsh, 51, of 2749 Broadway, Dormont, has been paroled for five years by Judge Elder W. Marshall, after serving nearly three years of a four-year jail sentence for embezzlement.

Walsh pleaded guilty September 12, 1930, to two embezzlement charges. Judge Marshall sentenced him two years on each. Later he pleaded guilty to other charges before Judge George V. Moore, who gave him a similar sentence, to run concurrently.

The charges involved embezzlements of funds of two building and loan assoociations, for which Walsh was attorney. His first petition for a parole, filed last December, was refused when other alleged victims told the court they would make additional informations against Walsh if he was freed.

HELEN CARLYLE, ACTRESS, DEAD

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(AP.)—Second of the famous characters of pioneer movies to die within the last few days, Helen Carlyle has been buried in a Hollywood cemetery to close a career which began in comedy sequences 20 years ago.

By stipulation of the actress, former wife of Hampton Del Ruth, film director, her death was not announced until almost 48 hours after the funeral. She died last Friday of a stomach disorder.

She had appeared before the camera with Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, who died last week, and Mabel Normand. She last acted in a play filmed a number of years ago with George Sidney.

A member of a pioneer Southern California family, the Hellmans, she used the name Carlyle for her screen appearances.

Paroled in Liquor Sales to Students

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 5.—If James Stewart, of Greensburg, sells any more liquor to high school students here he will be sent to the workhouse, Stewart was informed after being paroled for two years when he pleaded guilty.

Mayor Harry N. Yont appeared against Stewart, saying he had numerous complaints about his place.

BATHER DROWNS AS FAMILY LOOKS ON

As his wife and two children looked helplessly on, Theodore Choming, 30, of 308 Lobinger avenue, North Braddock, a blacksmith for the Pittsburgh Oil Well Supply Company, was drowned while swimming in the Allegheny River, near Verona, last night, according to a Coroner's report.

Police said Choming, who had accompanied his family to Armstrong Hollow on a picnic, was swimming within a short distance of shore when he went down.

Efforts of Rosedale and Verona volunteer firemen, who labored more than two hours to resuscitate him, were futile.

EXTORTIONIST FLEES SHOTS

DENVER, July 5.—(AP.)—An extortionist escaped yesterday under the pistol fire of detectives who accompanied Timothy A. Pedley, 57, Denver investment broker, to the place he was instructed to deliver $30,000 under penalty of death.

When Pedley reached the appointed place, a man jumped from behind a hedge and called to him to "toss out the money." Then seeing detectives in a car behind Pedley, the man fled while the officers fired several volleys at him.

Bernard Eisner, 20, was under arrest for questioning in the case, but Capt. of Detectives William Armstrong said he was seeking a man "well up in years, of good education and exceptionally intelligent" as the leader of the extortion ring and another man as his aide.

SESSION HERE IN SWEATSHOP QUIZ JULY 11

HARRISBURG, July 5.—(AP.)—A hearing of the state committee investigating child labor and women's wages, scheduled for Johnstown July 11, has been eliminated, the committee announced today.

Instead, the employes will be heard at Pittsburgh July 11.

Under the present schedule, the next hearing is to be at the Courthouse in Doylestown July 6 at 2 p. m., workers being given two hours, to be followed by the employers.

The same schedule is to be followed at the Courthouse in Norristown July 7.

The committee, in a statement, said it realizes the difficulty for employes to present their testimony during the afternoon, but that it believes a fair sample of conditions throughout each area can be obtained, nevertheless.

The only hearings now scheduled for the western part of the state are to be in Criminal Courtroom No. 2 at Pittsburgh July 11 and 12. Employes are to be heard at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. (daylight time), the first day, and employers at the same times the next day.

My reason for liking Luckies is strictly personal

After all—since I smoke quite a number of cigarettes each day—don't you think it's just as well that I lean in the right direction? Perhaps you'd call my reason for liking "Toasting" the assurance of purity it gives me—for Luckies come in rather close personal contact with me, you know. Just knowing that each puff of Lucky smoke I draw in is pure—it makes the pleasure of fragrant toasted tobacco that much greater. Certainly, purity never hurt anyone! And besides—"Luckies Please!"

PRIMO CARNERA BEGINS STORY OF CLIMB TO TITLE

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

YOUNG PILOTS OUTSTANDING IN RACE

FIVE FAILURES IN the National League in the last seven years, including two by the Pirates, have knocked the props from under the ancient theory that the club leading a major league race after the games of the Fourth of July will be the ultimate pennant winner. But if the old dope could be depended on to hold good this season, baseball would have the novel experience of seeing the championship flags won by two of the newest managers in the big circuits.

Joe Cronin

Joe Cronin, youngest of all the pilots in the main tent and serving his first year as a pilot, not only kept his Senators in first place in the American League over Independence Day but increased their margin to the extent of two full games by leading them to a double victory over their most formidable rivals, the Yankees. Joe is putting in his best licks where they will count for most, as the Senators up to today had won seven out of 10 games from the Yanks.

And Bill Terry, than whom only Charley Grimm among the National League skippers is younger in age or length of managerial service, still had his Giants leading by five full games despite a double trouncing at the hands of the speeding Braves, who have won 12 of their last 16 bouts, a result, incidentally, that left Boston only half a game from the first division today. The even split at Forbes Field saved the Giants from a further loss of ground to one or other of their nearest competitors.

But actually the races are only starting, though the clubs of the two sensational young managers are pretty certain to be in the fighting all the way, even if they don't finish on top.

THE FACT THAT the Giants dropped two of their first three games in Boston strengthens the belief that their present tour will give rival outfits a chance to reduce the New York lead. The Terrys have been helped by the home grounds if 45 of their 71 games up to today. They won 30 out of 45 there, but have won only 14 out of 26 on the road. Evidently, they're not so good away from home, and they have 51 games to play abroad against only 32 on their own field.

The percentages of both the Giants and the Cards have been shrinking recently, and the Pirates have lost a fine opportunity to crawl up on both clubs by failing to pull out of their slump. The Cards lost 10 of their last 14 games up to today, and the Giants won only five of their last 10, but the Bucs, with a chance to gain on both, booted it away by dropping 10 of their last 15 contests.

STRANGELY ENOUGH, AMONG all the 36 National and American League players named for the all-star inter-league game to be played in Chicago tomorrow there is only one native son of the Windy City. He is Dick Bartell, Philly shortstop and former Pirate.

Though he now makes his home in California, Chicago was Dick's birthplace on November 22, 1907. Chicago friends of Freddie Lindstrom, of the Bucs, another native son, are disappointed that Freddie didn't regain his form of a couple of years ago to qualify.

MANAGER JOE CRONIN, of the Senators, fears the A's almost as greatly as the Yankees. "The Macks look formidable, even though they are quite a distance behind us," said Cronin. "They have the punch and at times the pitching. They can play Shibe Park better than any other club. So far this season, we have beaten the Philadelphia club seven times, but we have won only one game at Shibe Park. The hitters know those short barriers, and the pitchers know how to stop their foes. Every time some club beats the A's these days I feel a lot better. The Yankees are beatable in New York or Washington. What we have to watch out for are our games at Shibe Park."

Leo Durocher

ALWAYS IT HAS been said that when a great infield is lost a club will be many years in replacing it. But the Cardinals surely have upset that theory by coming back with another star outfit in a few months to replace a former championship combination on the inner defense.

The loss of Charley Gelbert and the sale of Jim Bottomley and Sparky Adams left only Frankie Frisch, but Jim Collins is filling Bottomley's shoes to perfection, Pepper Martin is far more valuable than was Adams, while the acquisition of Leo Durocher plugged the last hole, and the Cards again are presenting a mighty infield that many baseball men term the best in either league.

THERE MAY BE a wide difference of opinion among the fans at large as to what player is the greatest in the National League, but if it were left to the vote of the Dodgers Pepper Martin would win.

The opinion is based on first-hand experience, for Martin has been several kinds of poison to the Dodgers this season. In 33 times at bat against Max Carey's pitchers, the Cardinal third-sacker has pounded out 16 hits for the husky average of .485.

FIGHTING IN THE city of New York was very profitable to Jack Sharkey during his career as a front-rank heavyweight. The former champion appeared in 15 bouts in the Metropolis and they drew a total of $4,182,000. No other boxer has approached that sum in New York, though Jack Dempsey had a higher average per show, with $2,300,000 in three fights. The largest single gate at a Sharkey show was $1,083,000 for his meeting with Dempsey in 1927. Sharkey's other New York gates were: With Max Schmeling, $778,000 and $474,000; with Mickey Walker, $238,000; with Jim Maloney, $202,000; with Tommy Loughran, $250,000; with Tom Heeney, $162,000; with Mike McTigue, $160,000; with Johnny Risko, $163,000; with Jack Delaney, $88,000; with Harry Wills, $120,000; with K. O. Christner, $94,000; with Eddie Hoffman, $42,000, and with Primo Carnera, $132,000 and $198,000.

IT HAS BEEN said that the Irish are dropping out of the boxing game, but the ring sport in this country soon will see a splash of the old color from an amateur angle. A team of Irish amateurs who have defeated all opponents in Europe will sail from Southampton one week from today to take part in a Chicago tourney on August 2.

The boxers making up the Irish team are Frank Kerr, Patrick Connolly, Paddy Hughes, John Kennedy, Dick Hearns, Patrick Mullins, Patrick Hennelly and Ernie Smith. Paddy Dwyer is coach of the squad, and Capt. Liam O'Brien will represent the Irish Amateur Boxing Association.

HAROLD ROSENBERG, captain of Penn State's wrestling team for next winter and varsity end in football, probably holds the record for losing a college wrestling championship by a narrow margin. Only a scant seven seconds separated Rosenberg from the intercollegiate mat title in 135-pound division.

Harold Rosenberg

And Harold's hard luck was also tough luck for Penn State's team chances, since the Lions might have squeezed through to the championship had he won his bout instead of losing it. The narrow miss came in the final match of the intercollegiate championships, in which Rosenberg was pitted against Hurwitz, of Cornell.

THE PENN STATE grappler piled up a substantial time advantage along about the middle of the bout and had a margin of something more than two minutes, with only seconds to go. At this point, Rosenberg had the misfortune to suffer a painful rib injury while in a scramble in the center of the mat, and Hurwitz came out in the advantage position instead of being kept on the defensive. The Cornell man quickly applied a killing hold, and Rosenberg was thrown for the first time in his college career, just seven seconds before the expiration of the time limit. Had Harold been able to hold off for seven seconds more, he, not Hurwitz, would have been the champion. Rosenberg is a product of Liberty High School in Bethlehem, the school that makes top-notch wrestlers of boys in their teens. He will be a candidate for a football position again in the fall and is a certainty for the lightweight berth on the wrestling squad.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF MONDAY: THE RAILWAY THAT GOES TO SEA—South of Miami, the Florida East Coast Railway leaves the mainland, and, following the narrow chain of Florida Keys, plunges out to sea for a distance of more than 100 miles to the island city of Key West. Bridges miles in length span the wide ocean channels between the palm-fringed islands. At some points land is barely visible, and this Railroad that Goes to Sea is one of the most remarkable feats of railway engineering. A ROSE HATH NO THORNS—What we erroneously refer to as "thorns" on the rose are not thorns at all, but prickles, not to be confounded with thorns. A thorn or a spine is the sharp-pointed process of a degenerate branch which is indurated and leafless. A prickle is the outgrowth of the bark of the plant. SECOND HALF RACE OPENS

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

CITY LEAGUE

Homewood at Dormont.

NATIONAL NEGRO LEAGUE

Baltimore Black Sox at Pittsburgh Crawfords.

AMERICAN LEGION TOURNEY

Hazelwood at McKeesport.
Homewood at Turtle Creek.
Swissvale at Wilkinsburg.

By TOM BIRKS

The Dormont Club, of the City League, will open the second half of the league program with the Homewood club providing the opposition this evening at Dormont.

Practically all of the loop clubs, with the exception of Dormont and the Books, have been bolstered for the second half race, and it is quite possible that Books and Dormont, who meet at Greenlee Field Sunday afternoon in a playoff for the first half title, will meet with tougher opposition in the second half campaign.

The final game of the series featuring the Baltimore Black Sox and the Pittsburgh Crawfords will be played under the lights at Greenlee Field this evening.

Friday and Saturday the Chicago club will be the attraction at Greenlee Field, meeting the Crawfords in postponed games which will have a direct bearing on the championship race.

In yesterday's encounters with the Black Sox, the Crawfords twice came from behind to win. They took the afternoon encounter, 6 to 3, behind the three-hit hurling of Kincannon, and won the night game, 13 to 12.

Larry Dwyer, pitcher for the South Side Beer Baron mushball team, pitched both ends of a double-header yesterday, beating the Clover Club team, 3 to 0, in nine innings, and then battling 24 frames for a 3-3 deadlock.

Anderson Wins In Holiday Shoot

With a score of 98 out of a possible 100, B. C. Anderson topped the field in the holiday trapshoot at the Wilkinsburg Gun Club yesterday.

H. G. Hammer, with 96, was second and J. Wampler, with 95, was third.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The firecrackers are gone for another year (isn't that a blessing?), but there was a lot of pennant talk poppin' today in five National League cities as a positive reaction to the diamond shindigs of the Glorious Fourth.

The five cities that heard the unmistakable buzz of the pennant bee this morning were New York, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Chicago and, don't laugh, Boston.

Bill Terry's fighting Giants, still on top of the heap with a sizeable lead are among those who are NOT laughing at the Braves of Boston. Not that it's unethical, but it isn't good manners nor does it make sense to laugh off two solid wallops on one afternoon.

Since Wilkinsburg Willie McKechnie euchred Gerry Nugent out of Pinkey Whitney and Hal Lee, the Braves ran out of their sidetrack and began to high-ball along the main line of the National League.

GIANTS ON SPOT

Our Pirates today reflected a much improved morale. They did no better than achieve a 50-50 break in competition with the Cardinals yesterday, but that isn't so bad when one considers that the high-flyin' Redbirds are fired with a flag feeling.

Here's the way Manager Gibson sized up the situation:

"Don't sell the Pirates short, for the race isn't half over. It is true that we are trailing the Giants by seven games, but, on the other hand, we are but two games below the Cardinals. What I really mean to say is that the Giants have a very rocky road ahead; in fact, they have something like 50 games on the road, while the Pirates, Cardinals and Cubs have approximately the same number to play at home. In other words, the three Western flag contenders are gunning for the Broadway outfit."

FINNEY HAS BROKEN FINGER

Hal Finney sustained a broken small finger of his throwing hand in the New York series and Picinich had to face a double ordeal yesterday and catch both games. His throwing in the morning was off color, but he has had scant work. In the afternoon fracas he made Larry French work like a charm as Larry mowed down the Redbirds, and Val contributed two doubles to the Pirates attack as they won, 4-2. The Cardinals won the forenoon contest, 5-1.

STEVE HAS HARD LUCK

Steve Swetonic held the Redbirds to four hits in the morning clash of yesterday, but Steve was accorded poor support in the fourth round when the Cards scored four runs to decide the issue. Vaughan's fumble of Martin's roller started the trouble. Frisch's double and Medwick's three-bagger were pivotal punches of the big round. Piet's single with two out in the home half scored the Pirate's only tally. The St. Louis scoring in the inning was the first runmaking on the part of the Cards for 33 innings. Bill Hallahan held the Pirates to five hits.

French had a lot of stuff in the afternoon game as he outpitched Jim Mooney, who was finished for the day after four rounds of pitching. Singles by L. Waner, Lindstrom and Traynor gave the Bucs a run in the first, and Piet's double in the second led to another tally. Picinich's double with two out in the fourth scored Piet with the third run. Lindstrom worked his way around in the seventh after he had singled. Fifteen thousand saw the two games.

Women Golfers In Match Friday

The Stanton Heights Golf Club team which finished in last place in Section I in the Western Pennsylvania Women's Golf Association Team League campaign, will meet the St. Clair team, winner in Section II, in a match at the Fox Chapel Golf Club Friday morning.

The winner of the match will get a berth in Section I next season, and the loser will play in Section II.

JULY FOURTH AUTO RACES

At York, Pa.—20-mile race won by Billy Winn, Kansas City. Time, 20:33. Freddie Frame, second.

At Atlanta—25-mile race won by Chet Gardner, Long Beach, Cal. Time, 19:50 1-5. Lloyd Viewawx, second.

Heydler Asks Bucs Change Friday Date

President Heydler, of the National League, yesterday wired Pirate officials a request that they change the date of Friday's game in order to conform with the plan of the National and American leagues in the event of a rain postponement of the inter-league all-star game slated for Chicago tomorrow. Should rain stop this contest it will be played on Friday.

Capt. Pie Traynor and Paul Waner, of the Pirates, will leave tonight for Chicago to take part in the contest.

MY LIFE STORY

Boyhood Days in War-Torn Italy—Lean Years As a Laborer and Hungrier Ones As a Circus Performer

so large a part of the sporting world was laughing out loud at me. Believing that I had extraordinary physical assets for fighting—strength, weight, courage and ambition—I decided to develop them fully and to learn as much of so-called ring science as I could.

Now there have been many giants in fistic history, but few, if any, had much skill at boxing. Most of them were pure sluggers or maulers, knowing little and showing less, of what a fencer with the fist could and should do.

Now, none can become a high class boxer in a day or a month or a year. It takes years—five of them, at least—to really know one's way when battling skilled opponents. Please bear that idea in mind as you read my own story of how I picked up what I know in the art of boxing.

Primo Carnera

Of course, great size, weight and strength may still seem to be my main advantages, but, by themselves, they would not be enough to win the championship. In fact, they would be handicaps against good boxers unless I knew how to combine them and put them to effective use when in action.

Works to Develop Speed

First, I had to develop speed and so I had to take off about 30 pounds of normal weight (scaled around 290) when I first started boxing back in 1928. Naturally, I was slow then on those enormous feet, the fame of which has spread around the world.

Since I had been wrestling all comers for years, I was rather muscle-bound so required an unusual amoun of arm and shoulder exercises, plus an enormous amount of skilfu rubbing.

The strong man product of a little traveling circus and my giar build made me seem like a freak only. And so—with few exceptions—most fight critics, who saw me a few years ago, did not take my rin future seriously. That was especially true when I first showed in th United States, early in 1930. "Primo belongs in a circus" was the al most unanimous verdict of the experts, and the fans, too, for tha matter.

Of course, the ballyhood over the foreign giant when I was stil a beginner outraged and misled many good judges. They and th fans, I have since learned, were fed up on big fellows from abroac who were imported to America and advertised as "terrors" only t prove false alarms. And that is how they regarded me after laughin at my big feet and hands, and reading amusing stories concerning "Mammoth Muscle Merchant of Venice," the "Man Mountain," th "Ambling Alp," and the "Carniverous Carnera," etc., etc.

Makes Tour of States

So I was stamped definitely as "a freak," a "clown," and later—worst of all—as a "faker" when my American tour got under way That was conducted under the immediate direction of William Duffy supervised by Monsieur See. Mr. Duffy is one of the ablest handlers of boxers in the world. He has trained many of them—notably Jack Dempsey for that fight in 1927 when he stopped Jack Sharkey. He as well as Monsieur See knew I was only a novice when I first reache New York.

Now, because of that "giant" ballyhoo, there was strong evidence that many wanted to see me throughout the country. Monsieurs Duffy and See had expected that, so I was booked in advance to box in a dozen or more cities. Everywhere we appeared in 1930, and the tour went from coast to coast, capacity crowds jammed all the halls in which I boxed. Naturally, Mr. Duffy did not pick first-class opposition for his green prospect, and, after a few blows, most of my opponents went down and out. That provoked many boos and some serious scandals, upon which I will comment later.

For the present, this life story will have to depend upon my rather good memory and whatever records are at hand.

Luckily, I clearly recall the past from my boyhood in the village of Sequala, not so far from Venice—early working days as a mosaic and carpentry apprentice—many hungry months as a day labore when tramping through Southern France—poorly paid years as a combination strong man—wrestler with a mobile circus and then—my ring career, which now is important in the light of the champ pionship.

Not an Ignorant Freak

In describing what life has done for and to me, care must b taken to divide the facts from the many strange and colorful legend that have sprung up around me, many of which have a mite of truth and some of which are sheer fables. For example, it has often been published that I was really a big imbecile hypnotized by the sharp-eyed, keen-minded Monsieur See. Though without education in schools, I have never been considered a half-wit, and my former manager, despite our money differences, probably would testify that I am of normal intelligence. I speak, read and write both Italian and French passably well, and surely I have made fair progress in English during four years. Monsieur See found me an eager pupil in the as well as in boxing.

Some think I must have been foolish to find myself bankrupt after earning so much money in a few years, but, on second thought, any fair reader will understand that a boxer, as busy as I have been has little time to look to his many money affairs.

Far from being stupidly ignorant, I have been kept acquainte with important news and comments, especially about boxing, through M. See, Mr. Soresi and others associated with me. They read to me and, when needed, explain anything that interests us. I can rea Italian and French and a little English with understanding. Certainl an imbecile can't do that.

A Modern Gulliver

Later on in this sketch of my life, I will relate some more of the Carnera myths that amused and sometimes annoyed me. You wil read, for example, some strange stories of how my nose was broken—how I was reputed to have tried to carry a baby elephant as part o the day's work—how I was said to have been substituting for a brick-carrying mule the first time I was asked to take up boxing—and othe weird yarns that have attached to the so-called "Ambling Alp" in hi travels by land and sea and air.

When in England, a few years ago, I saw a pictorial book o "Gulliver's Travels." That story was filled with giants and little peo ple. Dr. Gulliver, M. See explained, was a little man among giants and, in turn, a giant to little people. He traveled much and saw some wonderful sights. Now a peasant and a pugilist can hardly be as observing as a learned Gulliver. But, I, too, have traveled much and have had many strange experiences. Of these you shall read in this story later on, if you care to do so.

How Primo Won

FIGHT TURNING POINT

Primo Carnera jolts Jack Sharkey's head under the top rope at the start of the sixth round of their battle for the world heavyweight championship. It was the beginning of the end. Shortly afterward a right uppercut spilled Sharkey for the count. Carnera's own life story begins in today's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. These are clips from the movies of the fight distributed by International News Photograph Service.

Primo Asks $10,000 Week in Vaudeville

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS.)—Primo Carnera, newly-crowned heavyweight champion, and his manager, Lou Soresi, arrived here by plane today from Atlantic City to decide upon two lucrative offers, one for four weeks in vaudeville and the other for a movie.

After breaking all attendance records for his two-day exhibition series at the seaside resort, Carnera today was asking $10,000 a week for the proffered vaudeville tour. If his price isn't met, the champion and his manager will go to the Coast to make a picture, a revival of "Tarzan."

DUDLEY SHOOTS 70, SARAZEN TURNS IN 72

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 5.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, the American veteran, who has won the British crown four times, today shot into the lead with a spectacular 68, five under par, for the first round of the British open golf championship.

Hagen was out in 32, four under par, and clipped another stroke off perfect figures over the incoming route of the "old" championship course. His total was only a stroke short of the course record set by William (Pat) Nolan, Irish pro, in the qualifying competition, and took the lead from Ed Dudley, American pro; Tom Fernie, Scotch pro; Cyril J. H. Tolley, British amateur, and Fred Robertson, British pro; who had 70's for their first round.

The American Ryder Cup captain sank putts from all corners of the greens. His card included an eagle 3 on the 530-yard fifth, where Hagen laid an iron 20 feet from the pin and holed the putt. Par and hih card:

Hagen, out	343	434	434—32
Par, in	434	454	454—37—73
Hagen, in	434	454	444—36—68

MATCHES JONES' FEAT

Hagen holed putts of nine feet for his birdies on the first and third holes. After scoring his eagle on the fifth, duplicating a feat performed by Bob Jones in winning the title in 1927, "Sir Walter" played par golf until he bagged another birdie on the famous road hole, the seventeenth, where many a title hope has been wrecked in previous years.

Six years ago Jones also shot a 68 for his first round over the St. Andrews course as the fore-runner to a victory with a total of 285, the record for the British Open until Gene Sarazen clipped two strokes off it last year with 283.

Despite the fact that several of his putts stuck on the lip of the cup, Sarazen today shot a 72, at which figure he was deadlocked with George Dunlap, Jr., American amateur; Joe Kirkwood, American pro, and Archie Compston, British pro.

Pat Nolan, Irish pro who won medalist honors, and Herbert C. Jolley, British pro, were tied at 71.

Densmore Shute gave the United States further representation among the leaders with a par 73, but Craig Wood, Johnny Farrell, BiBlly Burke and Joe Ezar were well back in the field with 77 each.

Olin Dutra and Paul Runyan were bracketed at 76.

DUDLEY 'BLOWS UP'

Dudley's 31 for the first nine, understood to be a St. Andrews record, was achieved through the medium of the greatest second shots seen here in recent generations. He missed a putt at the second to take a 5, but hit his approach "stiff" at the next to get a birdie and, at the long fifth, he sent a screaming brassie to within four feet of the pin to sink the putt for a great eagle.

Ed's second eagle of the nine holes, almost unknown here, came at the seventh, where he hold out a 100-yard shot for a 2. His card:

Out	4	5	3	4	3	4	2	3	3—31
In	5	3	3	4	5	6	4	5	4—39—70

The scores:

*Cyril J. H. Tolley, England	70

Artillery Polo Team Loses, 15-0

The South Park polo team had an easy time with the 107th Field Artillery riders yesterday afternoon in the district's feature polo tussle, played at South Park. The Parkers, led by Sid Landau with four goals, won, 15 to 0.

At Charleroi, Charleroi downed Monongahela, 10 to 9, in a hard-fought contest, and at Zelienople the Chartiers Valley team downed the Old Furnace riders, 8 to 3. Library defeated Fox Chapel at South Park, 7-6.

SHOOT CHAMPS CROWNED

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 5.—(AP.)—William T. Bryan, of Roslyn, Pa., and Emmet Swanson, of Minneapolis, won the two-man team match of the eastern small bore rifle and pistol championships here yesterday, scoring 786 out of 800 at 100 and 200 yards.

RED SOX DROP FRIBERG

BOSTON, July 5.—(AP.)—The Boston Red Sox management has announced that Barney Friberg, former National League product, who has been serving as a utility infielder, will be sent to the Mission club of the Pacific Coast League.

ALL-STARS SET FOR BIG FRAY TOMORROW

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—Baseball's game of games—the American League's best against all-stars of the National League—will be played tomorrow.

John Joseph McGraw will come out of retirement for a day to lead the National League aganst his old baseball foeman, Connie Mack, director of the American League's battlefront. The most famous sluggers of each league will swing their oats against the stuff of the pitchers considered by the fans of the country, as the best in their organizations. And 49,000 spectators will watch the spectacle at Comiskey Park.

The everlasting arguments between partisans of each league will be settled for a day at least. Babe Ruth, the most famous of home run hitters; Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and the rest of the American League's picked lineup, will see what they can do against such pitching variety as Carl Hubbell, Lonnie Warneke, Hal Schumacher and Bill Hallahan can serve up.

Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell, Oral Hildebrand, the most sensational of the junior circuit's younger pitchers; Vernon Gomez and Alvin Crowder, will be warmed up ready to pitch against Chuck Klein, Frank O'Doul, Billy Terry, Paul Waner, Chick Hafey, Frankie Frisch, Pie Traynor and Gabby Hartnett.

U. S. OARSMEN LOSE ABROAD

HENLEY, England, July 5.—(AP.)—The Princeton lightweight eight-oared crew, which came 3,000 miles to compete in the Royal Henley Regatta, was eliminated today in its first preliminary heat, losing by a length to the Quintin Boat Club.

The winners' time for the Henley distance of a mile 550 yards was 7 minutes 17 seconds.

The Hun School eight won its first heat in the Thames Challenge Cup competition—where all three American crews were entered—defeating the first Trinity crew, of Cambridge, by a third of a length in 7 minutes 26 seconds, slower even than the losing time of Princeton.

The United States lost another entry in the first heat of the Diamond Sculls as R. B. Cutler, of Harvard, bowed to V. Saurin, of France. Saurin's winning time was 8 minutes 50 seconds, 40 seconds behind the record.

William Rutherford, Jr., of Princeton, kept the United States in the running in the Diamond Sculls as he defeated E. G. H. Thompson, of the London Rowing Club, by a bare four feet in 8 minutes 44 seconds.

Saurin, European sculling champion, led Cutler from the start and won as he pleased with the Crimson bladeswinger struggling along far in the rear. The Frenchman was never pressed and his slow time was no standard of his ability as he finished as fresh as though only out for a paddle.

NATS BOOST LEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

77,365 ATTEND YANK, SENATOR DOUBLE BILL

Associated Press.

It seems to be an established fact that Babe Ruth and Company still are baseball's best drawing cards. This has been indicated before this season when the Yankees helped set attendance records at Chicago and Detroit, but it took the Fourth of July doubleheader to prove the point.

The third largest crowd in baseball history, 77,365 fans, saw the Yanks try in vain to regain the lead from the Washington Senators yesterday. Instead, they are now 2½ games behind. Washington won the first game 6-5 in 10 innings and the second 3-2, despite Babe Ruth's eighteenth homer as Walter Stewart pitched five-hit ball.

SOX WIN PAIR

The seventh place Boston Red Sox scored the only other American League double victory by walloping the Philadelphia Athletics 14 to 4 and 9 to 1.

The brilliant flinging of Ben Cantwell and Wally Berger's clouting enabled the Braves to make it a great day for Boston by winning twice from the New York Giants, National League leaders, 3-0 and 8-5.

Despite the two defeats, the Giants remained five games ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals, who divided with Pittsburgh.

The Phillies, National League tail-enders, pasted the Brooklyn Dodgers twice, 6-3 and 4-2, with a display of timely hitting featured by Chuck Klein's seventeenth homer.

CUBS, REDS SPLIT

Guy Bush and Allyn Stout displayed brilliant elbowing as the former's four-hit job gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-0 opening victory over Cincinnati and the latter pitched the Reds to an 8-1 triumph.

Cleveland's Indians and the Chicago White Sox, battling for fourth place in the American League, split even. Cleveland won the opener 5-2 with some snappy fielding behind Willis Hudlin and the Sox pounded Sarge Connally to take the nightcap, 6-3.

Bruce Campbell's tenth-inning homer gave the St. Louis Browns a 6-5 victory over Detroit in their second clash after the Tigers had pounded out a 7-4 decision.

COCHET BEATEN BY VINES

WIMBLEDON, England, July 5.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American and Wimbledon tennis champion, today defeated the former French ruler of the tennis courts, Henri Cochet, for the third straight time, winning in four sets in the semi-finals of the Wimbledon championships, 6-2, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1.

The new and the old kings of the "racqueteers" first met in the challenge round for the Davis Cup at Auteuil last July, with Vines the victor in a five-set encounter, 6-4, 6-0, 5-7, 6-8, 6-2.

They met again in the final of the American championships at Forest Hills in September and this time the lanky American youngster swarmed over the little Frenchman for a straight-set victory, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

COCHET OUTCLASSED

Cochet, apparently realizing he had met his master, congratulated Vines warmly as they met at the net after the final point was scored, smiling and shaking his head as he grasped the American youngster's hand.

Vines was in fine form through most of the match, only momentarily losing his accuracy and speed in the third set as Cochet reached the peak of his game. The American was all over the court, retrieving the best that Cochet could send and going to the net behind his cannonball service to smash out many cleanly-won points.

The champion's speedy forehand was especially impressive, the ball frequently whizzing past Cochet as the Frenchman rushed the net, and even when Cochet got his racquet on it proving entirely too hot to handle.

CRAWFORD NEXT FOE

Jack Crawford, Australian champion, became the finalist against Vines as he defeated Jiro Satoh, of Japan, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. They will meet Saturday.

The Crawford-Vines final will be the second meeting of the two at Wimbledon and the eighth within the year. Vines defeated Jack in the semi-finals last year, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3, after previously trimming him in Davis Cup play, and won three decisions from him while dropping two on the American tour of Australia last winter.

Elizabeth Ryan played her second match of the day paired with Enrique Maier, of Spain, in mixed doubles. They defeated R. Nunoi, Japan, and Susan Noel, England, 6-2, 8-6, to enter the fifth round. With Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, she earlier had gained the fifth round of women's doubles with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over the English-Polish combination of Katherine Stammers and Jedwiga Jedzrejowska.

Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke and her partner, Muriel Thomas, did not fare so well, being put out by Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree and Mrs. L. R. C. Mitchell, strong English doubles team, 6-3, 9-7.

SPORT VIGNETTES

You'd be surprised how many sports fans are going to attend the second annual picnic of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America at Marble Gate Inn, near New Kensington, next Sunday afternoon and evening . . . The assessment is only two bucks for the entire program, including a big dinner . . . If you want to join in the fun just get in touch with your favorite sports writer and you'll be as welcome as sunburn ointment at a bathing beach . . . Julius Levin is chairman of the hurling and curling committee, Jack Berger will be in charge of bob sledding and skiing, Jimmy Miller is referee of the marble shooting contests, and saddle and light harness racing will be superintended by Bill Schragen, while John Hernon, who holds all of the offices in the chapter, because he does all of the work, will be foreman for the day . . . There also is a roque and rowing committee, but it has been asleep on the job.

Speaking of fighters and such, what's going to happen in the case of Sunny Jim McVey, Bunny Buntach's Negro heavyweight, who is on his way to becoming another Jackie Rodgers as an attraction if he continues his knockout gait? . . . When McVey stopped Joe Doktor in the first round at the Bowl last Friday night it was his nineteenth kayo in 23 starts, and he has had seven in a row since joining up with Buntach.

McVey's last seven foes have averaged less than a round apiece against him . . . He knocked out an Ace Carter twice in less than a round in Fairmont, W. Va., stopped Ace Dobbins in similar jigtime fashion, stowed away Jack Taylor in a round, and, in his last three bouts, at the North Braddock Bowl, has knocked out Gene Baker and Buddy McArthur in two rounds each and Doktor in one.

All of these opponents were fighters of considerable experience . . . McArthur had just gone 10 rounds with Maxie Rosenbloom and Doktor has been in against all of them and recently fought 10 rounds at the Arena against Frankie Edgren, who got a draw with Hans Birke on the Sharkey-Carnera card, and Birke went 10 rounds with Carnera in New York.

The fans go for the punchers, and Sunny Jim, whose real name is Marcel Mecklin, is all of that . . . One devastating left hook generally turns the trick for him . . . McVey's stablemate, Lloyd Clements, of Jeannette, is giving him a close chase for knockout honors. . . . He scored nine straight before he was put away by Tom Farrow, after having the latter ready for the cleaners, and then took a long layoff and came back to knock Jack Pallat, of Cleveland, former national amateur heavyweight champion, cold in two rounds and then stopped Frank Novak in six rounds at the Bowl.

Although they specialize in knocking out heavyweights, both McVey and Clements are near the light-heavyweight limit. The former weighs less than 180 pounds, and the latter can make around 176. . . . It might not be a bad idea to add some fireworks to the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee card at Forbes Field on July 24 by putting both of these belters in preliminaries against opponents who may be expected to put them to the test.

Joey Zelano's brother, Mickey, has just returned from the Coast and has joined Joey, a bantamweight, under the management of Charley Jones . . . Mickey is a lightweight, and would like to meet the Zivic brothers . . . He boxed Eddie Zivic in the amateurs.

Harry Clark, chief porter at the Pittsburgher, who used to train fighters back in the olden days, dreamed the night before the Sharkey-Carnera fight that Carnera would be the winner by a knockout in the sixth round. . . . That's one way to pick 'em.

Apples Meyers, former Meyers Bowl promoter, who has been located in Erie for several months, was a visitor in town with his family over the Fourth . . . Lou Jallos, of Cleveland, who was boxing around here for a time, meets Werner Arcelli, of Italy, in one of the preliminaries to the Mickey Walker-Lou Brouillard bout in Boston tomorrow night.

The Jimmy Conrad whose dance orchestra you hear, with Jimmy s'nging, nightly from the Mayfair Hotel over WJAS is the same Jimmy who formerly managed boxers here, and he's doing a good job of it.—HARRY KECK.

Jimmy Callahan Loses in Battle With Police

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—James Callahan, manager of the 1913-14 Chicago White Sox baseball teams, was taken to a hospital for treatment and observation yesterday after he had staged a lively battle with a police squad. The officers found it necessary to use tear gas to subdue the 60-year-old former ball player. Callahan also managed the Pittsburgh Pirates for a time.

Neighbors called the police after Callahan had broken a number of windows and had destroyed part of the furnishings in his 14-room home. He barricaded himself in an upstairs room and threatened to shoot the officers. However, two tear gas bombs quelled him and he was removed to a hospital.

U. S. GOLF STAR FIRES CADDIE

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 5.—(INS.)—Craig Wood, American golfer competing in the British open championship here today, turned in a 77 for his first round. His score left him well back of the pace, but he was the leader in the matter of providing excitement.

Wood got the best break of all the Americans with an early start while the greens were still slow. Nevertheless, he blew up with a terrific detonation at the seventh and thereafter he was far from his placid self.

Wood even dismissed his caddie over some grievance, then relented and called the boy back. The latter refused to be taken back however. The trouble is understood to have arisen at the seventh tee where Wood charged that the caddie had misled him in the matter of direction.

It was at this hole that Wood, after playing splendidly for six holes, met disaster. First, his tee shot caught a bunker; then his recovery caught another. He finally got his fourth home and, to cap the climax, he three-putted.

Alex (Sandy) Herd, the 65-year-old Scot who has qualified in over 40 open championships, encountered hard luck when he slipped and sprained an ankle on the tenth fairway after waving to some friends in the gallery. The veteran played out the round under handicaps, helped up and down the steep banks or bunkers by friends, but probably will not play tomorrow. He scored an 82. He said:

Glenville Victor In Split-Heat Race

Lillian M., Neffco Boy, John Dean and Judge Knox scored in straight heats. In the only split-heat race, Glenville rallied in the second and third heats to win over Lindy Guy, which took the first, and Jimmy McElwyn, second in the first and third in the other two.

AGEE WINS AGAIN

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—Ell Agee of Baltimore yesterday walked away with the National Capital 10-mile run, winning handily from a field of 48 in the time of 53 minutes. It was Agee's fifth consecutive victory in the annual race.

PLAY EXTENDED IN COUNTY NET TITLE EVENT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The revival act of the Allegheny County tennis championships, in progress on the courts of the Westinghouse Club since last Thursday and slated to terminate yesterday, will not wind up till the day after tomorrow. Three days of rain and consequent jam-up of events have left men's and women's doubles with semi-final frays still to be disposed of, while final tilt of the mixed dual event is likewise yet to be reeled off.

Prior to the two-man semi-finals, the Philadelphia-Greensburg combination of Haseltine and Hammer meets Harry Wald and Jim Slocum, Pitt products, in bracket-of-eight fracas at 3 o'clock today. The survivors of this engagement meet Bill Clardy, home club ace, and Stan McCaskey, cagy Edgewooder, in penultimate tussle at 5 o'clock, while at the same hour and in the same round Dr. John and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars and West Penn premiers, take on the veteran Mt. Lebanon coalition of Neal Rumsey and Russ Unger. The finale is slated for Friday at 5 o'clock, shortly after which time Dolly Harris, Edgewood luminary, and John Brown, Lebanon driver, will battle Mrs. Jean Artzberger and Unger for the mixed doubles crown.

WOMEN STARS CLASH

Meanwhile the women's doubles event, which has been thus far unable to get under way, begins this afternoon with four teams on the list. Margaret Carspecken and Miriam Sullivan, Morgantown-P. A. A. outfit and first seeded array, oppose Dorothy Miller, clever Winged Head girl, and Sana Mourimseff, Wilkinsburg satellite, with Miss Harris and Mrs. Artzberger encountering Peggy Painter, of the Allegheny Country Club, and a partner to be selected.

Bill Haseltine, Quaker City crack and twice winner of the West Penn premiership, defeated Dr. Dave O'Loughlin in the county man-to-man final before a large gallery yesterday, 7-5, 11-9, 6-1.

In a semi-final morning seances, Haseltine nosed out George Henderson, hard-walloping Stanton Heights captain, 6-4, 6-4, as O'Loughlin pulled a tough one from the fire from Frank Broida, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4.

Mrs. Jean Artzberger scored a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Miss Carspecken for the women's singles trophy. The summary:

Men's Singles

Semi-final round—Dr. David L. O'Loughlin defeated Frank Broida, 6-8, 8-4, 8-4; William P. Haseltine defeated George D. Henderson, 6-4, 6-4.

Women's Singles

Men's Doubles

Third round—William J. Clardy and Stan McCaskey defeated Emerson K. Hess and Karl B. Anderson, 8-6, 5-7, 6-3; Dr. David L. O'Loughlin and Dr. John L. O'Loughlin won from W. E. Blum and J. Coleman, by default; Neal O. Rumsey and W. Russell Unger defeated John R. Brown and Frank Broida, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

Mixed Doubles

Semi-final round—Mrs. Jean Artzberger and W. Russell Unger defeated Miriam E. Sullivan and George D. Henderson, 6-1, 6-8, 6-4; Dolly Harris and John R. Brown defeated Peggy Painter and Dr. John L. O'Loughlin, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Dave Gilmore and Charles Lockhart won the men's doubles title in the Allegheny Country Club tourney yesterday, downing W. P. Snyder, Jr., and G. C. Burgwin, Jr., 6-3, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2 and 6-4 in the final match yesterday.

W. H. Brown and Mrs. F. B. Snowdon defeated Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Snyder, Jr., 6-3, 7-5, for the mixed doubles crown.

GAIN SEMI-FINALS

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 5.—Ed Fouse, of Aliquippa; Duane Littell, of College Hill; Stewart Snodgrass, of the Beaver Falls Towne Club, and Albert Ong, of Beaver Falls, have reached the semi-finals in the closed Beaver County tennis singles tournament.

McTiernan, Vogel Win Diving Titles

Bob McTiernan, Willows pool star, and Genevieve Vogel, of the P. A. A., are proud possessors of the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior outdoor diving championships today.

Yesterday at the South Park pool, McTiernan won the 10-foot championship, with William McQuillen, of the K. A. C., finishing second, and Mike Lohas, of the Coyne A. C., third. Miss Vogel won the 10-foot title for women, with Ann Bryan, of the Willows, second, and Frances Riner, an unattached entry, third.

Son of Moran Attempts Suicide

HORSE CAVE, Ky., July 5.—(AP.)—Tom Moran, 33, former Centre College football player and son of "Uncle Charley" Moran, major league umpire, shot himself with a shotgun at the Moran home here yesterday. His condition is critical.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, July 5.—I guess the honeymoon cruise of the Cincinnati team is all over. Right now the club is settling with a displacement of 30,000 tons. And when the outfit touches bottom, the experts will be right again.

Nick Altrock

For quite a spell, in fact almost from the start of the season, the Reds played .500 baseball. But I'll say this for Beertown-on-the-Ohio. While the Reds were showing a flash of class, the citizens turned out right well for their noble athletes and gave the turnstiles the darnedest twirling they've had since the year of the Big Wind.

But from the start the club was only 3.2 by volume and they are now getting even flatter than that.

BOBBY JONES' GOLF

By BOBBY JONES

Only Golfer Who Has Won U. S. and British Amateur and Open Championships in the Same Year.

One of my faithful correspondents, R. C. Anderson, of Long Beach, Cal., writes that he has been experimenting and having some luck with the closed-face method of swinging. He says he believes it is of help to him due to something he does not quite understand, adding:

"I find in my regular swing there is some tendency to roll the wrists, and, in coming into the ball, they don't roll back sufficiently. On irons, especially, this has led to poor shots, since the heel of the club gets to the ball first, the face being open and the toe late. If I stressed the right hand action, it upsets in other directions."

Bobby Jones

There have been only a very few golfers who have been able to accomplish a great deal using the closed—or shut-face—method, and even these have stayed at the top only while they had the advantages of youth, strength and frequent practice. I think it is fair to infer, therefore, that this is not the best way of swinging a golf club, and that it should be avoided by one who is anxious to develop a sound and correct method.

ALIGNMENT'S IMPORTANCE

It is a fallacy to assume, as so many do, that it is helpful to keep the toe of the club turned in, or the face "looking at the ball" as it is swung back. The only time when the alignment of the club with respect to the ball is important is during the period when the two are in contact. The mild contortion required to keep the face of the club shut throughout the swing has its greatest effect in restricting freedom, with a consequent loss of power.

My correspondent feels that the trouble with his "regular swing" comes from a tendency to "roll the wrists," thus opening the face of the club, and in coming into the ball, he fails to "roll them back sufficiently," that is, enough to re-close the face to its original alignment. I should make a guess that the reason for this failure to re-close the face is to be found in his body movement rather than in the way he uses his hands. The chances are that in his "regular swing" he fails to turn his body enough either going back or swinging through, and thus has to rely upon what I call "club manipulation," instead of swinging, to bring the club against the ball in proper alignment.

SHUT FACE HELPS

It is quite possible to cure this defect at the very beginning of the backswing by starting the club back with a movement characteristic of the true shut-face method; but I should not recommend following this method beyond this first stage. The average golfer is likely to make one of two mistakes at the beginning of the backswing; either by taking the club straight up from the ball by means of a movement which extends both arms away from his body, or by whipping the club around his knees with a sudden pronation of the left wrist.

I have seen many players aided by being told to begin the backswing by shoving back with the left hand as though they would make this hand pass beneath the right in the first movement, all the while keeping the hands relatively close to the right leg. This is the characteristic beginning of the shut-face method and it has the virtues of starting the body to turning and of preventing the lifting of the left shoulder and head. No doubt, this is the part, and the only part, of the closed-face method from which Mr. Anderson derived any benefit. Starting back in this way he began to use his body correctly and so found himself hitting the ball straight. I should recommend that he pursue the shut-face no farther, but, after getting under way, to allow the face of the club to open in its accustomed fashion.

HARVARD CREW FAVORED BY DRAW

LONG BEACH, Cal., July 5.—(AP.)—Whatever advantage is to be had in the lanes has gone to Harvard and Cornell. The national regatta officials yesterday made drawings for positions in the preliminaries of the event over the Olympic 2,000-meter course here tomorrow afternoon.

In the first heat Harvard drew lane No. 4, which is favored with the protection of the bank and grand stand against the slight southwest quartering breeze which sweeps the course. Washington, in the same heat, drew No. 3 position with the University of California at Los Angeles No. 2, on the outside.

The finals for the national intercollegiate championship will take place Saturday, with the consolation race between the two crews eliminated Friday.

SEALS DISCUSS DROWNINGS

Baseball, swimming, water sports, life saving, advice on how to avoid drownings and Boy Scout activities will be discussed on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Nathan H. Kaufman, swimming director of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, will speak on the water sports and kindred subjects, and Edwin A. (Dink) Rowlands, Bellevue baseball and basketball luminary, on baseball.

Rowlands plays for the Bellevue Welfare baseball team and the Mellon National Bank basketball team and coaches the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Bobcats passers. He is a former South Hills and Dormont High School player. Kaufman is a swimming specialist well known for his invention of safe water sports.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be the master of ceremonies, and Leland Becraft the announcer.

INDIAN RUNNER WINS

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—A record breaking crowd of 35,000 spectators saw Indian Runner, surprise thoroughbred of the American turf, score a smashing victory over Gallant Sir in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington Park yesterday.

Lack of Attention To Orders Costs Dizzy $100

To Dizzy Dean, eccentric hurler of the St. Louis Cardinals, has come the realization that life is real and life is earnest—and the realization cost Dizzy 100 iron men.

Dizzy was listed among the players advertised to barnstorm Elmira, N. Y., on a Monday exhibition game. He failed to appear on the Elmira-bound train.

Just a little mistake, said Dean. Instead of getting on the Elmira train he had boarded the sleeper carrying the regular pitchers to Pittsburgh in advance of the series with the Pirates. Gabby snapped:

"That mistake will cost you just $100 for not paying more attention to orders."

BANNEROT WINS FIRST MATCH

Bannerot, defending champion and medalist, who set a new course record of 64 in the qualifying round, defeated James Loar, 16-year-old Kingwood star, 5 and 4.

Making his first appearance in a major tournament, Loar was no match for the long-driving champion who went out in 37 and had par from the turn until the match ended on the fourteenth green.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS

First Division—C. Meadows, Beckley, defeated T. M. Bloch, Wheeling, 2 and 1; Harold Bloch, Wheeling, defeated F. M. Crum, Huntington, 3 and 2; Fred Vannerni, Jr., Charleston, defeated James Loar, Kingwood, 5 and 4.

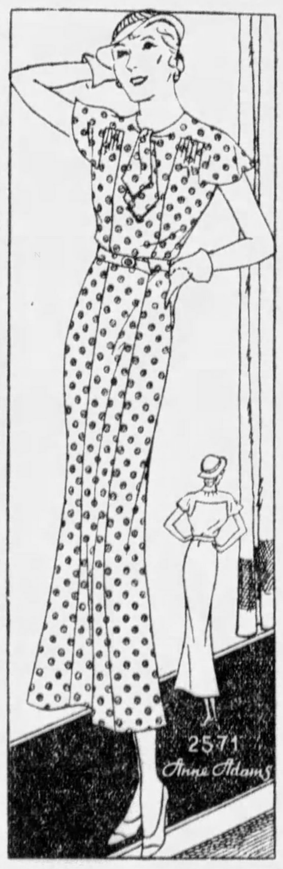
Easy to Make
Pattern 2571
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



Is this captivating frock easy to make? with only six parts to the pattern, and the illustrated lesson for each step in cutting and sewing . . . what could be a quicker and more delightful way to add a new frock to your wardrobe? The front panel and shoulder capelets are cut in one, and the tie slips through a slash at the neck. Use printed cottons for economy and chic.

Pattern 2571 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 36 or 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style wanted. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

AUTO INDUSTRY GOING AHEAD

DETROIT, July 5.—(INS.)—After struggling through three years of the worst depression experienced by any American city, Detroit at the half-way mark of 1933 appeared today to be leading the entire nation on the road back to prosperity.

Captains of the automobile industry were amazed at the sustained strength manifested by motor sales. The sales charts are defying all experience by failing to show the usual summer decline. Instead, most companies are reporting a continued steady increase.

For the Detroit area, all motor sales marks established since the boom period of 1929 were shattered on June 30. On that day Wayne County bought 866 passenger cars.

R. L. Polk & Co. announced May auto sales in the nation at large totaled 160,243, 34.5 per cent greater than April and 20 per cent above May, 1932.

Market Remains Steady As Profit-Taking Hits List

Initial firmness in the market invited heavy realizing sales through the forenoon but selling was absorbed in most directions without making serious impress on the price levels. The profit-taking which asserted itself could hardly have been unexpected in view of the spectacular nature of the rise which characterized dealings on Monday. Selling was quite general in scope, lending color to the idea widely held that it was largely realizing induced by the sharpness of Monday's rise and a disposition to anticipate something in the way of a corrective reaction rather than outright liquidation.

Only once in the last 75 years has a situation like the present existed when the prospect was for relatively small crops of all grains in the same year. Intense heat and drought were responsible. Roughly, the area which suffered embraced between 250 and 300 million acres of cultivated crops of all kinds far up in Canad to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard. Western Canadian grain crops entered the critical month of July with less than average prospects because of heat and drought and a scourge of insects, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Steel ingot production for the week ended July 3 is placed at approximately 52 per cent of capacity in the compilation by Dow, Jones & Co. inc. This compares with about 50 per cent in the week before and 47½ per cent two weeks ago. United States Steel Corporation is estimated at 42 per cent against a little under 40 per cent in the previous week and 38 per cent two weeks ago. Independents are credited with a rate of 60 per cent compared with 58 per cent in thep receding week and 55 per cent two weeks ago.

The European conception of "stabilization" is described in Washington as "very different" from the Administration's conception. In Europe they are concerned over the current rate of exchange of their currencies and consequently they regard stabilization as including an arrangement to fix the ratios between those currencies. This country looks to a different form of stabilization based on the price levels of goods and commodities within the domestic market. This aim is to create a dollar of stable purchasing power. If other countries would follow this example the currencies of the world would soon automatically stabilize themselves in relation to each other.

Estimates based on the showing of the first eleven roads to report for the period, indicate that freight loadings again rose sharly last week. These roads, which accounted for 47.3 per cent of the total carloadings reported the previous week, disclosed a rate of expansion, which if experienced by carriers that have not yet reported, would indicate loadings ran some 35,000 cars ahead of the preceding week. Such a showing would indicate an approach to the 1932 peak reached in the week ended October 15 at 650,578 cars.

The situation in the copper metal market was described as a rather wild one in informed circles. Long a buyers' market, the situation is said to have reversed itself recently and copper, which sold under the 5 cents a pound level last year, was quoted today as having sold at 8½ cents. Sellers were in the saddle and copper was scarce at the above hmentioned price, most producers holding out for 9 cents. The rush of buying was ascribed to renewed accumulation by export accounts which stirred up considerable nervousness among domestic consumers and a disposition among the latter to make some provision for future needs.

PROFIT-TAKING HOLDS STOCKS IN CHECK

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Financial markets returned from their Fourth of July celebration today in rather subdued spirits attended by realizing in most departments.

While stocks and staples generally weathered the "cashing in" procedure with equanimity, there were some noticeable gaps at times in the price ranges of shares and grains. Copper and alcoholic equities, on the whole, gave the best performance, with several specialties stepping out in the plodding parade. There was little buoyancy, however, in any group.

Wheat, corn, oats and rye had their ups and downs, but showed a steadying tendency after some early relapses. The dollar slumped about 6 cents in terms of the British pound, although it rallied moderately after the first sinking spell. Domestic copper sold at 8½ cents a pound compared with a previous price of 8¼.

Profit taking flurries were not altogether unexpected in leading financial circles. Despite the brightness of the domestic industrial picture, some analysts were pointing out that the technical condition of the market has been weakened a bit during the past few days' sharp advances and the consequent decimation of the "short" account.

In various banking quarters the hope was expressed that the market would take a "rest" during the next few weeks in order that gains might be consolidated and the ground-work laid for continuation of the upswing at a more moderate pace. Virtually all commentators agree that if the present business improvement holds up only fairly well through the usual summer dull period, and no seriously detrimental international news appears, the situation next fall should be particularly cheering.

CORN HIGHEST SINCE 1930

CHICAGO, July 5.—Corn became the grain market leader today and ran upward about 5 cents a bushel to the highest level in more than three years.

Uneasiness regarding the outcome of the new crop, which has its critical period of growth ahead, with unfavorable weather and widespread damage from insects, led at some stages to nearly complete absence of offerings and to outbursts of unusual activity on the part of buyers. With the market fluctuating fast, blackboard quotations both on corn and wheat were frequently much out of line with prices in the speculative pits.

Commodity Market Dedicated in N. Y.

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Physical consolidation of several of New York's important commodity markets was effected today with the formal dedication of new quarters of Commodity Exchange, Inc. An agreement of merger was reached several months ago and declared in effect as of May 1 last.

Local Companies Advance Cement

Effective July 7, the Green Bag Cement Company, with offices in Pittsburgh, announces an advance of 25 cents a barrel to $2.07 to dealers in the Pittsburgh district. Prices at other points are governed by freight rates. The West Penn Portland Cement Company announced a similar advance.

Hearing Date Set For 'Frisco Plan

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(INS.)—A hearing on the application of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company under the national bankruptcy act was set today by the Interstate Commerce Commission for July 18.

The hearing will be held in Washington before Director Oliver E. Sweet, of the finance division.

United Air Orders 15 More Fast Ships

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—United Air Lines announced today that it had ordered 15 additional three-mile-a-minute Boeing transport planes, which will bring the total now in production for the company to 75, worth $4,000,000.

Exchange Puts Ban On Distillers Pfd.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The New York Stock Exchange announces that National Distillers Products Corporation preferred stock, $40 par value, is to be stricken from the list on July 17 next.

DIVIDEND NEWS

Central Tube

REASON FOR U. S. BUSINESS GAIN DEBATED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 5.—For the first time since prosperity faded out in 1929, there is general recognition that business volume has been increasing in recent weeks.

Mr. Rukeyser

There is, however, some debate as to what is responsible for the betterment.

Partisans would say that obviously the "new deal" economic program is responsible for recovery.

Yet a substantial school of economic thought contends that business would have recuperated anyway.

This latter viewpoint is like that of the medical patient who thanks the Lord if he gets well and blames the doctor if he does not.

BABSON'S VIEW

After reviewing six basic factors of recovery, Roger W. Babson, economic soothsayer of Wellesley Hills, Mass., in a series of articles, expressed the view that the upturn was not dependent on stimulants. The statistician said:

"I feel that business would be recovering naturally by itself without the artificial stimulants which Washington is giving it. Just as the decline could not be stopped from 1929 to 1932, so the improvement could not be stopped today."

NOT AUTOMATIC

I cannot wholly concur in Mr. Babson's intimation that the recovery is 100 per cent automatic and inevitable.

I do believe, however, that the accession of President Roosevelt to power was fortunately timed at a phase when the raw materials for recovery were at hand.

Its view is that the economic situation can be managed.

If through wise leadership it makes proper use of dynamic shortages and bargain prices which it found on coming to power, management in the large will have much to be proud of.

Means of Hedging Against Drops in Currency Outlined

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics New York University.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Since it appears that the dollar is not to be stabilized, and that the price-lifting operation is to be continued, "hedging" against a depreciation in the dollar is still in order. In what different ways may hedging be done?

1—PROBABLY THE most direct way is to sell dollars short in foreign exchange. This can ordinarily be done through dealers in exchange. If one buys a pound sterling for $4.20 for example, and the dollar then falls so that the pound becomes worth $4.50, the transaction affords a 7 per cent depreciation in our currency.

2—Another way is to get gold. This metal is the world's standard of value, and, as dollars are depreciated by the Washington policy, gold automatically becomes worth more dollars.

SOME WEALTHY people have stored gold abroad. Most of us, however, can not do this. But we may buy securities on the foreign bourses. Then we can sell them for gold-secured currencies, and keep the funds in a foreign bank. This has been done to a great extent.

Much the same thing is accomplished by selling commodities abroad. Many exporters here have done this, and left the proceeds of their sales in England or France.

Or we may buy the foreign dollar bonds of countries which still maintain gold payment. Many have bought United Kingdom 6½ per cent bonds and Canadian bonds, for example, and these have gone up in terms of dollars.

3—FOREIGN GOLD mine stocks offer a distinct hedge. There are free gold markets abroad. The gold from the mines in which the stock has an equity is sold at a premium over dollars, which rises as the dollar falls.

The "brain trust" cannot control the foreign mine and one can deposit the dividends, as well as the proceeds of the sale of the stock, in a foreign bank.

4—One of the most direct ways to hedge against dollar depreciation is to buy commodities on our exchanges—hides, wool, metals, cotton and wheat. Their prices are directly affected by the fall of the dollar. If the dollar continue to fall, they will rise, and if one sells out at the top one gets enough dollars to make up for the decline in the value of the dollar.

5—Of course, one may also buy stocks. If one buys on margin the value of the debt to the broker becomes less, and the stock may rise.

The most logical hedge would be in the stocks of companies which produce such commodities as crude oil, raw sugar, metals, etc. This is true because if a company has to buy much raw material and employ much labor it may not be able to increase its profits as prices and wages rise.

But a company which produces its own raw materials, or one which holds large inventories bought at low prices, may also benefit.

6—SPECULATIVE bonds have been a good hedge. Many of these have been selling at prices which indicate fear of receivership. Where the margin of safety has increased, the bonds may rise. For example, the 5 per cent bonds of strong companies selling under 75, may rise as the dollar goes down, especially as long as money rates are kept so low.

7—Of course, one may buy consumers' goods as a sort of hedge. But stocks of such things as clothes bring in no income. Nor can they be sold to realize cash when their prices rise. They may result in economy in spending, but are not a hedge in the sense that the other transactions are.

BUT AS prices get higher and higher, the need of hedging probably gets less, and the safety of the hedge becomes a more important consideration.

Some day the dollar's decline will cease and stabilization occur. Then hedging will cease. We will probably find the thing overdone, and many will, all at once, try to realize on the hedging purchases or cover the short sales of dollars.

Currency Stand Makes Isolation Policy Quite Certain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE REITERATION of the administration's stand in opposition to all proposals for stabilization of currency, besides providing a Pre-Fourth of July display of fireworks in the security and commodity markets, make it quite certain that the United States will pursue a policy of isolation in working out President Roosevelt's planned business recovery.

Opinion is general that any surviving hopes for coming to an agreement for planned recovery on a world-wide basis have been completely shattered.

By mere coincidence, the President's massage to the London Economic Conference, amounting to a declaration of the economic independence of the United States from European policies, came on the eve of Independence Day.

If the conference is not abruptly called off, it seems certain that it will die a lingering death of sheer boredom over its own futility.

* * *

Some Economists Express Alarm

COUNTRIES WHICH depreciate their currencies usually enjoy a temporary advantage in competing for foreign trade. The stand of the United States against stabilization of currencies suggests a serious danger, in the opinion of some economists.

The fear has been expressed that competitive currency depreciation may result in a world-wide race for export trade. It is conceivable that this might eventually result in currency deflation similar to that which took place in Germany after the war. It must be remembered that, while the administration has taken some unprecedented steps, a thorough appreciation of economic factors has been displayed. The drastic consequences of such complete currency devaluation certainly are realized at Washington and will be avoided.

Industry Enters Third Quarter

IN THE MEANTIME industry has started the third-quarter at the highest operating rate in over a year. The general opinion is that a major share of the recovery has been due to natural causes. The steps taken by the administration have had an important psychological effect and have accentuated the speed of the recovery.

Up to the present time, inflation in this country has been largely in the form of expectation of future developments. While it is obvious that there is to be some form of currency devaluation the extent remains unknown. There has been no real currency inflation up to the present time.

Water Works Power Production Higher

NEW YORK, July 5.—Output of electric energy of the American Water Works and Electric Company in the week ended July 1 show a total of 36,295,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 39 per cent over the output of 26,174,000 for same week in 1932.

BANK DEPOSITS SHOW SWITCH

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(INS.)—A sharp gain in time deposits in leading banks and a similar decrease in demand deposits today was said by officials to be a reflection of provisions of the Glass-Steagall bank reform and guarantee bill prohibiting present payment of interest on demand deposits.

The reports of Federal reserve member banks in 90 leading cities, made public by the board as of July 28, revealed a decrease in net demand deposits of $82,000,000 and an increase in time deposits of $70,000,000.

Holdings of government securities declined sharply, amounting to $54,000,000 in the New York district, $12,000,000 in the Chicago district and $53,000,000 in all other reporting districts.

Daily Oil Output Up 23,200 Barrels

TULSA, Okla., July 5.—(AP.)—The free flowing of Oklahoma wells was the chief reason for an increase of 23,200 barrels in the daily average crude oil production of the United States last week, the Oil and Gas Journal reports. Production rose from 2,738,020 to 2,761,220 barrels daily.

Philadelphia Area Business Expanding

PHILADELPHIA, July [illegible] (INS.)—Spurred by rising commodity prices and increases in wages, business and industrial recovery made large gains in the Philadelphia district over the past week, a survey revealed today.

A direct effect of increased employment was the slashing of public relief rolls in Philadelphia, Allentown, Norristown, Chester and other Eastern Pennsylvania cities.

Union Trust Shows Increased Deposits

In a statement of its condition as of June 30, 1933, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh shows capital, surplus, profits and reserves of $75,795,203, an increase of $914,243 since the statement of March 31, 1933. Deposits were $180,379,689, an increase of $16,401,837. Trust funds were $435,701,345, an increase of $49,900,252. Cash and United States government securities, $147,193,339, an increase of $16,270,895. Corporate trusts were $881,766,300.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Psychic Victory

Opening Hand psychic bids are generally conceded to be losing bids Either they result disastrously through the partner of the bidder having a strong hand and carrying the bidding to an extreme height or they affect the partnership morale to such an extent that on the other hands the partner is afraid to raise when the player has an actual bid. However, it must be admitted that occasionally such a bid meets striking success.

There is one young player in New York City who has a great variety of psychic bids and is bound to open the bidding on any occasion when he holds no cards of any value. This is Mr. Edward Hymes, Jr. His latest contribution to the realms of psychic bidding, which resulted very favorably for him and his partner, occurred in a recent Duplicate game. Mr. Hymes was Dealer, and the hand was:

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

♠ AKJ ♡ AK ◇ AKQJ ♣ AQJ8	North / West East / South	♠ 82 ♡ Q72 ◇ 1097 ♣ K9652
	♠ Q954 ♡ J65 ◇ 5432 ♣ 74

Obviously this hand produces a Grand Slam at notrump, without even the necessity for a finesse. There are 5 club tricks, 4 diamonds, 3 hearts and 2 spades, or 14 top cards, and, if there were time to get it, a fifteenth trick could be developed by means of a finesse in spades. Inferring from the fact that he held nothing at all that someone else must hold enough for an Opening bid, Mr. Hymes thought no harm could be done by starting the ball rolling. The bidding at his table proceeded thus:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	2 ◇ (1)	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 ♡ (2)	Pass	Pass (3)
Pass

1—The player making this bid meant it as a force to game. Unfortunately for the partnership, East, as it later developed, did not understand it that way.

2—The exact purpose of this bid I cannot understand. In keeping with the Forcing principle, it would appear that the bid of three clubs, which East could not misconstrue, would be much more effective here before making the final bid of seven notrump, which is clearly the correct contract. When partner can show a stopper in clubs, obviously the taking of 13 tricks depends only upon a successful spade finesse.

3—East, believing West's Jump Overcall of two diamonds to indicate a rather weak hand, perhaps in this case a two-suiter, decides to let well or bad enough alone.

The result, of course, is easy to see. Although eight trumps were held by the opponents, West made the contract of three hearts and an overtrick as well, but the partnership gained the peculiar distinction of failing to bid even a game on a hand that, played at any one of three declarations, would produce a Grand Slam. I fear the effect of this on Mr. Hymes may be very unfortunate. In fact, I am expecting any day now to hear him make an Opening two-bid on an all-x hand.

Today's Question

You hold

♠ AKJ1054 ♡ AQ2 ◇ AK3 ♣ 4

You have bid two spades and your partner has responded with two notrump. What do you bid?

Answer: Three spades. Once you have made an Opening two-bid, naturally the bidding must be kept open until a game contract is reached. There is no sense in crowding the bidding and keeping your partner from giving you any information. Although your partner has bid two notrump the first time, denying the holding of more than 1 honor-trick, he still may have something to show you on the next round of bidding if you keep the bidding low. Bid only three spades, as you are in no hurry, and try to give as clear a picture of your hand as possible. A Slam is not absolutely hopeless, even with partner's two notrump response.

SAVAGE PARADISE

Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas

By MARGARET MATCHES

CHAPTER XLII.

Tony, the young planter, was at the shore to greet us, pleased at this unexpected visit. He had been visiting for a couple of days at Mokareng, and it was only luck that had brought him back to Pak Island in good time for us. The plantation house of three rooms and wide veranda was pleasant enough; like its master, it looked well-kept, clean, cheerful and self-respecting. The natives had brought fruits for barter, and already there was a pile of bananas, papaws and mangoes half a head high at the foot of the bungalow steps. Fresh fruit meant a lot to us after a diet of tinned apricots. The planter's boss-boy did the buying. I watched him with amusement. Glancing at the pile of fruit contemptuously, he offered a stick of tobacco here (grudgingly), and kicked aside there what he considered unfit. And he paid about a tenth of what we should have paid for enough to last us several days aboard the schooner.

The inhabitants of Pak are keenly curious. As we sat on the veranda, smoking and — yes — having a snifter now and then, natives crowded about the steps to watch every move we made. A mary, bolder than the rest, sidled up and held out her hand for a cigaret. I gave it to her. It was a mistake, for there was a rush of supplicating hands. Tony left us for a moment; his absence gave them courage to crowd closer. Like children waiting to be told they mustn't, they sidled up the steps, hugging the railing. The master returned and went into furious action.

Striding to the head of the steps, he shouted: "Raus, you bush-kanakas, you! What you think—house belong me all same house kongkong!" Doubtless it was the look in his eye that sent them scuttling into the bushes below and on to safety by the beach. From that new vantage point they trained on us their unsatisfied curious eyes.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Tony had a difficult situation on his hands; it was imperative that he keep his authority by maintaining a certain fear in the hearts of these natives. For the kanakas themselves owned part of the island, and their villages lay on the outskirts of his plantation. He had arranged with them to buy their copra and whatever produce they could supply that he needed. In turn, his trade-store furnished them, in barter, with the things that were dear to their hearts. There is a handsome profit to be made by South Sea traders supplying glass beads, tobacco, and the giddy and often surprising trifles that kanakas adore.

For instance, more than one trader in times past has cleaned up a tidy sum on old newspapers. A kanaka likes to smoke trade tobacco—the sticky, black braids of weed that all of us out there use for native trading where shillings are of no value. The natural and best way to smoke this is wrapped in a dried leaf. But when the white-fella-mastah smokes his tobacco neatly wrapped in paper, the kanaka hankers to ape him. An old sheet of newspaper answers the purpose admirably. A kanaka, therefore, values a sheet of the Sydney "Sun" or the London "Times" more than he does a bright shilling representing many days of toil on a plantation. It is the old story again of supply and demand. The canny Admirality trader buys his old newspapers by the pound and sells them for a shilling a sheet.

SKIPPER ADMIRED

The skipper was in an excellent frame of mind, mellow enough to be good company. He had come ashore all decked out regardless; white uniform with gold and blue shoulder stripes, white oxfords, white helmet. He looked a very skipper, and we were proud of him. The natives gazed at his immaculate whiteness in awe and respect; nothing equalling him had ever struck Pak before. No mere plantation manager had ever made such an impression.

Tony, the progressive young man, had a motor lorry, and in it he drove us two miles along a rough bullock-path to the villages of Hahai and Mogera. We must of necessity climb down from the lorry when the road abruptly ended, and walk along a croton-bordered path, where gaudy hibiscus, heavy with rain, drenched sleeve or collar whenever they brushed against us.

Hahai was a fenced-in clearing. We climbed over a kind of stile that served as a gate in the village, and found ourselves on the outskirts of a large, clean common, around which clustered about 30 low circular grass huts. It was close to sunset time, and as might have happened in a New England hamlet at such an hour, the villagers were quietly sitting around their respective doorways. Unlike New Englanders, however, they squatted cross-legged on the ground, and most of them were engaged in chew-betel. Alternately they took a bite of the white-centered fruit and then took a lick at lime-covered kombung stick; the combination making a brilliant red saliva, which eventually was spat in a crimson splotch on the ground. In New Guinea, the floor of a kanaka village and the paths of a white town look startlingly as if they had been the scenes of recent massacres.

BUYS BEADED SKIRT

We created something of a sensation as we approached, what with our resplendent skipper and the hitherto unknown vision of a white mary. I wore the remnants of my "tropical" raincoat—the fetching transparent affair of white oiled silk which I had bought in New York, beautiful but dumb.

Under a thatched shelter was a huge garamut, elaborately carved. Under another shelter one of the magnificent sailing canoes of Manus was in process of creation. The 30-foot keel had been hollowed out of a single tree-trunk. Even in its uncompleted state it was a thing of beauty and admirable workmanship.

Tony and the skipper were up at the other end of the village bartering with the natives for beadwork. I had wanted one of the rare ceremonial bead skirts, or pulpuls, from the Admirality Islands. Now was my chance. A word to Tony, and he had a mary bring forth from the fastness of her hut a really beautiful apron, or skirt, woven in geometric panels of red, white, blue and gray beads. It was fringed with shells, feathers, and bits of calico, and it tied about the hips with a woven-bark cord. Neither shillings nor tobacco interested the mary or her husband as payment for the pulpul; only beads in return would do, enough beads to make a new skirt. Tony said it would take about eight shillings' worth of trade beads, and that he had some in his store. So we closed the deal; the mary and her husband were to trudge over to the plantation in the morning, and Tony was to deliver to them the beads. Handing over to Tony eight bright shillings, I took possession of the pulpul.

SKIPPER BARGAINS

I don't know when beads went into the Admiraltys. The Admiralty Islanders have decked themselves out in beadwork as far back as the present white settlers know. Doubtless the first eighteenth century discoverers introduced these simple people to the bright bits of glass. Why Pak alone should have gone bead-minded, I could not discover. While the rest of the Admiralty Islands make beautiful bead armlets and belts, only Pak goes in for beads in a really big way.

The skipper was trading away furiously. He had already bought two molting hens, price two marks each, and given instructions that they be delivered aboard the Nuloa. (Incidentally, one of them never arrived.) And now he was bargaining with a mary for a very ragged pulpul. He was not very sober, and was in prime condition to make some move to antagonize the natives if they balked him in any way. We came upon him holding the moth-eaten garment up across his own rotund corporation to get the effect, his helmet jauntily on the back of his head.

Apparently he and the mary couldn't agree as to the price. He was pointing out to the puzzled crowd of savages the skirt's shortcomings. At length he appeared to reach a compromise—five sticks of tobac. We jeered at him, saying it was a terrible pulpul, so with great dignity he pushed it back to the bewildered mary. It was time to proceed to Mogera if we would reach there before night lowered. As I stepped over the stile an old lapoon came up with a feathered and carved singsing headpiece, and tendered it to Tony for missus-belong-'im. It was one of the finest things I have from Melanesia.

NATIVES IN MOURNING

Mogera was a jungle idyl, bathed in rose light, beneath its spindly cocoanut palms. The luluai's mary stood before her hut as we intruded upon the quiet village. Her arms, from wrists to shoulders, were covered with broad bead armlets. Her well-shaped head was shaved to the skull. The bushy grass panels of her pulpul did little to hide her lithe figure. Bead shin-bands covered her legs to the knee. She looked like a bronze statue as she stood motionless and watched us enter among the cluster of thatch huts. I spoke to her: "Good day, mary." Without answering she turned and, stooping down, entered her hut. Each native wore a carved dog-tooth necklace.

Among the awed, staring children stood one little monkey colored black as coal from crown to toe. He was an orphan, and blackened with charred copra shell for his period of mourning. At a doorway sat a splendid and comely mary; a weird sight, for exactly one-half of her head and body was painted a cardinal red and the other half was blackened even as the little orphan. She was a widow. A group of marys squatted or stood around her.

I walked over alone to see them and to examine this strange creature more closely. My coming caused a sensation. They had never seen a white woman before, and were at a loss how to catalogue me. A hideous old lapoon mary approached and eyed me as curiously as I did her. She smiled a horrible gummy smile, sociably. I smiled back. "Good day, mary." Tentatively she put out her horny hand and carefully stroked me, evidently wondering at the comparative flatness and concealment of my figure.

Then they began feeling me curiously. I was in a ridiculous, somewhat embarrassing situation. My inclination was to call "Hey, Tony!" for rescue. But they were friendly enough; they merely wanted to find out what sort of queer being I was. So, instead of calling for help, I pushed away the dozen hands that were patting and squeezing me, pushed them gently but most firmly, and flourished my tin of cigarets. Immediately their interest changed, and hands were outstretched, to my relief, for a different purpose. Their unintelligible tribal chatter rose shrill on the quiet evening. Jake, the engineer, strolled over, hands in his pockets, to see what the disturbance was about. He found me distributing cigarets, after which I parted with the women on very good terms. I didn't let him know how nearly I had reached a crisis at the hands of those ladies.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.

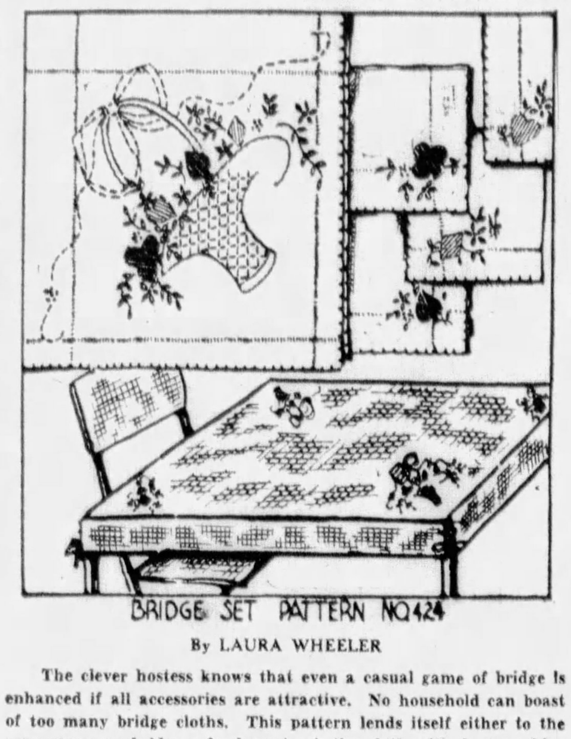
Date of Birth..... Address.....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

BRIDGE ACCESSORIES



By LAURA WHEELER

The clever hostess knows that even a casual game of bridge is enhanced if all accessories are attractive. No household can boast of too many bridge cloths. This pattern lends itself either to the very necessary bridge refreshment set, the cloth with four napkins or to the bridge cloth that is made of practical sateen or some other dark material that shows off the cards well. Only the simplest stitches are used, and a variety of colors, with the red and the black of the card motifs predominating, make an interesting color scheme. Pattern No. 424 includes a transfer pattern of two baskets 5x9 inches, two smaller corners 2x2½ inches, and four napkin corners 1½ inches square, directions for making the set and color suggestions.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Well, fellows, we sure did have a nice Fourth of July, didn't we? We hope not one of you anywhere was burned by firecrackers. Being burned isn't any fun. The best way to be sure it doesn't happen is not to play with firecrackers. There are so many other ways to have good times if a fellow is smart and knows how to find them.

Now that the Fourth is over, too, we are ready with more plans for the Junior Patrols. All over the country, but especially around Pittsburgh, of course, Junior Patrols are being organized. You will have to work fast if you wish your gang to be the first Junior Patrol in your district.

First send in the pledge slips for all the fellows in your neighborhood who wish to join. When you get your buttons and membership cards, hold a meeting and elect a captain and a first lieutenant.

Here's one from Crafton. Jimmy Hayes writes:

"Dear Junior:

We're glad to hear it Jimmy. Ice cream is good for a fellow. Even when people are ill, like Junior with the measles, they give them ice cream. But you shouldn't eat too much. Just enough. Ice cream is like candy or cake. It is a dessert, first of all, and if you had it for dinner every meal and ate it in between times too often, you would get tired of it. The little taste buds every fellow has on his tongue would get tired even of ice cream if you ate too much.

Ridgway J. Clark, who lives at 538 Main street, Irwin, Pa., has written a poem about the Junior Patrol. Here it is:

The Junior Patrol is a helpful thing,
It helps little children

In the Junior Patrol there are lots of boys,
They can swim and dive
And not use decoys.

We would like to see some more poetry from you, Ridgway. You have the right idea about the Junior Patrol.

Have you ever noticed, fellows, how dirty and untidy rubbish lying about the yard and street makes the neighborhood look? It not only looks bad, but it isn't healthy, either.

It would help others if all Junior Patrol members would see that their neighborhood is kept clean and tidy. You could paint posters and signs asking people to put rubbish in waste baskets, and pick up all the loose papers you see.

Signs on fences, and writing with chalk on walks doesn't look very good either. Junior Patrol members won't scribble with chalk, and will help keep signs off buildings and walls.

We had a nice letter from Frances Murray, of Allison Park, Pa. Frances writes:

"Dear Junior:

"I am going to start a club, and it will be called the Junior Patrol of Babcock Boulevard.

"There will be 10 members, four girls and six boys.

"We are going to hold our first meeting Friday, and after the meeting I will get the First Lieutenant to write you some of the suggestions for helping others we have made."

That's a fine letter, fellows. We will be waiting to hear your suggestions for helping others, Frances.

More tomorrow.

Or the Saga of Sweeney's Gulch

By Calamity Bella

Hard Hearted Mazie, shot down Mike Gumboil rather than let him open a saloon in Sweeney's Gulch. Today Aune Bella's grandpa tells how the town met the situation:

Some there were cried: "String her up!" The town decided then
That this was not the thing to do out West, where men are men;
They compromised by holding court next morn at half past ten,
And Mazie was my client, while the judge was Shifty Ben.
I sure did sweat at Mazie's threat to plug me if I lost,
And hastened to get witnesses for her at any cost;
I coached them high, I coached them low, while I did nigh exhaust
Myself to teach that dame to screech enough to thaw a frost.
The jury pew had quite a few of Gulchtown's sagest brains;
The Two-Gun Kid, Big Butch, a Yidd, the Chinese cook, Chow-Meins,
The Sagebrush Hick, old Dead-Eye Dick, some half-breeds, Swedes and Danes,

New Kind of Peace Envoy

There has been a peace conference every year since 1918. That was the first. Should have been the last.

We certainly were happy 15 years ago when they told us the war was over and that amity and good will had taken charge.

That was in the dear, dim days beyond referendum and recall. Every intelligent power signed a paper, the diplomats posed under an orchard of high silk hats and nations settled down to industry.

With everybody agreeing what, then, was the trouble? It must have been because everybody agreed. That's dangerous. We should always have one man at a conference who is paid to disagree.

It does no harm for somebody to get up and holler, "I object," or "Carthage must flop."

Senator Glass did it at the Morgan investigation and hyped up things no little. The younger Cato did it in the Roman Senate and furnished salt and pepper for many a dull session.

We have no special selection in mind for the man who shall be plenipotentiary groucho at the next conference. But he should be a

He must vote negative against all affirmatives. We will allow him $6 a day, frank his laundry and supply him with a bean shooter in case of a tie.

His business will be to make us enemies. We have too many friends now.

The perfect objector will accept no substitutes, he will stop the balloting every five minutes to count his money and will be suspicious of strangers, allies and full bearded Adonises.

He might not get us anywhere. We don't expect that. All we want to do is to hold our own.

Let's try this kind of mugg for our next whirl at the European gadgets. The results may be astonishing to Europe. But it's their turn for the big surprises.

'Soaking the Rich'

Ultra Wealthy Escape Income Tax and Great Burden Falls On Middle Class

As the roll call of multi-millionaires is made by the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, the evidence becomes overwhelming that the income tax has become a gigantic racket.

While economic illiterates in Congress have blocked intelligent tax revision by repeating the naive formula, "soak the rich," the ultra wealthy have in years of depression gone scot free of income taxes.

The testimony of the urbane Otto H. Kahn, senior partner in the private banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, indicated that, like the Morgan partners and Charles E. Mitchell, financiers generally found loopholes to escape income taxation by offsetting actual income with capital losses. Mr. Kahn testified that he paid no federal income taxes in 1930, 1931 and 1932.

It is futile to stop at blaming individuals, however conspicuous they may be.

The real blunder was in the American law which confused non recurring capital gains with income, and as a corollary permitted the deduction of capital losses from income.

Great Britain and other foreign countries, employing the income tax principle, clearly distinguish between income and capital gains.

The effect of the confusion of the law in this country has been to exaggerate the taxable income in prosperous years, and to make it all but disappear in lean years.

Such a prince and pauper series of fluctuations not only tends to impair public credit but also to weaken opportunities for financing useful social projects.

Likewise, in lean years, when the rich employ subtle lawyers and accountants to find avenues of escape for them, the burden of supporting the government falls with crushing effect on the shoulders of the middle class—the great salaried and professional classes, the intellectual leaders of the nation.

The present hearings ought to have the effect of awakening Congress from its stupor in respect to taxation.

The Mitchells, the Morgans, and the Kahns have found ways of adjusting themselves to the existing iniquitous law, which especially penalizes men of moderate means.

As soon as our national legislators digest this simple fact, they ought to be in a mood to heighten the process of recovery through tax revision.

Leading authorities, including the late Thomas S. Adams, of Yale, have stressed the utility of the general manufacturers' sales tax as a revenue producer in depressed as well as prosperous times.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, representing business, and the American Federation of Labor, representing labor, joined to ask for a sales tax to finance public works projects.

New Traffic Plan

City Planning Commission Favors By-Passing of Traffic Around Triangle.

The proposal made by L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission, for a system of traffic by-passes in place of the Wabash Tunnel purchase is worthy of serious consideration. It must be realized that the handling of traffic in a city of the size of Pittsburgh should be studied in a scientific manner. In the past some of the city and county traffic improvements have merely created new points of congestion in attempting to eliminate old ones.

Mr. Monteverde declared that studies made by the commission indicate that between 45 and 50 per cent of the traffic coming into the triangle is destined for outside points and adds to congestion in the downtown section without contributing to the volume of business done in the triangle.

In view of this, he stated that a system of by-passing routes to handle through traffic would be more helpful than the proposed tunnel purchase.

His plan is to make provisions to carry traffic over Saw Mill Run boulevard at the south end of the Liberty Tunnels and also to provide for overhead movement of traffic from the Liberty Bridge across Forbes street and Fifth avenue into Bigelow boulevard. Other improvements also would be included in the plan which would require about $4,000,000.

Mr. Monteverde declared that this plan would permit the movement of more business-making traffic in the triangle by providing special routes for the through traffic.

He also pointed to the fact that the entire expenditure would be for projects providing employment while a major share of the money to be spent on the Wabash Tunnel plan would be required for the purchase of the existing tube and bridge.

Living Wage Demanded

Mayor Herron Wants Contractors to Pay Workers Decently as Relief Cases Decrease

There will be general approval of the determination of Mayor John S. Herron that work on city contracts shall be done by men who are paid a living wage.

He instructed Edward G. Lang, public works director, to notify all contractors doing such work that they must pay workmen a decent stipend if they wish to obtain more city work.

His "whip" is the fact that he will recommend to Council that the city engage in its own construction work unless contractors are agreeable.

It is to be hoped such drastic action may not be necessary, inasmuch as contractors, with equipment and experience, are in a position to do the work more economically than the city. The difference should satisfy them as profit. They will feel better—or should—than they will after taking the extra dollars accumulating from the few pennies per hour "squeezed" from the hands of labor.

The public, which pays the expense, naturally wants public work done as economically as possible, but they prefer to have it done through competence and efficiency rather than through grinding of workers.

It's in the air, this idea of keeping wages as high as possible, for it is realized that every nickel a worker receives now spreads itself into a circle far beyond the circumference of five pennies.

Whatever the public pays in wages relieves it of payment elsewhere—for relief. The upturn in employment already is reflected in the decrease of relief cases in Allegheny County.

And those who have gone off the list need all that we are able to pay them.

The minimum in that direction, as Mayor Herron says, should be a "living wage."

Will He Come Up?

By Nelson Harding

The ripples show where Uncle Sam
Has taken a tremendous dive.
And now what we all want to know
Is this: Will he come up alive?

It's pretty deep where he went in,
With tides and currents running strong.
We hope the watchers on the pier
Will see his head bob up ere long.

Marry-Go-Round

When the Gods Laugh

People appear to be divided into two classes, these days! Those who would give their eye-teeth to get into the limelight—and those who would give their fortunes to keep out of the newspapers and dodge the photographers.

* * *

There are times when a man's love-making is so finished and technically perfect, that the only response it arouses in a girl is the impulse to applaud his talent.

The gods always smile on lovers; but when they look down on one of these summer week-end infatuations, they don't know whether to weep or to laugh out loud.

* * *

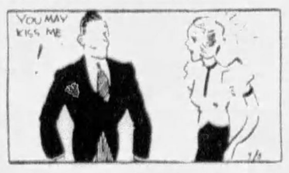
Lots of us keep going, these days on the luminous hope that eventually Lady Luck will run out of lemons, and begin flinging a few plums at us.

* * *

A bride usually steps right into her mother-in-law's shoes. If her darling's mother walked around on egg-shells and made a doormat of herself, in order to make "Junior's" life a bed of roses, any girl he marries will have to take over that job.

* * *

If girls continue to be so ardent and men to be so coy, it will soon reach the point where a woman will have to promise a man a jeweled wrist-watch and cross her heart "never to tell" before he will PERMIT her to kiss him.



Since one bachelor has learned to cook and discovered that there is no sex in a frying-pan and that a waffle-iron has no gender, woman's last feeble hold over his imagination has been broken. Half the tenderness a man felt for a woman in the old days was a maudlin pity for his own "helpless" state.

* * *

It looks as though a man sometimes marries just in order to enjoy the luxurious feeling that some woman is waiting up nights, worrying about him.

Isn't It So?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 5.—Likely the most indefatigable reader of mystery in the world is Will Cuppy, whose diversities range from book reviewing to burlesque skits on the home life of the auk. He has read every mystery published in the past 10 years, including translations.

His life is submerged among the push-button flats on the fringe of Washington Square and the glamours of Broadway are as remote as his personality. When he drops a note to friends he signs himself "The Old Hermit."

Now and then, when pressed, he will turn out a book and bury himself in some isolated post with a huge pile of thrillers until his royalties exhaust. Unsmiling, he has a quaintly dry humor and flair for similes. His "Nutty as a fruit-cake" is an example.

To many Cuppy's sheltered life would seem a synthetic curdle. Somebody tells me when he becomes extraordinarily bored he drops into one of those catch-penny bazars on Fourteenth street to test his skill against a checker player who meets all comers. And that beats literary teas all hollow.

* * *

There are many recluses among the scribbling fraternity. Until golf claimed him, William MacHarg was a pronounced isolationist. His intimate friends would not see him for months. Edward Arlington Robinson, the poet, is not known by sight to more than a score of writers. Gil Patten, at height of Frank Merriwell fame, spent his time alone in the Maine woods. Royal Brown prefers solitude. And, of course, there's the shyest of the shy, J. M. Barrie.

* * *

Incidentally, Vernon McKenzie balloons my list of authors who dictate their stuff: E. Phillips Oppenheim and Cosmo Hamilton. They also sport monacles, by Jove.

* * *

Perhaps the most distinct contrast from Will Cuppy's cloistered career is that of E. Phillips Oppenheim. His study overlooks the blue of the Mediterranean and he's at his desk every morning dictating until 12. Then he motors along the Corniche road to a terrasse table at some Monte Carlo cafe where he adjusts his monacle, sips his aperitif and watches the cho-a-bloc luncheon gaiety. After lunch, golf until sundown and dinner, for which he always appears in white tied splendor. Then a tour of the casinos. And so to bed!

* * *

As a pursuivant of thrilling fiction, I've often wondered if other addicts, too, find it impossible to read detective fiction or a chance Oppenheim in daylight. I can only read such stuff in bed—"by a candle-glow with the world shut out."

* * *

I hear Charles G. Dawes, the banker, stretches on the floor, cupping his face in his hands, to read at night. Properly cushioned, this is the most delightful way to read and relax. My great trouble has been that often I wake up there next morning. W. R. Hearst studies his many newspapers by smoothing them out on the floor. So did Northcliffe. My grandfather always read at full length on the floor, a habit he acquired when he spent much time in the open and read around the campfire at night.

Few know Theodore Dreiser suggested the famous "On the Banks of the Wabash" song to his brother Paul Dresser. Dreiser suggested a song about moonlight on a lazy river. "But what river?" said Paul. And thus the unromantic Wabash was immortalized. The lyrics of the first verse and chorus were also Dreiser's.

Frank McHugh, expert drunk and wise guy of the movies, returned to New York recently after three years in Hollywood. Everywhere people stopped to stare. He had long appeared in prominent Broadway roles, but few recognized him. New York is like every other town. Local boys must go away to be acclaimed.

There's invariably something strained about Broadway welcoming home a successful wanderer, but Wilson Mizner used to say it was done with two motions—a back pat and a quick touch.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

All her life she has "done things for other people;" never expressed her own desires; never insisted on her own rights. She has just lived for her family; served their interests.

And now she's getting old. Not really so old in years. Only 40. Most modern women are still young at 40. But not poor Mrs. Gray. She looks, she feels 90. A bleak and bitter 90, filled with resentment and self-pity.

For what thanks does she receive for devoting her life to other people, flattering them, waiting on them "hand and foot?" No thanks at all! Her husband's bored. Doesn't try to hide it. Actually treats her as if he had a grudge against her, as if she'd wronged him somehow, instead of his wronging her. And her children are just as bad. They ignore her—won't listen to her advice—go off and leave her when she starts crying. Oh, how can people be so cruel and ungrateful!

A familiar picture? You know a person like that? And you suppose you should feel terribly sorry for him or her, don't you? But somehow people like that always get your goat. Maybe you're hard-hearted.

No, you're not! People like that SHOULD get your goat! They get life's goat!

Because those services do not really meet our need.

What is it we need most, value most, in those who are nearest to us?

Is it something they do for our bodies? Or something they do for our spirits?

It is something they do for our spirits. For a hungry spirit is infinitely more troublesome than a hungry stomach. One can nearly always rustle food, somehow. But it's the deuce of a job to rustle enthusiasm, inspiration, laughter, fresh hope and pride and courage.

We love those most who do most for our lives.

BUT WE CAN ONLY DO THE MOST FOR OTHER PEOPLE'S LIVES BY MAKING THE MOST OF OUR OWN LIVES.

WE CAN'T BE AN ADVENTURE FOR OTHER PEOPLE UNLESS WE ARE AN ADVENTURE FOR OURSELVES, WE CAN'T GIVE POWER AND PLEASURE AND PEACE TO OTHER PEOPLE UNLESS WE HAVE DEVELOPED THOSE THINGS IN OURSELVES, AND WE CAN'T DEVELOP THESE THINGS BY BAKING CAKES OR MENDING SCREEN DOORS.

So, if we fail ourselves we fail other people. If we deny ourselves we deny other people—though we drudge for them every hour of the day.

Why do families despise and ignore the doormats who "never think of their own interests but slave hand and foot" through the dreary years? Why do they vaguely feel that such doormats are contemptible — that they somehow cheat those who depend on them?

BECAUSE THEY ACTUALLY DO CHEAT THOSE WHO DEPEND ON THEM.

Mrs. Gray has given her husband twenty-three years of perfect housekeeping, complete sacrifice and slavish yessing. Yet she has never given him the one thing he wanted—the thing he expected when he courted and married her.

SHE HAS NEVER ENLARGED HIS LIFE, QUICKENED HIS INTEREST, RELEASED HIM FROM HIS FEARS, CHALLENGED HIS COURAGE.

She has been a door-mat. Why should he be grateful to a doormat? Why should he respect anything which doesn't respect itself?

She has been an echo—reiterating his ideas, repeating his commands. Why should he be charmed by something which is but a tiresome repetition of himself? What he wanted—what he expected to get—was someone who was different and who, by her very difference, would extend his own boundaries.

The Human Side of the News

Prophets of Doom—Long Island Man Predicts End of the World—Pennsylvanian Mistaken

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE man who predicts that the world will come to an end this year lives at Freeport, Long Island. His name is Robert Reidt, and they call him "The Prophet of Doom." Just a year ago he startled the nervous, and such as carry uneasy consciences beneath their wishbones, with the round assertion that October 10, 1932, would resound to the notes of Gabriel's trumpet.

But when the old world went on about its business, the Prophet of Doom was not the least discountenanced or discouraged. He went over his calculations, based, he says, upon the Book of Revelations, and now renews his baleful prediction that this year will see the end of everything.

"Before the year is out," says Robert Reidt, "the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burned up."

Science is quite ready to affirm the possibility of such a catastrophe, but is cautious about setting any date nearer than a few hundred million or billion years from now.

For a thousand years there have been these prophets of doomsday, and some of them have terrified whole nations. In the year 1000 all Christendom looked for the end on January 1. The rumor spread that Christ would appear on Mount Zion. An immense throng flocked there, having first sold all their earthly possessions.

Mistaken Astronomer Ducked in Pond

STOEFFLER, a German astronomer, predicted in 1533 that the world would be destroyed by a deluge. Believers emulated Noah. A wealthy Parisian built himself a craft, which he stored with provisions to last six months. Finally the appointed day arrived. At 7 in the morning Stoeffler began preaching his last sermon. He advanced 22 arguments to prove that his theory was true. The clock struck.

"Lo! It comes, it comes!" shouted the prophet.

But it came not.

The people held their breath with awe. Stoeffler, peering from the church door, spied a cloud and shouted again:

"Behold, it cometh from the clouds!"

Again he was wrong. Fear turned to anger. The people dragged the prophet from his pulpit and soused him in a neighboring duck-pond.

But the greatest of all these sensations occurred in 1844, when William Miller, of Pittsfield, Mass., preached with fiery fervor that the world would come to an end between the thirteenth and twenty-second of October.

"The white circle of tents," wrote Whittier, a good reporter, "the dim wood arches, the upturned earnest faces, the loud voices of the speakers, burdened with the awful symbolic language of the Bible; the smoke from the fires, rising like incense from forest altars. And suspended from the front of the rude pulpit, a canvas sheet bearing the wonders of the Apolcalyptic vision: the beasts, the dragon, the scarlet w[illegible] the mystic symbols, all translated into staring Yankee realities, and exhibited like the beasts of a traveling menagerie."

In March of that year, 1844, Father Miller closed the diary of his public labors, believing he would never have to open it again. But March went out in its usual lamblike way, and April came and passed and saw not the heaven in anguish. When May arrived the poor old man was heard confessing his error, but not his disbelief. October would yet witness the fulfillment of his prophesy.

Pennsylvania Grocer Made Prediction

IN THE interval between the thirteenth and the twenty-second of October all worldly business was put aside by the Millerites, or Second Adventists. Thousands bought white muslin for ascension robes. Tradesmen shut up shop and gave away their goods. Multitudes knelt in prayer half the day and half the night, while they turned to the peaceful blue sky or the tranquil stars their apprehensive gaze.

Finally the sun rose on October 23. Nothing happened all day, and at nightfall the sad prophet could only say:

"I have fixed my mind on another time, and here I mean to stand until God gives me more light."

Except for Prophet Reidt, of Freeport, Long Island, the most recent of the prophets of doom was Lee T. Spangler, a grocer of York, Pa. At the age of 12 it was revealed to him in a vision that the world would perish in fire and smoke in October, 1908. When he became a grown man he revealed his message to his neighbors. Leaving his wife behind him, he went to Nyack, N. Y., with his chief priestess and a crowd of believers. Solemn preparatory services were held.

The priestess revealed that Prophet Spangler had found, in the second verse of the sixth chapter of Revelations, a distinct reference to Theodore Roosevelt, who had ridden a white horse up San Juan Hill, had conquered and had been crowned. Therefore, it was perfectly plain that the end of the world would arrive before nightfall. But twilight came, and then dark. The night grew colder and colder. The damped and chilled believers melted away. And so did the prophet. A few days later he was discovered living quietly at home with his wife, dispensing butter and eggs as of yore.

HUMANISM

By Winifred Black

There's a new religion. Brand new—right fresh from the oven.

They've baked it in Chicago, thirty editors, writers, educators and preachers—and they're sending out clarion calls to all the world asking all the world to join them, in their determined efforts to rid the earth of the outworn superstitions which men call religion.

Men and men's brains and men's hearts, and men's ideals with no more ridiculous nonsense about faith, and the hope of immortality.

"We assume that Humanism will take the path of social and mental hygiene, and discourage sentimental and unreal hopes and wishful thinking."

Sounds well, doesn't it? I wonder how it will work out?

Very nicely indeed, I haven't a doubt. As long as things are going smoothly.

It's lots of fun to talk about science and cool reason when you're perfectly well and everyone you love is all right and there's plenty of money in the bank.

Pain, anguish, the broken hearted knowledge of treachery—how can we bear these things at all without something besides "science," to help us?

What rubbish it all is, this talk of "reason," and "science" when it comes to the real life and real death of real human beings. When we choose a wife or a husband by reason, when we love our children, not because they are bone of our bone, and flesh of our flesh, but because they are reasonable creatures, who are always right, always truthful, always kind—when we never make any more mistakes, when we never have to learn not only to forget but to forgive—then and not till then will "science" be enough for us.

"Sentimental nonsense," that's what they call the deepest impulses of the human heart, these "scientists," who apparently do realize that all the greatest forces of life, are invisible.

Science—all well enough for professors.

As for me, give me the folly of faith, the stupidity of loyalty, the joy and the anguish of deep love, the hope of youth, and the faith of waning years.

And you can take all the cold reason and calculating science in the world and throw it to the dogs—for all of me.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Who wrote:

1. "But O, how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes?"
2. "Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam
   Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home?"
3. "An honest man's word is as good as his bond?"
4. "Hope springs eternal in the human breast?"
5. "Where ignorance is bliss

Do you know:

6. Who is the hero of Homer's "Iliad?"
7. How much money did United States pay Spain for the Philippine Islands?
8. What is meant by tempering steel?
9. What is a marquee?
10. What is mutton the flesh of?
11. Who painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware?"
12. What is a chattel mortgage?
13. What is a gazetteer?
14. What is a cantor?
15. What color is a bay horse?

1. Shakespeare, "As You Like It." 2. J. Howard Payne, "Home Sweet Home." 3. Cervantes, "Don Quixote." 4. Pope, "Essay on Man." 5. Gray "On a Distant Prospect of Eton College." 6. Achilles. 7. $20,000,000. 8. Imparting a required degree of hardness. 9. Large Tent. 10. Sheep. 11. Emanuel Leutze. 12. A mortgage given on movable goods. 13. A geographical dictionary. 14. A singer, often leader of singing. 15. Reddish brown.
